Arts in Action Series to Present Season 'Beyond Boundaries'

The 2001-01 schedule for the UNCW Arts in Action Performing Arts Series "Beyond Boundaries" features a variety of musical and theatrical entertainment.

Seven events comprise the series that is sponsored by the Campus Activities and Involvement Center at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. Featured artists include jazz singer Jane Monheit, Australia's Bangarra Dance Theatre and political satirists The Capitol Steps.

Season tickets will be on sale Aug. 1 through Oct. 9. Purchasers of season tickets save 20 percent over the cost of buying tickets to each performance and receive priority seating for all events. Season tickets are $26 for students, $55 for UNCW faculty and staff and $84 for all others. With the exception of the musical political satire group, The Capitol Steps (performing at Thalian Hall as a co-presentation with the hall and WHQR 91.3 FM), all performances will be held in Kenan Auditorium.

A smaller ticket package, the "Choose-Your-Own-Series" option, will also be available on Aug. 1. This will offer a 10-percent savings for purchases of tickets to four or more events. Tickets for individual performances will be on sale beginning Aug. 27 and will cost $5.50 for UNCW students and children age 12 and under, $11.50 for UNCW faculty/staff and $17.50 for all others.

Australia's Bangarra Dance Theatre will open the UNCW Arts in Action performance series Oct. 9.

The following events comprise the 2001-02 UNCW Arts in Action Performing Arts Series:

Bangarra Dance Theatre
8 p.m. Oct. 9

Mingling the essence of centuries-old indigenous traditions with contemporary movement and energy, Bangarra Dance Theatre is at the forefront of a new wave of Australian dance. The troupe is one of Australia's most respected and innovative dance companies, drawing boldly on the essence and spirituality of the Aboriginal and island culture through music, dance and song.

Ethos Percussion Group
8 p.m. Oct. 27

Celebrating extraordinary music-making for more than a decade, the Ethos Percussion Group leaves no percussion instrument unexplored. From evocative Guatemalan marimba music to the high energy of Japanese taiko drumming to performing contemporary masterworks by composers like John Cage and Lou Harrison, Ethos is revolutionizing the world of percussion.

Aquila Theatre Company
in Homer's The Wrath of Achilles
2 p.m. Nov. 11

Revisit the plains of Troy for an epic theatrical experience – The Wrath of Achilles which is based on Homer's epic war poem The Illiad. Renowned for its staging of Greek drama, the company draws the audience into a world at war where the desperate struggle for survival in mortal combat tests the mettle of these great classical heroes.

Jane Monheit
8 p.m. Jan. 19

At age 23, Jane Monheit is creating quite a buzz as one of the hottest new voices on the jazz scene. Her first recording Never Neverland (N-coded Music) made it onto Billboard's Top 10 charts, a rare achievement for a jazz record. Monheit's latest album is entitled Come Dream With Me.

Eighth Blackbird
8 p.m. Feb. 15

Taking its name from the Wallace Stevens poem Thirteen Ways of Looking at a Blackbird, Eighth Blackbird is a sextet comprised of clarinet, violin, flute, piano, cello and percussion. The ensemble's playing has won over audiences across the country and has earned Eighth Blackbird an impressive collection of accolades, including the 2000 Walter W. Naumburg Foundation Award.

K. Sridhar: North Indian Classical Music on Sarod
8 p.m. March 16

A former student of India's music superstar, Ravi Shankar, K. Sridhar is considered one of today's finest exponents of the sarod, a lute native to northern India.

The Capitol Steps
4 and 8 p.m. April 27

The Capitol Steps are Congressional staffers-turned-comedians who travel the country satirizing the people and

Music on the Commons

Singer/musician Kate Newcomer will perform from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. July 17 on the Campus Commons. The event is part of Tuesday Tunes, a summer concert series sponsored by campus activities. Gary Allen will close out the series July 24.

In the event of inclement weather, events will be held in the University Union, Hawk's Nest. Refreshments will be served.

Swimmer to Compete in Maccabiah Games

UNCW student Andrew Coen is one of 19 swimmers who will represent the United States at the World Maccabiah Games in Israel. He is the first swimmer in the history of the UNCW program to compete in the event, a quadrennial athletic competition for Jewish athletes. The games open July 16 in Tel Aviv with the swimming competition set for Haifa, a city along the Mediterranean Sea.

"We're very happy for Andrew," said Dave Allen, swimming and diving coach. "This is a tremendous opportunity to travel overseas and compete in his sport. He will benefit from this experience and only get better. I am confident that he will represent himself, his family, our university and our country in an exemplary fashion."

Advisers Needed

Faculty and staff interested in serving as advisers for student clubs and organizations should contact Angie Roth, associate director for campus activities and involvement, at ext. 3827 or e-mail rothar.

UNCW Hosting Sixth Annual N.C. Summer Symposium on Aging

Lt. Gov. Beverly Perdue is one of three keynote speakers who will address issues affecting North Carolina's increasing number of older adults at the sixth annual North Carolina Summer Symposium on Aging being held July 18-20 at UNCW. Perdue will speak at 8:30 a.m. Friday in the Warwick Center Ballroom.

The symposium "A Sea of Voices . . . Colleges and Communities Collaborating" will bring together academicians, policy makers and service providers from across the state. Representatives from university gerontology programs along with the Institute of Aging at UNC Chapel Hill, the N.C. Division of Aging, local and regional aging networks and senior advocacy groups will learn about services needed for the next generation of older adults and best practices to meet these demands. Presentation topics include drug intervention with older people, community support networks, diversity and aging, spirituality and the workforce, working with hospice patients, creativity and healthy aging and many others.

Symposium registration is open to the public. The cost is $140. Senior citizens (age 65 and older) or full-time students can register for $50. Registration forms are available through the Cape Fear Area Agency on Aging; call Jane Jones at 910/395-4553. The symposium program and registration form can be downloaded at www.aging.unc.edu/news/2001/symposiumprog.pdf.

Watson School of Education Hosts National Assessment Institute

Faculty from the Watson School of Education are joining a cast of nationally prominent "movers and shakers" in teacher and student evaluation and assessment in sharing their expertise July 19-21 at the 10th annual CREATE National Evaluation Institute.

The 70-session conference at the Hilton Wilmington Riverside is co-sponsored by UNC Wilmington and SERVE, an education research lab for educators serving six southeastern states. SERVE is affiliated with UNC Greensboro. Two hundred educators, policy makers and business people from across the country are registered to attend.

CREATE, the Consortium for Research on Educational Accountability and Teacher Evaluation, is an international, non-profit professional organization linking educators and evaluators in an effort to help schools address educational issues.

The conference theme is "Using Assessment to Inform Improvement: Creating an Alliance Among Educational Practitioners, Policy Makers and the Business Community." Areas of discussion include educational accountability, program and personnel evaluation, evaluation and policy, evaluation and technology and evaluation and business.

UNCW faculty presenting at the conference include: Cathy Barlow, dean of the Watson School of Education; Karen Wetherill, assistant dean; Diane Calhoun, Ann Crawford, Tracy Hargrove, Rich Huber, Richard Pratt, Laura Rogers and Brad Walker.

The opening keynote speaker will be John Dornan, president and executive director of the Public School Forum of North Carolina and recipient of a 2001 Razor Walker Award. He will speak at 8:15 a.m. Friday on the pressures of high stakes testing and the consequences of public policy.

Kati Haycock, director of The Education Trust in Washington, D.C., will discuss "Achievement in America and What We Have to Do to Improve It" in her keynote address at 12:30 p.m. Friday. A panel discussion follows with Dornan and Bill Sanders, manager of value-added assessment and research for SAS in School.

"We've got some of the major players in evaluation and assessment coming to the conference. From a faculty standpoint, it's pretty exciting to have the people we reference in our teaching here in Wilmington," Wetherill said. "The topics are so cutting edge and so critical to our state and nation."

"When we talk about the Watson School of Education and UNCW being on the national scene, we are, and this conference is just an example," she said. "The turnout attests to the fact that we have a lot to offer nationally, and we are being recognized for that."

Examples of other presenters from across the nation are Peter Airasian, professor from Boston College; Joyce Annunziata, assistant superintendent of Miami-Dade County Public Schools; Chad Ellett, researcher from Georgia; Arlen Gullickson, chief of staff from the Evaluation Center in Western Michigan; Ken Peterson, professor from Portland State University; and Del Schalock, research professor from Western Oregon University.

Among the participants will be eight teachers from across the United States, including several from North Carolina, who are certified by the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards. At the conclusion of the conference they will lead a discussion and share their insights on the conference sessions from the perspective of classroom teachers.

"We're trying to appeal to a variety of audiences and engage them in a topic that's so current and critical now," Wetherill said.

Also during the conference a joint commission will be reviewing student evaluation standards that will be adapted nationally.

Additional support for the conference was provided by the UNCW Chancellor's Office and Division for Public Service and Extended Education, State Farm, Corwin Press and the Hayden-Harman Family Foundation.

Convocation Canceled

UNCW's annual convocation ceremony, scheduled for Aug. 21, was canceled due to "much-needed" renovation in Trask Coliseum and the lack of an alternative, air-conditioned venue, according to a statement released jointly by academic and student affairs.

Bill Halamandaris, president of the Heart of America and a leader in developing community service programs targeted at youth, was set to speak. His visit will be rescheduled for a later date during the fall semester.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are needed for the Piney Woods Festival, a major fundraiser for the Arts Council of the Lower Cape Fear, scheduled for Sept. 1 and 2. Call Annette Coneglio Anderson at ext. 3547.

Let's Read! UNCW & You

Phil Furia and Rebecca Lee, creative writing, along with Ben Steelman from the Wilmington Star-News join host Betty Ann Sanders on Let's Read! UNCW & You airing at 7 p.m. July 19 and 26 on The Learning Network on Time Warner Cable Channel 5. The group will discuss summer reading selections.

Toner Cartridges

The Department of Mathematics and Statistics has 10 toner cartridges for sale. For more information, call ext. 3290.

MarineQuest Camps

MarineQuest has openings in its Summer by the Sea day camp and Coast Trek for Locals. Summer by the Sea is available for children ages seven to 10 and is scheduled for 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. July 23-27 and July 3 to Aug. 3. The cost is $106 per week.

Coast Trek is for children ages 11 to 14 and is Aug. 6-10. The cost is $285. For more information, call ext. 2386.

Soccer Assistant Named

Jeremy Wisdo was named assistant coach for the UNCW men's soccer team. Prior to joining UNCW, Wisdo was on the staff of the Highland Football Club where he was head coach of the U-17 and U-18 boys teams. While at UNC Asheville, Wisdo was a two-time member of the All-Big South team.

Battleship Film Festival 'Tremendous Success'

The annual Fantail Film Festival held aboard the USS North Carolina Battleship Memorial was a "tremendous success," according to David Scheu, memorial director.

"Without UNCW's commitment via the Film Studies Program and the A/V Department, this event would not have enjoyed the strong community support it received," said Scheu.

Phil Furia, director of film studies, selected and introduced the films. According to Scheu, Furia's introductions increased the audience's appreciation and understanding of the movies. The A/V Department, under the direction of Jeff Stanfield, loaned the battleship a table and cart to screen the films, which were shown on a 9 x 16-foot screen on the ship's fantail.

UNCW on N.C. ECHO

From possum to papyrus, it's on the World Wide Web and North Carolina ECHO (Exploring Cultural Heritage Online) makes finding it easier. Spearheaded by the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources, N.C. ECHO will deliver information about the state's historical and cultural treasures within a mouse click, whether the treasure is Duke University's collection of Egyptian papyri or Belhaven Museum's Depression-era canning exhibit featuring a jar of possum. A visit to www.ncecho.org will put more than 600 of the state's museums, libraries, historical societies and archives at your fingertips, including UNCW's Randall Library and the Museum of World Cultures. Funding for this project was provided by the federal Library Services and Technology Act through a grant from the Institute of Museum of Library Services, administered by the State Library of North Carolina, a division of the state's Department of Cultural Resources.

Alumni Chapter Donation to Fund Scholarships

The Cape Fear Alumni Chapter of the UNCW Alumni Association donated a total of $2,500 to the endowment funds for three scholarships that will be offered by the University of North Carolina at Wilmington when fully funded at the $25,000 level.

The chapter, headed by Caroline Corriher '97, contributed $1,000 to the Brian Pearson King Scholarship Fund in Department of Communication Studies, $1,000 to the Ralph Parker Scholarship Fund and $500 to the Shirley Gilbert Farr Scholarship Fund.

Corriher said the chapter is committed to continuing its support of the university by making a contribution to each of these worthwhile scholarship efforts.

These monies were raised at the eighth annual Cape Fear Alumni Golf Tournament, held May 18 at the Castle Bay Country Club.

Soccer Camps

The Men's Soccer Program will hold a residential/day camp for boys age 14 to 18 July 23-27. The cost is $400 for overnight campers, $300 for commuters. Team discounts are available. For more information, call Aidan Heaney at ext. 3044.

Hall of Fame

Nominations are sought for the fourth induction into the UNCW Athletic Hall of Fame which will take place early in 2002. The Hall of Fame, which was established in 1998, honors former UNCW student-athletes, coaches and administrators. Anyone may nominate a prospective candidate for induction. Forms are available on the World Wide Web at www.uncwil.edu/athletics or through sports information. Submit nominations to Joe Browning. For more information, call ext. 3236.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mexican Consul to Speak

Carolina Zaragoza Flores, Mexican consul assigned to North and South Carolina, will discuss issues affecting the area's Hispanic/Latino community at a public forum scheduled for 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. July 21 at Cape Fear Community College's Schwartz Center. Discussion topics include education, immigration, housing and business/economic development. For more information, contact Yvonne Pagan or Adriana Pridgen at 251-8130.

Diving on Display

"Looking Back: A Reflection on the History of Deep-sea Diving," an exhibit featuring photographs by Doug Kesling and various diving artifacts and equipment, is on display through July 31 in Randall Library.

Kesling is training and safety coordinator and dive safety officer for the NURC/UNCW.

Spirituality Symposium

The dimensions of spirituality is the focus of the UNCW Lifelong Learning Symposium scheduled for 9:30 a.m. to noon Aug. 4 at the Executive Development Center. James Megivern, philosophy and religion, will moderate the panel discussion that will explore historical, Biblical, psychological and literary perspectives. Other panelists are Walter Harrison, professor emeritus of Hebrew Bible at the Divinity School of Vanderbilt University; Joseph Walser, former religious studies professor, Alma College; Gary Brown, former United Methodist minister, therapist and educator; John Knowles, retired professor of Spanish language and literature, University of Delaware; and Herb Berg and Don Habbibi, philosophy and religion.

Admission is free, but seating is limited. Call ext. 3193 to reserve space in advance.

Diving to Extremes: UNCW Assists Deep-sea Expedition

NURC/UNCW and the National Science Foundation are supporting a deep-sea expedition to the Gulf of Mexico to study ocean life which depends upon hydrocarbon fuels.

Scientists from the University of Georgia, Georgia Institute of Technology and Texas A&M University are diving off the coast of Louisiana to study lightless communities at the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico such as dense concentrations of bacteria or giant tubeworms that can live 250 years and grow eight feet long. The bacteria use chemical energy instead of sunlight to form the base of the food chain and live as dense mats on the seafloor or inside other organisms in a symbiotic relationship.

The researchers are using the high-tech "inner space ship" Johnson-Sea-Link, a research submersible owned by Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institution. UNCW/NURC provided funding to lease the vessel. For mission updates, visit the World Wide Web site www.at-sea.org.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Karen Shafer and William Kawczynski, SMEC, received $10,098 from the Eisenhower Program/UNC Mathematics and Science Education Center, for the project "Environmental Science Through Globe."

Walter Conser, philosophy and religion, gave the invited opening address to the conference "Religion in America," which was sponsored by the Netherlands American Studies Association and held at the Roosevelt Study Center in Middelburg, Netherlands. Conser's lecture "Diversity and Its Limits" was excerpted by Dutch press in its conference coverage.

William Cleary, earth sciences and CMS, attended the Estuarine and Coastal Sciences Association Symposium on Estuaries and the Coastal Zone of Northern Portugal: State of the Art in Porto, Portugal. This conference, sponsored by the European Union, dealt with European directives, global change and the need to integrate science in the management of coasts and estuaries. Cleary gave the invited keynote address for the session on management issues related to coastal erosion.

Joan Willey, Robert Kieber and Stephen Skrable, chemistry, received $106,600 in supplemental funding from the National Science Foundation for the project "RUI: Iron Speciation in Rainwater – the Influence of Organic Complexation, Photochemistry and Redox-active Trace Constituents."

Robert Tyndall, ITDS, and Laura Rogers, received $8,500 from the UNC President's Office for for the project "Wireless Technology: Instructional Enhancement." Tyndall also received $35,000 to develop and deploy a prospective student portal system. UNCW is one of three pilot sites for this project. In addition, Tyndall received $5,636 to host a three-day forum as part of the Teaching and Learning with Technology Collaborative.

Jarrell to Head Softball

Melissa Jarrell, a veteran collegiate coach with professional coaching experience, was named UNCW's head softball coach.

"I'm very excited about the potential of the softball program at UNCW," said Jarrell. "I'm committed to doing whatever it takes to move the program to the next level."

Jarrell

Jarrell, 37, is a native of Florence, S.C. She played at UNC Chapel Hill from 1983 to 1986, where she was co-captain and most valuable player in 1986. Following graduation, she coached outfielders and catchers at UNC Chapel Hill before moving to Trenton State as a graduate assistant coach. Jarrell's first head coaching job came in 1990 for the University of California, San Diego. She also spent seven years as head coach at the University of Rhode Island where she was URI's Female Coach of the Year in 1995. She was also an assistant coach with Pride, a professional club in Columbus, Ga.

Enhancing Community College Partnerships New Focus For Carter

UNC Wilmington's partnerships and initiatives with the state's community colleges will be strengthened and enhanced as a result of new responsibilities assigned to administrator Denis Carter effective Aug. 1.

UNCW Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs John C. Cavanaugh announced the restructuring of Carter's responsibilities today. His new title will be associate vice chancellor for planning and academic outreach. He currently serves as associate provost for enrollment affairs.

"Denis has a long and very successful history of working with North Carolina's community colleges," said Cavanaugh, noting that Carter developed the first comprehensive transfer articulation agreements for UNCW. These subsequently became a model for the state's comprehensive articulation agreement between the 59 community colleges and the UNC universities.

Representing the University of North Carolina system, Carter is co-chair of the Transfer Advisory Committee that is charged by the N.C. General Assembly to oversee the statewide comprehensive transfer articulation agreement (CAA). The CAA was authorized by legislation (HB 739, SB 1161, 1995 session of the General Assembly) that directed the establishment of a formal means to simplify and facilitate the transfer of students between university and community college systems.

"This new assignment will provide Denis and UNCW the opportunity to explore new and exciting partnerships with community colleges and other academic institutions. Additionally, he will be engaged with strategic planning and institutional effectiveness," said Cavanaugh.

UNCW currently has comprehensive articulation agreements with 11 of the state's community colleges. These agreements cover college transfers for Associate in Arts and Associate in Science degrees. UNCW also has special bilateral articulation agreements for Associate of Applied Science programs in early childhood education, marine technology and chemical technology with Cape Fear Community College and aquaculture with Brunswick Community College. Although Carter's initial focus will be on community colleges in the region, long-term strategy will be to extend these partnerships statewide.

Carter

Further, Carter will serve as the Academic Affairs Division's liaison to institutional research and planning. He will participate in enrollment and strategic marketing analyses relative to academic programs and initiatives of the university.

Carter joined UNCW in 1978 as a faculty member in economics. He has held several posts at UNCW prior to this appointment, including associate dean of the Cameron School of Business and assistant vice chancellor for academic affairs. He is well known for his work with community development organizations at both the state and local levels.

Preparing Teachers to Use Technology

Education School Receives $2 Million Grant for Teacher Training

UNCW's Watson School of Education received a three-year matching grant totaling more than $2 million to train UNCW students, faculty and cooperating teachers to assess student achievement using the latest handheld technology.

The school is receiving $965,815 from the U.S. Department of Education, with the remaining funds being matched by the university and other partners in the project. UNCW is one of only two universities in the state to be awarded this grant and one of 75 nationwide during this grant cycle. The funding is retroactive to July 1.

The Preparing Tomorrow's Teachers to Use Technology (PT3) grant supports innovative teacher preparation program improvements.

UNCW's Technology for Reflection and Assessment Coalition is a significant initiative that will infuse technology throughout the Watson School of Education teacher preparation program, leading ultimately to significant restructuring in programs and courses.

"We want to make a difference in the public school classrooms by producing teachers skilled in assessment through technology at the Watson School of Education," said Cathy Barlow, dean of the school. "This grant will build on the relationship the university has developed with area public schools through its Professional Development System (PDS). It involves elementary, middle and high school teachers in New Hanover, Duplin and Brunswick counties."

"If you're going to prepare teachers you've got to be in the schools," she said. "With PDS, one of the perks is being able to be involved in these kinds of activities."

"We're able to tackle important issues and get schools involved because of the trust in the partnership and the product," said Karen Wetherill, assistant dean in the Watson School of Education.

"Our ultimate goal is that UNCW becomes a known site for innovative technologies that are tied to assessment. We want to give them assessment techniques that aren't laborious, that will help them and save time for instruction," Wetherill added.

Over the next three years, technology training will be provided to 1,154 pre-service teachers – students at the Watson School of Education who are studying to become public school teachers – and 136 faculty which includes full-time educators at UNCW as well as 20 area public school teachers who work with pre-service teachers and who are considered "extended faculty" at UNCW.

"The goal is to train the whole team," Barlow said.

They will learn to use the latest technologies, including handheld comput-

Szmant Leading Effort to Restore Coral Reefs

UNCW researcher Alina Szmant is leading one of the first attempts at restoring the health of Atlantic coral reefs as she and fellow researchers use laboratory-raised sea urchins on an experimental site at Little Grecian Reef in a Florida Keys National Marine Sanctuary. The sea urchins are critical to coral reef renewal because they eat coral-smothering algae.

Coral reefs throughout the Caribbean and Florida have undergone major degradation over the past two decades. Among the causes of decline are the loss of a previously abundant, grazing sea urchin, Diadema antillarum, in 1983, followed a few years later by increasing losses of live coral cover due to elevated seawater temperatures that cause corals to turn stark white before dying. This phenomenon, known as coral bleaching, is thought by some to be one of the first early-warning signs of global warming.

Without the large numbers of sea urchins to graze the algae down, the reef substrate has become progressively overgrown by fleshy seaweeds instead of the short turfs and crustose coralline algae that characterize healthy, heavily grazed coral reefs. The thick cover of seaweeds has prevented tiny coral larvae from recolonizing the reef substrate. Diadema has begun to recover in some locations in the Caribbean and these locations are beginning to show signs of reduced algal cover. It is hoped that coral recovery will soon follow. But so far Diadema shows little evidence of returning to the coral reefs of the Florida Keys, which have lost 50 percent or more of their coral cover over the last 10 years.

Tom Capo, director of the Experimental Fish Hatchery at the University of Miami's Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Science, has worked out the life cycle of the sea urchin and is now working on mass-culturing them for restoration. Margaret Miller, from NOAA's Southeast Fisheries Science Center, will lead a group of students and technicians from UNCW and University of Miami to monitor the behavior and health of the newly released sea urchins.

Szmant's research on the reproductive ecology of Caribbean reef corals will be applied to the second step in the restoration effort: that of raising millions of coral larvae from field-collected spawn, and then enticing the larvae to settle onto the reef areas where the Diadema were re-introduced. The reef-building corals targeted for restoration mass spawn during a few brief days each summer dictated by the lunar cycle. Szmant's years of work led her to learn how to predict the spawning dates, and now teams of divers can collect the spawn as they are released by the corals.

Szmant, Miller and Capo hope that their work will lead to new approaches to the ecological restoration of coral reefs, knowing that it will be future generations of humans who will reap the benefits of their efforts. This project is funded by National Sea Grant, and supported by the National Center for Caribbean Coral Reef Research at University of Miami, and the National Undersea Research Center at UNCW.

Focus on Faculty and Staff

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Joseph Pawlik, biological sciences and CMS, was an invited speaker at the 10th International Symposium on Marine Natural Product in Nago, Okinawa, Japan.

Wade Watanabe, CMS, was featured in the June issue of the Wrightsville Beach Magazine. The article "Something's Fishy," which focused on his aquaculture research, also included graduate students involved in the project. Watanabe and Robert Wicklund, academic affairs, were invited participants for a proposal meeting at the National Marine Recirculating Aquaculture Center organized by Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in Roanoke.

Warren Gulko, business, had the guest editorial "Number One Goal for All Businesses: How to Stay Alive" published in the July issue of Greater Wilmington Business.

John Cavanaugh, academic affairs, had the article "A Qualitative Study of Stress and Coping Strategies Used by Well Spouses of Lung Transplant Candidates" published in Families, Systems and Health. In addition, the fourth edition of Cavanaugh's book Adult Development and Aging will be published in 2002.

Dick Scott, business affairs, was a faculty member at the first Privatization in Higher Education Symposium sponsored by the National Association of College Auxiliary Services. Scott's topic, "Ongoing Management and Quality Control," dealt with forging proactive relationships with contractors of various outsourced services in higher education.

Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion, presented a session on Institutional Review Board analysis of research in the non-clinical setting at the U.S. Office of Human Research Protection conference in Charleston.

Frederick Bingham, physics and physical oceanography, co-authored "Diversity and Concentration of Ichthyoplankton in Shelf and Gulf Stream Waters in Onslow Bay, N.C.," which was presented by graduate student Andrea Quattrini at the 2001 meeting of the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists held at State College, Pa. The paper was also co-authored by David Lindquist, now deceased.

Peggy Turner, disability services, presented "Ensuring Equal Access to Technology for Students with Disabilities" at the International Association on Higher Education and Disability in Portland, Ore.

Alex Bocconcelli, CMS, received $9,200 from Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution for the project "Sirena 2001 – Sound Oceanography and Living Marine Resources."

Perri Bomar, nursing, received $66,178 from Kate B. Reynolds Charitable Trust for the project "Multidisciplinary Academic Nurse-managed Clinic in Navassa."

Joseph Pawlik, biological sciences, received $107,241 from the National Science Foundation for the project "RUI: Assessing the Chemical Defenses of Caribbean Invertebrates."

Rotary Clubs Seek Professionals for Exchange Program

Southeastern North Carolina Rotarians, District 7730, seek four outstanding non-Rotarian professionals to visit India January 2002 as part of the organization's Group Study Exchange Program.

While abroad, participants stay in Rotarians' homes and meet their professional counterparts. They will also give presentations to Rotary clubs and other groups about their home country.

People interested in applying should be employed full time in a recognized business or profession. Individuals in the age range of 25 to 40 are encouraged to apply. Applicants must live or be employed in Rotary District 7730 which includes Wilmington as well as an area ranging from Brunswick to Cumberland County and north to Onslow and Lenoir counties. For an application, contact Mimi Cunningham, group study exchange chair, at ext. 3171 or e-mail cunninghamm. For more information, vist the World Wide Web site www.rotary.org/foundation/educational/gse/forms.

ers, to develop effective classroom assessment practices. The training will begin this fall with elementary education faculty and focus on K-2 assessment in math and communication as well as secondary education PDS teachers and UNCW interns. The effort will expand into the arts and sciences in the spring.

The federal grant money cannot be used to purchase equipment, rather it will be used to buy "people and time," Barlow noted. For example, the university will use a portion to hire a technology coordinator, a Webmaster and video technician to support the project. Other funds will be used for training and travel.

"One of the goals is to pull together a network of people working on technology," Wetherill explained.

UNCW's partners in the coalition are Illuminations-Marco Polo Internet Project/MCI WorldCom Foundation; Duplin, Brunswick and New Hanover county schools; Southeastern Vision for Education (SERVE); N.C. Department of Public Instruction Evaluation and Mathematics/Science divisions; and the N.C. Board of Education.

Barlow and Wetherill are the project directors and served as chairs of the writing team, which included UNCW faculty Carol Midgett, Mahnaz Moallam, David Gill, Deborah Sherrill and Tracy Hargrove.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Seven Researchers Enter Million Dollar Club

The following seven UNCW researchers were inducted into the "Million Dollar Club" in recognition of receiving cumulative external grant funding totaling more than $1 million: Troy Alphin and Dan Baden, CMS; William Cooper, Robert Kieber and Steve Skrabel, chemistry; Michelle Howard-Vital, public service and extended education; and William McLellan, biological sciences. The Office of Sponsored Programs (formerly Research Administration) formed the club in 1994.

Involvement Carnival

The annual UNCW Student Involvement Carnival will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Aug. 29 on the Campus Commons. Departments and student organizations are invited to set up informational or display tables. To register, contact the Activities and Involvement Center by Aug. 13. Participation forms are available at www.uncwil.edu/stuaff/storgs. In the event of inclement weather, the carnival will be held Sept. 5.

Art Exhibit

The UNCW Arts in Action Series is hosting an exhibit by Wilmington artist Natalie Schorr as its inaugural display of the fall semester.

"Natalie Schorr: American Pictures" will be displayed Aug. 10 through Oct. 9 in the Warwick Center Lobby. A meet-the-artist reception will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Aug. 28 at the display.

Schorr, who has lived in the Wilmington area since 1992, earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from UNC Greensboro and a Master of Fine Arts degree from Carnegie Mellon University. For more than 10 years, she worked as an art director and set designer for motion pictures and television.

Seahawk Golf Challenge

Entries are open for the Seahawk Golf Challenge, an annual tournament to raise money for the Calvin Lane Scholarship Fund to benefit UNCW men's and women's golf teams.

The tournament is scheduled for Aug. 20 at River Landing Country Club. The entry fee is $125 per person and $500 per team. For more information, contact Grant Robbins or Jan Mann at ext. 4163.

YWCA Dialogues

Facilitators are needed to conduct the third round of YWCA Interracial Dialogue Study Circles. These sessions, which are held at various times, dates and locations in New Hanover, Brunswick, Pender and Columbus counties, begin in October. For more information, contact Amber Milliken at 799-6820.

WSO Auditions

The Wilmington Symphony Orchestra will hold auditions Aug. 21 in Kenan Hall. This 55-member orchestra is comprised of musicians from area schools, UNCW and the greater Wilmington community. Concerts under the direction of Steven Errante will be held in September, November and December. To request an audition packet, call 791-9262 or e-mail orchestramgr@wilmingtonsymphony.org.

Fund-raiser Postponed

"White Linen Night and Cool Jazz," a fund-raiser to benefit the Bellamy Mansion, set for Aug. 9 at the Forum Shopping Center has been postponed. The rescheduled date has not been announced.

Harper's New Work Focuses on Breakthrough Leadership

For the busy manager who dreams of being a visionary leader, Stephen Harper's latest book, The Forward-Focused Organization: Visionary Thinking and Breakthrough Leadership to Create Your Company's Future, provides the tools in an easy to read format.

This book describes how people need to change themselves so they can become visionary leaders, said Harper, professor of management and marketing.

"It (the book) encourages you to seize immediate challenges and take the initiative in creating your company's future," Harper said, adding that the book also explains in a straightforward manner how to incorporate the different areas of leading organizational change and emphasizes the need for people to explore new ideas and new approaches.

Harper explained that leaders and employees have important roles in creating a positive future for their company and by embracing "breakthrough" change, they increase the likelihood of success within their company.

Harper

Also included in the book are 100 insights on ways leaders frequently self-destruct and businesses drive away their customers. In planning, Harper said leaders often fail to stay abreast of technological developments in their fields. He also noted that leaders should not expect initiatives for change to be easy or for everything to go as planned.

This hardcover book, which retails for $27.95, will be available through the publisher Amacom. It can also be found at Amazon.com, Barnes & Noble Booksellers and the UNCW bookstore.

Diverse Voices

The Office of Campus Diversity's Newsletter for Students at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Vol. 3, No. 1, August 2001

Joanne E. Nottingham, Editor (910) 962-3832

The Office of Campus Diversity

The staff of the Office Campus Diversity (OCD) welcomes all students to campus. The Office of Campus Diversity is actually two units, OCD in UU 211 and the Upperman African-American Cultural Center (UAACC) in UU 208.

The staff of OCD is responsible for fostering an educational climate that promotes the academic and personal development of students from under-represented groups. We provide leadership to African-American, Hispanic-American, Native-American, Asian-American, GLBT students, and others.

We are involved with issues related to diversity and multiculturalism on campus and encourage students to take advantage of the university's extensive academic, cultural, social and economic resources.

Senior Sankofa

Senior Sankofa was established by the African American Graduates Association (AAGA) at UNCW to honor graduating Black students. The Office of Campus Diversity was pleased to be a founding sponsor at the Wise House event on May 17, 2001. "Sankofa" is a word in the Akan languages of West Africa that means "wisdom in learning from the past to build for the future" and symbolizes an African rite of passage. Its concept has been adopted to represent the unity among students of African descent and a Senior Sankofa gift is presented by AAGA to each student. The Senior Sankofa ceremony marks the tradition of students of color graduating from their lives at UNCW to their new careers.

The Upperman African-American Cultural Center

The Upperman African-American Cultural Center (UAACC) provides students, faculty, staff, and those in the greater Wilmington community with the opportunity to experience the rich heritage of African-Americans from artistic, historical, and other perspectives. The UAACC was named in honor of Dr. Leroy W. Upperman (1913-1996), a noted Wilmington physician who was very active in his community.

The major motivations behind his bequest of funds for the annual award of the Upperman Scholarship were his love of education and his dedication to the provision of opportunities for African-American students. Demetrius Sidberry was selected as this year's Upperman Scholar.

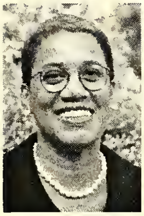
For information about the UAACC and its displays, programs, and video resources, please contact Ms. Helena Lee, UAACC Director, at 962-7087, email: leeh@uncwil.edu.

Protégé and Leader (PAL) Program

The PAL Program assists students in a variety of ways. It offers academic success strategies, opportunities for friendships to develop, and an outlet for you to express your views. Upperclassmen provide inspiration, guidance, and leadership to freshman minority students. Because of the weekly meetings, you feel bonded to the program, which increases your sense of belonging, one of the goals of the program. Meetings are once a week, beginning August 28, on Tuesdays @ 2 or Wednesdays @ 3 in the University Union, Room 201. Contact Ms. Linda MacRae at 962-7435 or by email at macrael@uncwil.edu.

Meet the OCD Staff

Joanne E. Nottingham...



(also called "DocNott") serves as director of the Office of Campus Diversity and supervises the Upperman African-American Cultural Center and its staff. Her primary responsibilities are to help UNCW assess the needs of minority students, collaborate with faculty and staff on diversity issues, promote the diversity within the UNCW community, and serve as a liaison to the greater Wilmington community. DocNott serves as ombudsperson and communicates issues, needs, and potential solutions that are of importance to the university and greater Wilmington communities. DocNott also serves as coordinator of the interdisciplinary minor in Leadership Studies and is a faculty member in the department of Communication Studies. A native of Long Island, NY, she is married to internationally known Wilmington artist, Harry L. Davis.

Helena J. Lee...

serves as Director of the Upperman African-American Cultural Center. She earned a B.A. in Political Science from the University of Buffalo (NY) and an M.A. in Special Education, Mental Retardation from Buffalo State Teachers College (NY). Lee's postgraduate studies include Business and Industry Training, Educational Administration and Community College Administration. Past positions include Teacher, Training Director, Affirmative Action Coordinator, Counselor, Interim Dean of Students, Director of Community Education and Director of the Commission on the Status of Women. Lee also serves as an elder of the Presbyterian Church (USA).

Linda J. MacRae...

serves as assistant to the director of the Office of Campus Diversity and is coordinator of the Protégé and Leader Program (see PAL column). A native of Wilmington, NC, she moved to Washington, DC and worked at the National Institutes of Health. MacRae has worked in many capacities in various offices at UNCW for more than fifteen years. She has a B.A. in anthropology from UNCW and will complete her Master of Arts in Liberal Studies in December. Using exploratory research, MacRae's thesis is the identification of common themes among fifteen stepmothers about the "stepmom" experience.

Lee Ann Dulatre...

joined the Office of Campus Diversity a year ago and serves as administrative secretary to the director. She provides essential support with the numerous functions of the office and the Upperman Center. Dulatre has made a significant contribution to the department with her enthusiasm and genuine caring for students. She is originally from Honolulu, Hawaii and earned her B.B.A. in 1994 from the University of Hawaii and began her study for a Master of Arts in Liberal Studies this year. Dulatre is engaged to Cory Barwick, a senior in the Cameron School of Business.

Editor's Welcome

Diverse Voices (DV) enters its third year with this edition. Diverse Voices is a newsletter that provides students and others with opportunities to express their thoughts and receive information about the programs and activities sponsored by the OCD. Although Diverse Voices is a great way to find out what the OCD is and does, we really appreciate readers coming in and talking with us. Please stop by UU 211 and UU 208 and meet the staff. Please send ideas, poems, articles, and artwork to Lee Ann Dulatre in UU 211 or email them to her at dulatrel@uncwil.edu.

University Statement on Diversity in the University Community

In an effort to address the needs of the total university community, the chancellor has endorsed the following statement of principle proposed by the Human Relations Advisory Committee:

As an institution of higher learning, the University of North Carolina at Wilmington represents a rich diversity of human beings among its faculty, staff and students and is committed to maintaining a campus environment that values that diversity.

Accordingly, the university supports policies, curricula and co-curricular activities that encourage understanding of and appreciation for all members of its community and will not tolerate any harassment of or disrespect for persons because of age, sex, color, race, religion, creed, national origin, sexual orientation, political belief or affiliation, disability, veteran status, marital status or membership or non-membership in any organization. Source: UNCW Undergraduate Catalogue 2001-2002, p 17.

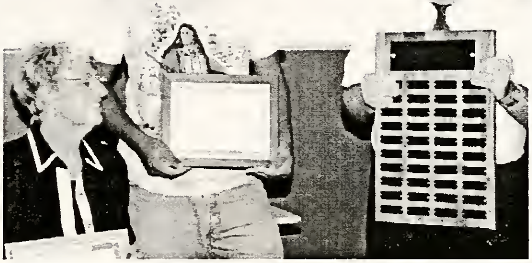
New Departmental Service Award Honors Long-time Employee Martha Jo Clemmons

Rising senior Chris Goings is the inaugural recipient of the Martha Jo Clemmons Departmental Service Award presented by the Psychology Department Aug. 3.

Goings, a student work assistant, was recognized by department chair Andy Jackson as "a leader among the student workers and someone who is willing to go beyond the call of duty. His experience and judgment are valuable to the department."

The award, created through a unanimous decision of psychology faculty, honors long-time administrative secretary Martha Jo Clemmons, who is on a medical leave of absence.

"For 23 years, Martha Jo has been the backbone of the department," said Jackson. "She strives to be a problem solver for all that come into the departmental office and is the resource to whom faculty and students turn for help. She's an excellent ambassador for the department."



Chris Goings, center, receives the service award named in honor of Martha Jo Clemmons, left. Andy Jackson, chair of the Psychology Department, holds the plaque that will be displayed in the department's office.

Goings said he was "absolutely thrilled" to be the first recipient of the award. "Martha Jo is a friend. She helped me make the transition in returning to school." Goings, who moved to Wilmington from Baltimore, Md., in 1993, is a non-traditional student pursuing a bachelor's degree in psychology. Following graduation, he intends to enroll in graduate school.

Clemmons, who attended the presentation along with her husband Robert and daughter Robin '01, was "amazed and shocked" to have the award named in her honor. The Wilmington native began working for the Psychology Department in July 1978. Robert Clemmons, a Wilmington native who retired from US Airways, is a courier at New Hanover Regional Medical Center. Robin Clemmons received a bachelor's degree in business administration in May.

Goings and future award recipients will have their names inscribed on a plaque that will be displayed in the Psychology Department's office.

Smith Wins Staff Award of Excellence

International students coordinator Heather Smith received the 2001 UNCW Staff Award of Excellence presented Aug. 9 at the 26th annual Service Awards Program in Wagoner Hall.

In a letter of nomination, Smith was called “the most dedicated public servant” that the nominator had known in more than 30 years of employment at institutions throughout the United States. “She makes Wilmington a special, perhaps unique, place for our students — international and domestic.”

Heather Smith

Smith was one of 16 nominees for award. The honor, presented annually, recognizes an employee who exemplifies outstanding state service, innovation, public service, human relations or safety/heroism. The other nominees were Dan Aspenleiter, research vessel captain for the Center for Marine Science; Michael Bianco, facility engineering specialist in the Architecture and Construction Office; Lee Brinkley, administrative secretary for the Watson School of Education; Samuel Chance, computer consultant in the Information Technology Systems Division; James Ford, grounds supervisor for the Landscape Services Department; Kay Fryar, director of human resources administration; Alnita Hannible, admissions assistant for the Graduate School and Research; Nicole Hinson, nutritionist for wellness services; Kimberly Holbrook, administrative secretary in the Department of Social Work; Pat Howey, associate director of athletics; Lori Leitch, office assistant in the Department of Biological Sciences; Sharon Lindgren, administrative assistant in the College of Arts and Sciences; Helen Rice, processing assistant in the Office of Housing and Residence Life; Michael Sheehan, systems programmer in the Department of Computing Services; and Glenn Taylor, field operations manager for the Center for Marine Science.

As this year’s recipient, Smith received a $1,500 award presented on behalf of the UNCW Board of Trustees, a reserved parking space for one year, three days of vacation leave, a presentation clock and a framed certificate. In addition, her name will be engraved on a plaque which is on display in Alderman Hall. The recipient of the UNCW Staff Award of Excellence is nominated for the Governor’s Award of Excellence.

Peg Bradley-Doppes, director of athletics, was mistress of ceremonies. In addition to the Staff Award of Excellence, the university recognized employees who achieved five-year anniversary levels of state service and retiring employees.

School of Nursing Promotes Professors

Perri J. Bomar and Bettie J. Glenn, professors in the School of Nursing, received promotions announced by Virginia Adams, dean of the nursing school.

Bomar

Bomar, who was named associate dean of research and community affairs, will direct the school’s research efforts and implement community partnerships aimed at health promotion. Through Bomar’s efforts, the School of Nursing has received several awards from various agencies including the U.S. Departments of Health and Human Services and Agriculture. One federal award the school received, a $150,000 economic development grant, will cover operating costs for the Fifth District Rural Health Clinic built by the town of Navassa. The nursing school will provide limited services and health assessment to families in the commu-

Commuter & Non-trad DAY 2001

The Seahawk Perch

Commuter & Non-traditional Student Services

August 22nd • 11am-2pm • University Union • North Porch

*Rain site: University Union Living Room

An Office of the Dean of Students service, the Commuter & Non-traditional Student Services Center (The Seahawk Perch) will host Commuter & Non-traditional Student Day! Approximately 80% of UNCW students are commuters and over 20% are non-traditional students or adult learners. The event is fair-style with booths, free food and refreshments. The intent of the event is twofold: to inform students of the services and programs that can assist them in their collegiate career and to heighten the awareness of the University community regarding commuter and non-traditional student issues. Nationally, commuter and non-traditional students are two of the fastest growing segments of the higher education population. As a staff or faculty member, you may find the following highlights about these students helpful:

Commuters

any student who does not live in a residence hall

- effective ways of reaching commuters are to: promote programs and services in a place with which commuter students are already familiar AND
- promote services through mediums that commuter students use such as e-mail and webpages (The Seahawk Perch has a listserv you may utilize as well)
- promote special programs and services at least one full week in advance
- keep in mind that some commuters find it challenging to return to campus and to stay abreast of campus-wide events and deadlines

students who entered college a year or more after high school graduation, are working to support themselves or their families, have dependents in their care; are married or divorced, are serving in the armed forces or are veterans. With their life experiences, non-traditional students often add an exciting and diverse dimension to the classroom and college experience

- most non-traditional students are commuters, and the highlights to the left also apply to them
- many of them juggle home life, career and schoolwork
- some may feel as though they do not "fit-in" and find navigating university life daunting
- as a group, these students tend to be focused in their studies and priorities

Seahawk Perch Services

- on-line housing list with roommate opportunities and rentals
- off-campus housing information
- advising for students experiencing transition difficulties
- childcare information and a baby-sitter list
- carpooling information
- referral services
- non-traditional student support
- educational programs
- weekly e-mail alerts of University and Seahawk Perch events (listserv)
- a concise Off-Campus Living Guide

ANNOUNCEMENTS

UNCW's Collaborative Computing Environment

Campus-wide ability to share information combined with state-of-the-art e-mail and scheduling capability is the goal of UNCW's Collaborative Computing Environment (CCE).

This initiative, developed by the Information Technology Systems Division (ITSD), will use Microsoft Outlook 2000 to enable the university to work in a collaborative, network-based environment from office desktop to laptop to meeting rooms, said Robert E. Tyndall, ITSD vice chancellor and associate provost.

"With Outlook, an employee could schedule a meeting with several colleagues by sending a request using the program's 'global address list,'" said Tyndall. "Each recipient will have the option to accept or reject the meeting or suggest an alternative time and date. In addition, Outlook's 'public folder' will allow the scheduler to distribute information to everyone prior to the meeting."

CCE, which has been in the planning stage for more than a year and has involved individual and organizational units from a wide spectrum of operating areas, will reach the campus in phases starting with a small, pre-determined pilot group. By June 2003, the entire campus will utilize Outlook's services which include: campus-wide directory services with single log-in capabilities for file sharing, e-mail and Web services; fully integrated message system with e-mail and calendar capabilities for individuals and groups and network-based virtual file and print sharing with access to data and service from anywhere via the Internet.

"CCE will provide faculty and staff with advanced capabilities in a new collaborative environment that will provide greater opportunities to advance the university's mission," said Kim Kelly, ITSD program development coordinator. The Department of Computing Services, under the direction of Bobby Miller, is leading this initiative.

This is the first in a six-part, yearlong series on how UNCW's Collaborative Computing Environment will advance the university's technology needs.

nity. Bomar, a noted researcher in family health, earned bachelor's and doctoral degrees from the University of Akron. Her master's degree was earned from Case Western Reserve University. Bomar joined UNCW in 1996.

Named associate dean of academic affairs, Glenn will develop and implement the school's undergraduate and graduate education programs which include maintaining national accreditation standards and state approval. A graduate of the BSN Program at Winston-Salem State University, Glenn earned a master's degree from the University of California at San Francisco and a doctorate in education from the University of South Carolina. Glenn, who served as curriculum consultant to Iwate Prefectural University in Japan, implemented a new total testing program for pre-licensure students to promote nursing students' success with the National Council Licensure Exam (NCLEX), a state-mandated test that is required before graduates can practice professionally. To date, 95 percent of the school's spring 2001 graduates passed NCLEX. Glenn joined UNCW in January 2000.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Steven Miller, NURC/UNCW, received $15,000 from Curtis and Edith Munson Foundation for the "Proposal to Enhance Marine Science Education Programs Using Unique Assets of NOAA's National Undersea Research Program."

David Webster, biological sciences, received $18,069 from Duke Engineering Services for the project "Threatened and Endangered Salamanders of the Nantahala Power and Light Project Lands, North Carolina."

Mike Mallin, CMS and biological sciences, contributed to "Dredging, Dunes and Development – Meeting Human and Ecological Needs in North Carolina," a report prepared by Save Our State that provides information and recommendations on the environment and coastal development.

Len Lecci, psychology, had the paper "Education and Training (not Principles) Govern the Actions of Psychologists" accepted for publication in the Journal of Forensic Psychology Practice. It was co-authored by honors student Jessica Snowden.

Martin Posey and Troy Alphin, CMS and biological sciences, had their research featured in the summer 2001 issue of Coastwatch, a magazine published by North Carolina Sea Grant.

Sridhar Narayan, computer science, presented the paper "Java RMI-based Approach to Web-enabling the ArcView RPC Server" at the 2001 ESRI International User Conference in San Diego. The paper, which was co-authored by Gene Tagliarini, computer science, will be published in the conference proceedings.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

IRB Proposals Due Aug. 31

The UNCW Institutional Review Board (IRB) will examine all research projects that involve human subjects proposed by faculty, students or staff for the fall semester at its Sept. 7 meeting. IRB-approved research from fall 2000 must be submitted for renewal.

IRB review and renewal forms are available from the Office of Sponsored Programs or through its Web site. Send one copy of the completed forms to Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion. Researchers will be notified if additional copies or electronic submission is required. Forms must be received by Aug. 31. Proposals that miss the deadline must wait until the IRB's January 2002 meeting for consideration.

Student Assistants

Departments should post all open student assistant positions with career services. E-mail job announcements to careersers@uncwil.edu or fax to ext. 4257.

Study Abroad Proposals

Proposals for summer 2002 study abroad programs are due in the Office of International Programs by Sept. 7. Applications are available from department chairs or from international programs by calling ext. 3685. Direct questions to Jim McNab or Elizabeth Adams.

Women's Center Director

UNC Wilmington is seeking a director for its Women's Resource Center (WRC) scheduled to open January 2002. Minimum requirements include tenure in an academic department at UNCW, associate professor status and a demonstrated commitment to women's studies. Organizational, administrative, leadership development, empowerment, networking and collaborative skills are also important and desired. Responsibilities include teaching two courses per semester; overseeing the daily operation and budget of the WRC; supervising paid personnel (a graduate assistant) and a volunteer staff; coordinating existing women's programs with student affairs, academic offices and community agencies; developing educational and outreach programs; facilitating research and assessment of issues of concern to female students, staff and faculty; and presiding over monthly meetings of the WRC Advisory Board. The director will continue her/his regular academic appointment (nine months) and will receive a month's summer stipend. The director will report directly to the provost's office; duties will begin spring 2002. Interested parties should send a letter of application, a curriculum vitae and a one-page vision statement focusing on the role that the director and center can play in furthering UNCW's overall mission to Kathleen C. Berkeley, history, by Sept. 5.

Call for Nominations for UNCW Honorary Degrees

Honorary degrees, which are granted by the faculty and trustees of UNCW, are the highest accolade the university can bestow on an individual who is not currently employed as a member of its faculty or staff. It is given to honor an individual who possesses outstanding qualities and talents, who has made exceptional contributions to the field of his or her endeavor and who exemplifies the highest standards of personal integrity and civic responsibility.

Nominations may be made at any time by any member of the university community. Forms are available at the Office of the Provost or the office of any academic dean or department. A single page supporting the candidate's qualifications should accompany the nomination form.

Additional information on the evaluation and approval process is available in the Faculty Handbook which is accessible on the World Wide Web at www.uncwil.edu/fac_handbook.

CAMPUS COMMUNIQUE

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

University Relations Vol. XXXI, No. 7 August 23, 2001 Phillip Brown, editor

Officials Give Update on Campus Construction/Renovation Projects

Starting this spring, the UNCW campus will begin the lengthy process of construction and renovation to utilize its $108 million share of the $3.1 billion higher education facilities bond approved by North Carolina voters in November 2000.

"During the past eight months, senior administrators have worked to select designers and to begin planning for five new buildings as well as renovations to seven buildings," said Bob Fry, special assistant to the chancellor for planning. "The first visible result of these efforts will occur soon after the start of the spring 2002 semester when we break ground for the facility which will house the Watson School of Education." This three-story building, which will be located north of Dobo Hall on Reynolds Drive, is UNCW's top priority, said Fry.

The second major project next year, slated to begin in the summer, will be the expansion and renovation of Westside Hall, said Fry.

"Personnel in Westside will be relocated to other areas including temporary on-campus facilities," said Fry. These temporary offices, which will be used throughout the multi-year construction period, will be located just west of the Small Business and Technology Development Center on Riegel Road.

Two subprojects to be completed within the next year include the replacement of external elements to the heating and air conditioning unit for Friday Hall and new seats and stage lighting in Kenan Auditorium.

In addition to selecting the location for the new education facility, senior officials are finalizing site plans for the planned creative arts building. The decision to build a privately funded performance venue is expected within see Renovation Plans on Page 6

Fall Campaigns Begin

The beginning of the new school year ushers in the start of our on-campus fund-raising efforts: the faculty-staff campaign, Seahawk Club campaign and the State Employees Combined Campaign.

We know that this year is especially difficult, with increases in benefit costs and funding constraints. With less funding coming from the state, private support for UNCW has an even greater impact. At the same time, the downturn in the economy places more people in need of the services supported by the State Employees Combined Campaign. These factors touch the lives of all of us in some way.

Your commitment to UNCW as an employee is highly valued and appreciated. When you receive the materials for these fund raising campaigns, I ask that you take a moment to consider making a gift.

– Chancellor James R. Leutze

Academic Year Starts with a Population Boom

UNCW's popularity continues to increase. Classes started Wednesday with a record number of incoming freshmen, approximately 2,000, and the largest-ever student body totaling 10,300.

The influx of returning students along with faculty and staff will notice several changes to the campus including the opening of a new classroom building.

Lakeside Hall, located next to Morton Hall, is now home to the Departments of Communication Studies (Room 226), Foreign Languages and Literatures (Room 279), Political Science (Room 268) and Social Work (214) and the Film Studies Program (Room 116). The phone numbers for departmental offices and faculty remain the same.

Returnees to campus also have to navigate a major change in traffic flow designed to ease congestion. Between the hours of noon and 6 p.m., left turns are prohibited from Wagoner Drive onto Randall Drive. For pedestrian traffic, countdown crosswalk signals have been installed at South College Road entrances at Randall and Hurst Drives. These signals digitally count down the seconds remaining before signal changes which will let pedestrians know how much time is left to cross the intersection.

The Office of Campus Diversity will host a reception for new and returning minority students from 4 to 5:30 p.m. Aug. 24 in the University Union Living Room.

New Year Brings New Challenges and Opportunities

by Provost John Cavanaugh

Cavanaugh

Happy New (Academic) Year! I hope that you were able to take some time off over the summer and enjoy some relaxation and recreation time away from campus. I have always found the beginning of a new academic year to be exciting and full of anticipation. That seems especially true this year.

This will be a year unlike any other in our history. As you know, we are faced with the most serious budgetary challenges in our history. But at the same time, we also have a tremendous opportunity to capitalize on our past success and rise to new heights.

Both the House and Senate agreed on 5 percent mandatory reductions to our permanent budget based on actual expenditures last year in several operational categories. There was agreement that we also have to make mandatory personnel reductions, but disagreement on the size of the cuts (between 2 and 2.8 percent, with a possibility that the remaining salary pool [including faculty] would be funded at only 98.5 percent of last year's level).

Clearly, these cuts create an extremely difficult situation for us. We must do everything we can to meet our primary mission of educating our students. But there is no question that every sector on campus will be impacted. As the budget picture continues to develop, we will keep you updated.

Challenging times usually bring out the best in people. That was what struck me most at the recent Service Awards Luncheon. UNCW is truly blessed to have people like you working to continually improve our quality. We have come a very long way in a very short period of time. I believe that over the next few years we can, through your continued excellence, continue that climb and become a national leader as a comprehensive university - the academic equivalent of Richmond, Wake Forest, Davidson or William and Mary.

I deeply appreciate all the efforts you have made and will continue to make as we go through these challenging times. I look forward to working with each of you this year, and to hear from you with suggestions, comments, or questions. Feel free to call ext. 3389, e-mail cavanaugh@uncwil.edu or write.

Register for MarineQuest Odyssey Programs

Registration is open for the following Odyssey Programs sponsored by MarineQuest in the Division for Public Service and Extended Education.

"Water Quality: North Carolina's Future," a presentation by Greg Thorpe, deputy director of the state's Division of Water Quality, is scheduled for 1 p.m. Sept. 19 at the Center for Marine Science. Advanced registration is required by Sept. 12 for this free event. Call ext. 3195.

Dolphin Watch and the History of Manteo will be held Sept. 14-16. Erin Barney, dolphin researcher, and Michael McOwen, Manteo history specialist, will lead a weekend of dolphin study and observation and a review of 200 years of coastal history. FEATURES

Campus Pipeline Allows Faculty to Reach Beyond Classroom

With the launch of Campus Pipeline, UNCW faculty will be able to reach beyond the walls of their classrooms and communicate with their students virtually anytime through the Internet.

"Faculty will be able to do a range of administrative tasks easily and conveniently through Pipeline," said Elizabeth Hosier, director of application services in the Information Technology Systems Division. "Some of the exciting features include the ability to set up class-specific, secure chat rooms and message boards for students with in class and to add Web links to course materials."

Opening Pipeline to faculty and students this fall is the result of a yearlong effort that included a pilot test during Summer Session II, said Thom Rakes, director of career services. Rakes and Hosier served as co-chairs of the Pipeline Implementation Team. During the past year, the team, comprised of students, faculty and staff, evaluated the use of this software, a student-centered portal developed by Campus Pipeline and Systems and Computer Technology Corp.

"Campus Pipeline will help unify our campus," said Hosier. "Because the portal integrates university's Student Information System (SIS), course-specific message boards, chat rooms and home pages are automatically created for each individual course section. Instructors will be able to offer on-line discussion sessions for each course and send e-mail to individual students or the entire class with a few simple mouse clicks or key strokes." Pipeline also provides seamless access to SeaWeb, the Web-enabled access to SIS for faculty and students.

Pipeline is designed to be user friendly and will provide a Web presence for all faculty members, said Hosier. Instructors will be able to add course-specific links to Web pages for their syllabi, reading lists and other relevant resources like audio and video clips.

Hosier and Rakes stressed that various methods would be available for faculty training. "Faculty will receive a training brochure in campus mail that provides information on how to use Pipeline," said Hosier. Rakes and Hosier are also scheduled to give several demonstrations to different faculty and student groups during the next few weeks.

"Pipeline offers our faculty many ways to enhance student learning," said Rakes. "The implementation team will provide every opportunity for faculty to learn how to incorporate this tool in their teaching arsenal."

Faculty interested in learning more about Pipeline or scheduling a demonstration should contact Sandie Sue in the Department of Application Services at ext. 3892 or e-mail sues@uncwil.edu.

Dean of Graduate School and Research Neil Hadley to Step Down Summer 2002

Neil F. Hadley, dean of the graduate school and research, will step down at the end of the academic year in June 2002, Provost John Cavanaugh announced yesterday. Hadley said his future plans are uncertain at this point.

Hadley came to UNCW in fall 1995 from Arizona State University where he was professor of zoology and former associate dean of the graduate college. He was the second dean of the UNCW Graduate School but the first administrator to combine managing the graduate school and research administration.

Hadley

Cavanaugh noted that Hadley had been brought to UNCW to "grow the university's graduate program and research mission, and both have happened." Cavanaugh praised the achievements of the past six years, citing an increase in the number of graduate degree programs from 12 in 1995 to 19 (in 25 majors) in 2001, the implementation of two post-baccalaureate certificate programs, and an increase in graduate enrollment from 456 in 1995-1996 to 750 in 2000-2001.

At the same time the graduate school has been growing, research funding has skyrocketed. "When Neil came to UNCW, 162 proposals were submitted for $21 million in requests," said Cavanaugh. "That year, 126 proposals were funded and the university received $4.5 million. In the 2000-01 school year, 214 proposals were submitted requesting $34 million; 161 awards were funded totaling $13 million.

"Under his leadership, UNCW has achieved a new level of funded scholarly research being done on campus, which benefits undergraduate and graduate students as well as faculty," he said.

Among his achievements, Hadley singled out his ability to convince the academic community that research is integral to the university's teaching mission. "We have made major strides in building graduate education and research to complement and strengthen UNCW's primary mission, undergraduate teaching," he said.

He also noted that several of the new graduate programs were designed to provide better links to the greater Wilmington community, for instance the very successful Master of Arts in Liberal Studies and post-baccalaureate certificates in gerontology and Hispanic studies.

One major program still on the drawing board is the Ph.D. in marine biology, for which planning has been completed. The proposal is being revised for resubmittal to the UNC Office of the President this fall. "We are hopeful that we will have the program

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Evgeny Dafner, CMS, had results of the Canary Islands Azores Gibraltar Observations project published in two publications. "Total Organic Carbon Distribution and Budget Through the Strait of Gibraltar in April 1998," which was co-authored by Richard Sempéré from Microbiologie Marine (CNRS/INSU, EP2032), Université de la Mediterranée, Marseille, France, and Harry Bryden from Southampton Oceanographic Center, England, appeared in Marine Chemistry. "Total Organic and Inorganic Carbon Exchange Through the Strait of Gibraltar in September 1997," which was co-authored by Melchor González-Dávila and Magdalena Santana-Casiano from Departamento de Química, Universidad de Las Palmas de Gran Canaria, and Richard Sempéré, was published in Deep-Sea Research I.

Dale Cohen and Len Lecci, psychology, had the paper "Using Magnitude Estimation to Investigate the Perceptual Components of Signal Detection Theory" published in the current issue of Psychonomic Bulletin and Review.

Marlene Rosenkoetter, nursing and gerontology, and John Garris, information systems and operations management, presented their research "Activities, Preparation and Retirement Adaptation" at the XVII Congress of the International Association of Gerontology – World Congress of Gerontology held in Vancouver, British Columbia. The abstract is published in Gerontology: International Journal of Experimental, Clinical and Behavioral Gerontology. Rosenkoetter also presented "A Model for Integrating Technology Mediated Education and Continuous Quality Improvement" at the 13th International Conference on Assessing Quality in Higher Education, Indiana University-Purdue and Glasgow Caledonian University in Glasgow, Scotland.

Marlene Rosenkoetter, nursing and gerontology, and Michelle Howard-Vital, public service and extended education, presented "Implementing Technology Mediated Education in a Multicultural Global Market" at the 18th International Conference of the World Association of Case Methods Research and Application held in Lund, Sweden.

Moorad Alexanian, physics and physical oceanography, presented the paper "Generation of Photonic Superposition States by Two-photon Absorption" at the 13th International Conference on Dynamical Processes in Excited States of Solids in Lyon, France. The paper was co-authored with Subir K. Bose of the University of Central Florida.

Margaret Parish, English, spoke about "Favorite Prize-winning Children's Books" at a luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club.

Karen Sandell, social work, and Sherman Hayes, university librarian, had the article "The Web's Impact on Social Work Education: Opportunities, Challenges and Future Directions" accepted for publication in the Journal of Social Work Education.

Karen Bullock, social work, had the article "Healthy Family Systems? The Changing Role of Grandparents in Rural America" published in the international journal, Education and Aging.

Ann Pabst, William McLellan and Erin Meagher, biological sciences, received $24,422 from the National Marine Fisheries Service for "Measuring Surface Body Temperatures of Dolphins in the Eastern Tropical Pacific: Is Thermal Stress Associated with Chase and Capture in the ETP-tuna Purse-seine Fishery?"

David White, chemistry, received $150,000 from the National Science Foundation for the project "Chemistry at the Interface Between Computation and Experiment: Chiral Recognition Using Novel Organometallic Complexes."

Jeff Hill and Bob Buerger, HPER, received $5,000 from N.C. Sea Grant for the project "Improving Managers' Understanding of the Impacts of Hurricanes on Barrier Islands Through the Application of On-line Technology."

Ami Wilbur, Michael McCartney and Craig Bailey, biological sciences, and Wilson Freshwater, CMS, received $97,000 from N.C. Biotechnology Center for the purchase of an ABI 3100 genetic analyzer for the DNA Analysis Core Facility at CMS.

Perri Bomar, nursing, received $22,715 from the Department of Health and Human Services for a project designed to increase the number and types of family nurse practitioners in southeastern North Carolina.

Darrell Irwin and Cecil Willis, sociology and criminal justice, received $38,674 from the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety for the "Study of the Effectiveness of the Wilmington Gun Violence Reduction Project."

Martin Posey and Troy Alphin, CMS and biological sciences, received $48,000 from Versar Inc. for the project "Beach Renourishment Effects on a Benthic Community."

Jimmy Reeves, chemistry, received $14,000 from the Department of Education for the project "Anytime, Anywhere Chemistry Experience."

Art Exhibit

The UNCW Arts in Action Series is hosting an exhibit by Wilmington artist Natalie Schorr as its inaugural display of the fall semester.

"Natalie Schorr: American Pictures" will be displayed through Oct. 9 in the Warwick Center Lobby. A meet-the-artist reception will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Aug. 28 at the display.

Women's Resource Center Director Sought

UNC Wilmington is seeking a director for its Women's Resource Center (WRC) scheduled to open January 2002. Minimum requirements include tenure in an academic department at UNCW, associate professor status and a demonstrated commitment to women's studies. Organizational, administrative, leadership development, empowerment, networking and collaborative skills are also important and desired. Responsibilities include teaching two courses per semester; overseeing the daily operation and budget of the WRC; supervising paid personnel (a graduate assistant) and a volunteer staff; coordinating existing women's programs with student affairs, academic offices and community agencies; developing educational and outreach programs; facilitating research and assessment of issues of concern to female students, staff and faculty; and presiding over monthly meetings of the WRC Advisory Board. The director will continue her/his regular academic appointment (nine months) and will receive a month's summer stipend. The director will report directly to the provost's office; duties will begin spring 2002. Interested parties should send a letter of application, a curriculum vitae and a one-page vision statement focusing on the role that the director and center can play in furthering UNCW's overall mission to Kathleen C. Berkeley, history, by Sept. 5.

Correction

Page Wingfield was inadvertently omitted from the list of Gerontology Program graduate students who won an award for outstanding poster at the sixth annual Summer Symposium on Aging.

Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are needed for the Piney Woods Festival, a major fund-raiser for the Arts Council of the Lower Cape Fear, scheduled for Sept. 1 and 2. Call Annette Coneglio Anderson at ext. 3547.

the next few weeks," Fry said. He added that planning progresses for a classroom building to house the Departments of Computer Science and Information Systems and Management Operations. If all goes as planned, this facility will open for classes in spring 2005. A Hoggard Hall addition, scheduled for completion in late 2004, will expand the Information Technology Systems Division. Increased space for the print shop and warehouse is also in the works, Fry said.

Capital construction and renovation projects will enable the university to accommodate more students, said Fry. This year's large freshman class, the start of an expected upward trend for the next decade, has prompted administrators to explore the need for additional on-campus housing.

"Additional on-campus housing is under consideration," said Fry. "A final decision is anticipated in the coming months." Expanding the University Union is also being discussed. "That facility was built to accommodate a much smaller campus population," he noted.

Even using modular facilities, the campus will still lack adequate space to accommodate growth and house personnel during periods when renovation projects are being completed, Fry said. "During the past nine months, several offices have moved to leased space off-campus," said Fry. Human resources and payroll are scheduled to move to 5051 New Centre Drive where they will join portions of university advancement, public service and extended education, enrollment affairs and two academic labs. According to Fry, additional personnel may have to be relocated to leased space before all bond-funded projects are completed.

"Senior officials, who are working with the university's facilities committee, are taking steps to minimize the impact of capital construction to the campus community," said Fry. "A Web site has been created that contains current information about university construction and renovation activities. As decisions are made, relocation plans are considered or as projects proceed, the site will be updated." This site is at www.uncwil.edu/facilities.

Seahawk Club Day at Westfield Shoppingtown

Westfield Shoppingtown will host Seahawk Club Day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Aug 25. The club will provide membership information, and there will be appearances by UNCW student-athletes, cheerleaders and the dance team. Basketball season tickets will also be on sale.

SEANC Raffle

The State Employees Association of North Carolina is selling raffle tickets to benefit its scholarship fund. The grand prize is a 2001 Ford Ranger pickup truck; first prize is a 25-inch color television. The drawing will be Sept. 8 at the SEANC convention in Greensboro. Tickets are $1 each. Contact Gloria Sasser, student development services, at ext. 3330 or Gloria Crowell, CMS, at ext. 2301.

King Mackerel Tournament

The Wrightsville Beach King Mackerel Tournament will be held Sept. 20-22. Proceeds benefit the Seahawk Club. For more information, call Natalie Thompson at ext. 7737.

Emmy Award Videotapes

News and documentary videotapes submitted to the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences for consideration of an Emmy Award are available for donation to UNCW. Faculty are encouraged to review a list of tapes in Randall Library by Sept. 7 and make recommendations for which videotapes to request. A wide selection of news and documentary topics by major programs including 60 Minutes, Dateline, National Geographic, is included on the list received by Maurice Martinez, specialty studies and a judge for the awards. For more details, contact Sherman Hayes at ext. 3271.

Masonic Display

Randall Library will host "Freemasonry on Display" from Sept. 1 through Nov. 1. The exhibit includes a variety of items such as Master Masons pins, Scottish rites hats and Eastern Star artifacts.

up and running by fall semester 2002," Hadley said.

While Hadley expects the graduate school to enter a period of consolidation due to tight resources, he expects to strengthen current degree offerings and become more innovative. Three programs he will be working on during his remaining year in office are a Master of Social Work, a computer information systems master's degree (a joint venture between the College of Arts and Sciences Department of Computer Science and the Cameron School of Business Department of Information Systems and Operations Management), and a graduate offering in environmental studies.

He is also proud of his record in increasing the level of graduate stipends from a low of $6,500 a year to the current $8,500 per year in the sciences. UNCW also added health care coverage for graduate students this year for the first time. In addition, under his tenure, graduate tuition remissions moved from 10 when he came to 56, and scholarship dollars for graduate students now total $100,000.

"This is significant because it allows us to do more in terms of recruiting," Hadley said. "It also manifests itself in our being able to attract better students and get them through more quickly because they can devote full time to their studies.

"I feel confident that the graduate school and the Office of Sponsored Programs are viewed as models for effectiveness, efficiency and customer satisfaction, because we are service units," he said as he commended his staff.

A national search will begin this fall to recruit Hadley's replacement.

Official Notices

Business Affairs Announces Personnel Changes

Effective Aug. 1, Dick Scott is the associate vice chancellor for business services. In announcing the appointment Tim Jordan, vice chancellor for business affairs, said, "Dick has served the university in a way that transcends the basic nature of his position which is management of auxiliary services. This change in title recognizes Dick's valued services to the university and the Business Affairs Division."

Jordan also announced the appointment of Edward R. Davis as associate vice chancellor for facilities. Prior to UNCW, Davis was director of facilities development at Yale University where he managed more than 200 buildings on 820 acres. Davis will start Sept. 24.

Retirement Reception

A retirement reception for Lou Leiner, project design and management, will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Aug. 30 in the physical plant conference room. Leiner is retiring after nine years of state service.

Application Services Forms on the Web

Application and approval project request forms for the Department of Application Services are available on the Web at www.uncwil.edu/das/project_request_forms.htm. Use these forms to request new departmental applications or to modify and improve existing system, Focus jobs or other changes. Direct questions to Sandie Sue at ext. 3892 or e-mail sues.

Study Abroad Proposals

Proposals for summer 2002 study abroad programs are due in the Office of International Programs by Sept. 7. Applications are available from department chairs or from international programs by calling ext. 3685. Direct questions to Jim McNab or Elizabeth Adams.

International Essay Contest

The Office of International Programs has guidelines for an international essay contest open to undergraduate students. The topic is "How Dialogue Can Better Prepare the Peoples of the World for the Challenges of Tomorrow." The winner will receive a $1,000 scholarship and round-trip airfare and accommodations for a five-day stay in New York to visit the United Nations. Essays must be submitted to international programs by Oct. 1. The contest is administered by the School of Diplomacy and International Relations at Seton Hall. For more information, call ext. 3685.

IRB Proposals Due Aug. 31

The UNCW Institutional Review Board (IRB) will examine all research projects that involve human subjects proposed by faculty, students or staff for the fall semester at its Sept. 7 meeting. IRB-approved research from fall 2000 must be submitted for renewal.

IRB review and renewal forms are available from the Office of Sponsored Programs or through its Web site. Send one copy of the completed forms to Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion. Researchers will be notified if additional copies or electronic submission is required. Forms must be received by Aug. 31. Proposals that miss the deadline must wait until the IRB's January 2002 meeting for consideration.

Call for Nominations for UNCW Honorary Degrees

Honorary degrees, which are granted by the faculty and trustees of UNCW, are the highest accolade the university can bestow on an individual who is not currently employed as a member of its faculty or staff. It is given to honor an individual who possesses outstanding qualities and talents, who has made exceptional contributions to the field of his or her endeavor and who exemplifies the highest standards of personal integrity and civic responsibility.

Nominations may be made at any time by any member of the university community. Forms are available at the Office of the Provost or the office of any academic dean or department. A single page supporting the candidate's qualifications should accompany the nomination form.

Additional information on the evaluation and approval process is available in the Faculty Handbook which is accessible on the World Wide Web at www.uncwil.edu/fac_handbook.

Awards Presented to Outstanding Professors at Fall Faculty Meeting

Ellerby and Martin

Philip Gerard, who was instrumental in the establishment of the Master of Fine Arts Degree at UNCW in 1996, was named the Board of Trustees Teaching Excellence Award winner at the fall faculty meeting Aug. 21. Phil Furia, department chair, accepted the award on his behalf.

He was among six faculty members recognized for their teaching excellence and scholarship. This spring the university honored five individuals with the Chancellor's Teaching Award and recognized six graduate students for their teaching excellence.

The UNCW Board of Trustees Teaching Excellence Award was given to Gerard in recognition of his significant contributions to higher education through dedication and service to students. He received a one-time stipend of $1,500 and a Distinguished Teaching medallion.

Gerard was also one of three faculty members to receive the Distinguished Teaching Professorship. The others were Janet M. Ellerby, associate professor in the English Department, and Sherrill V. Martin, professor in the Music Department. Distinguished Professorships recognize faculty who make outstanding contributions to teaching at UNCW and come with a three-year $5,000 stipend and a medallion. Nominations were solicited from each department or school and all full-time tenured faculty were eligible.

Awards for faculty scholarship were presented to Robert J. Kieber Jr., professor in the Chemistry Department, and D. Ann Pabst, associate professor in the Biological Sciences Department. These annual awards, which are given to up to three faculty members, recognize significant contributions to the university and the academic community through commitment to scholarship, research and creativity. Current full-time faculty are nominated for this honor by their peers and receive a $1,500 award.

Administrators Establish Way to Evaluate Bookstore Proposals

In an ongoing effort to improve services and streamline operational efficiencies, UNCW is evaluating the benefits of outsourcing services provided by the University Bookstore. University leaders have established a process to involve members of the university community in accepting and evaluating requests for proposals (RFPs) to potentially outsource the University Bookstore.

In order to fairly compare RFPs from private ventures with services currently provided by UNCW's bookstore, it was invited to submit an RFP and the deadline was extended to Sept. 21.

The RFP and subsequent addendums can be viewed at www.ips.state.nc.us/ips/srchclsd.asp. Once all proposals are received, they will be logged and turned over to the Bookstore Review Committee to examine and make recommendations to the vice chancellor for business affairs.

The review committee will be appointed by Tim Jordan, vice chancellor for business affairs. The committee will consist of three faculty, three staff members and three students with Nikki Howard, internal auditor, as the chair. Dick Scott, associate vice chancellor for business affairs who supervises bookstore operations, will be an ex-officio non-voting member who will assist the chair and committee in getting information and setting meetings with vendors. The committee appointments are now being made.

The review committee will determine criteria to evaluate any RFPs including the one from the bookstore. They will invite any or all vendors and the bookstore to make a presentation based upon their RFP and to answer any questions. The committee may also wish to talk with references at other campuses.

Within three to four weeks of receiving the bids, the committee is expected to make recommendations to Jordan who will review the findings, clarify any matters and make a final recommendation to Chancellor James R. Leutze for final approval. Target date for final approval is Oct. 15.

If it is decided to contract the bookstore, a transition plan will be put together with an anticipated start date no later than Nov. 15 to give the vendor sufficient time to assume control and service students and faculty for the spring 2002 semester. No changes will be necessary should the store remain under university management.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Szmant's Research Featured in Science News

UNCW researcher Alina Szmant was featured in the article "Wanted: Reef Cleaners – Can Spiny Housekeepers Save Beleaguered Caribbean Corals" published in the Aug.,25 issue of Science News. The article outlined how Szmant and fellow researchers released lab-raised sea urchins in the Florida Keys. The research was also mentioned in the Aug. 13 issue of BusinessWeek.

Scholarship Tournament

The Got-Em-On Live Bait Club of Carolina Beach will host its fourth annual Scholarship Golf Tournament this fall. The purpose is to fund scholarships for UNCW graduate students in marine sciences.

The tournament will be played at 1 p.m. Sept. 29 at the Cape Golf and Racquet Club off Carolina Beach Road. Call Randy or Sue Gibson at 458-9735 for more information. Previous tournaments have netted about $4,000 per year for the graduate marine science scholarship.

Mentors Needed

The Women in Leadership Mentoring Program is seeking volunteers to engage in meaningful dialogue and programs with a female student for one full year. For more information on this program, sponsored by the Center for Leadership Education and Service, contact Shelly Hoover at ext. 3877.

SEANC Raffle

The State Employees Association of North Carolina is selling raffle tickets to benefit its scholarship fund. The grand prize is a 2001 Ford Ranger pickup truck; first prize is a 25-inch color television. The drawing will be Sept. 8 at the SEANC convention in Greensboro. Tickets are $1 each. Contact Gloria Sasser, student development services, at ext. 3330 or Gloria Crowell, CMS, at ext. 2301.

Planet Ocean Lecture

Agricultural runoff and urban development are concerns for North Carolina coastal fisheries but the opposite seems true for Mediterranean waters fed by the Nile River according to Scott Nixon, a Rhode Island researcher, who will lecture at 7 p.m. Sept. 4 at the Center for Marine Science Auditorium.

In his talk "Replacing the Nile: Is Human Development Providing the Fertility Once Delivered by a Great River?" Nixon will discuss the 15-year decline of fisheries following completion of the Aswan High Dam in 1965, and the area's recovery during the 1980s.

Nixon, an estuarine ecologist, is professor of oceanography at the University of Rhode Island and a former director of Rhode Island Sea Grant. He earned a bachelor's degree in biology from the University of Delaware and a Ph.D. in botany and ecology from UNC Chapel Hill. In 1992, he received the B.H. Ketchum Prize from Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute for excellence in coastal research.

Nixon's lecture is free and open to the public. Due to limited seating, reservations are required. Call ext. 2300.

Blood Drive

The Center for Leadership Education and Service is sponsoring a blood drive from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Sept. 6 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. For more information, call ext. 3877.

Faculty/Staff Buffet

Faculty and staff buffet luncheons return Sept. 4 in a new location – the Seahawk Grille in the Warwick Center. The all-you-care-to-eat buffet, served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., costs $5.25 and includes dessert and beverage. Tuesday's menu features Greek chicken, spanakopita, lemon and garlic potatoes, peas with pearl onions, steamed mixed vegetables, assorted salads, rolls, desserts and beverages.

Art Exhibit

"Seasons of Salt," an exhibit by artist and poet Barbara Pierce, will be displayed Sept. 10 through Nov. 19 in the University Union Living Room. A meet-the-artist reception will be from 6 to 8 p.m. Sept. 13 at the display.

NURC Deep-sea Efforts

Tom Potts and Andrew Shepard, NURC/UNCW, are coordinating the first leg of NOAA's Islands in the Stream South Atlantic Bight expedition which is exploring deep reefs and hard-bottom communities along the continental shelf from central Florida to North Carolina. Steve Ross, NERR, is coordinating the exploration of the areas designated Cape Fear Terrace and the Point off Cape Hatteras.

Graduate Thesis Defense

Melissa Quick, a graduate student in biological sciences, will defend "Virulence Profiling and Genetic Heterogeneity Assessment of Environmental and Commensal Isolates of Candida albicans" at 2 p.m. Aug. 31 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Ed Lab Tutoring

The Education Lab will tutor kindergarten through ninth grade students in elementary reading and math Sept. 10 through Nov. 21. UNCW students will be matched one-on-one for these tutoring sessions which will be held between 3 and 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday in King Hall, Room 203. Fees are $187.50 for 25 hours of elementary reading/math, $150 for 20 hours of elementary reading and $75 for 10 hours of elementary math or 10 hours of middle grades reading. For more information, call ext. 3633.

UNCW Staff Member Joins BCC Trustees

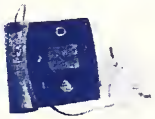
AEDs, the key to surviving a Sudden Cardiac Arrest

Sudden Cardiac Arrest (SCA) is a leading cause of death in the United States. It claims nearly 350,000 lives each year (1,000 persons each day). In fact, the nationwide average for survival after a SCA is less 5%. It is estimated that an additional 35,000 lives a year could be saved if a shock was delivered in the first four minutes to restore normal heart rhythm.

Unfortunately, 75% of all SCAs occur outside hospitals in places such as airports, jails, shopping malls, sports coliseums, golf courses, the workplace or universities, where doctors are not available to deliver a shock. Several SCAs have occurred at UNCW in places of assembly as well as classroom buildings.



Welcome technology age! The equipment to shock a heart and restore it to normal rhythm has progressed from the emergency room to the ambulance and now to first responders on the scene. The equipment is known as an Automatic External Defibrillator or AED. Many industries, businesses and government agencies are now placing AEDs in their facilities to reduce the deaths from SCA.

In addition to better technology, two other factors have increased the availability of AEDs to first responders. First is the price, AEDs are now available at a cost of $2,500 or less. Second is the expansion of "Good Samaritan Laws" to include AED use.

Last year North Carolina became the 48th state to expand its Good Samaritan Laws to protect first responders (who have completed a simple First Aid/CPR/AED class) from liability when providing care.

Currently there are five AEDs located on the UNCW campus. Two with Athletic Trainers, one with University Police, one at the Student Recreation Center and one on the Research Vessel Cape Fear. EH&S would like to see an AED available in every University Police vehicle and in each place of assembly but, funding is not yet available. EH&S has been pursuing several grants for AEDs in these locations. In fact, EH&S partnered with the Student Recreation Center to apply for the Friends of UNCW grant that was awarded in May. This grant was the single largest grant awarded by Friends of UNCW and we were thrilled to fill this need with grant funding. If you would like to pursue purchasing an AED through departmental funds or through a grant, contact Stan Harts at 962-3108 or e-mail, hartss@uncwil.edu.

Beginning this month, CPR/First Aid courses offered by EH&S include AED training. The course time will not increase with this restructuring by the American Red Cross. It takes about eight hours (in two separate four-hour sessions). The cost is $35. Participants will receive an American Red Cross certification card, training materials, booklets, and a breathing barrier for rescue breathing. To enroll, contact Joan Greene, 962-3057 or e-mail, greenej@uncwil.edu.

http://www.uncwil.edu/safety/

The EH&S website provides quick and easy access to safety and environmental information at UNCW. The website is accessible from the main UNCW home page by clicking on Administration and then selecting Environmental Health and Safety. The following information is currently available on the website.

Workplace Safety: Here you will find policies and programs managed by EH&S are published under Workplace Safety. Currently the Hazard Communication program and the Light Recycling program are accessible in PDF and Microsoft Word formats.

Waste Management: The following waste management programs are available on the website:

- Hazardous waste disposal: Allows the user to access the appropriate form by selecting Lab Safety or Waste Management and then clicking on the Hazardous Waste Transfer Form. Complete the form on-line and electronically submit the form to EH&S. The container must be labeled with the chemical composition, generator name, and accumulation start date. When EH&S receives the electronic submission, we will pick the waste up from the lab.

- Waste container requests: 5 gallon metal pails for hazardous waste storage and 5 gallon plastic pails for broken glass can be requested electronically under the Waste Management section.

- Biohazard waste disposal: A biohazardous waste pick-up can be requested under the waste management section.

Lab Safety: The following articles on chemical safety are available under lab safety:

- Peroxide forming compounds
- Safe use of perchloric acid

Please visit the EH&S website and if you have any comments or suggestions, contact Diana Morgan, extension 7017 or e-mail, morgand@uncwil.edu.

Keep Eye Safety in SIGHT!

Eye or face Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) protects employees from the following:

- Flying particles
- Molten metal
- Liquid chemicals
- Chemical gases or vapors
- Harmful light radiation

Side shields or goggles are needed where flying objects are present. Tinted or variable tint lenses may be used to provide better and more comfortable vision for employees who go back and forth from bright outdoors to a dark indoor area. Eye protectors need to be worn over prescription lenses (contacts or spectacles) when the prescription is not incorporated in the eye protector. Eye and face protectors need to be marked to facilitate identification of the manufacturer; e.g. components of spectacle frames need to be marked with the ANSI Z-87 logo and lenses must bear the manufacturer's mark.

Nonprescription safety glasses are available through Central Stores.

If your supervisor determines that you need prescription safety glasses, EH&S can assist you in obtaining them.

- You must obtain and provide your prescription and your department will pay for your prescription safety glasses and the dispensing fee.

- Under the provisions of the State Contract you can use the designated local vendor to assist you with your frame selection and fittings. Permanent side shields are required under the current state contract.

- When you have made your selection, return the completed order form to your department where it will be sent to the contracted optical company, with your department's purchase order. The glasses will be made and returned to the local vendor for your final fitting and pickup. This takes seven to ten days.

To obtain and information packet, please call Joan Greene at extension 3057 or e-mail, greenej@uncwil.edu.

HAZARDOUS WASTE DISPOSAL

Ever wondered if a material was hazardous or how to dispose of it on campus?

Hazardous Waste Determination

At UNCW, laboratories are our largest generators of hazardous waste, although a variety of other departments also generate waste occasionally. A material is considered hazardous waste by the United States Environmental Protections Agency (USEPA) if it material meets one of the following criteria, it is:

- ignitable (flash point <140 degrees Fahrenheit)
- corrosive (a pH of less than 2 or greater than 12.5)
- reactive with water
- explosive
- one or more of "listed" hazardous chemicals regulated by EPA.

If you need help determining if a substance is a hazardous waste, please contact Diana Morgan at extension 7017 or e-mail: morgand@uncwil.edu.

UNCW Hazardous Waste Management Program

Once the researcher has determined they have a hazardous waste that needs proper disposal, one of the following options should be utilized:

OPTION 1

- Complete a Hazardous Waste Transfer Form and submit it to EH&S. To obtain hazardous waste transfer forms, please contact Diana Morgan at extension 7017 or e-mail, morgand@uncwil.edu.
- After completing the three-part form, the original (white) is sent to EH&S, the yellow is kept by the researcher, and the pink is attached securely to the waste container.
- After reviewing the form, EH&S will pick up the hazardous waste from the lab, in less than one week, and place it in a waste consolidation area.

OPTION 2

- Submit the Hazardous Waste Transfer Form to EH&S electronically. At the EH&S website, http://www.uncwil.edu/safety/index go to Lab Safety, click on Hazardous Material Transfer Form and fill out completely and send to EH&S electronically.
- Label the waste container with the following information: chemical composition, generator name, and accumulation start date.
- When the information is received EH&S will pick up the hazardous waste from the laboratory and place it in one of the waste consolidation areas.

The information on the Hazardous Waste Transfer form is necessary to determine the proper method of disposal. Most of the hazardous waste generated is either recycled, combined with other compatible materials for fuel blending, or incinerated at a hazardous waste incinerator. At a minimum, we need to know the waste composition and the generator's name and location.

Please take the responsibility of ensuring any hazardous waste generated in your lab is disposed of in a safe and proper manner. EH&S is here to help you in any way possible. Please call extension 7017 with any questions or for other needed information.

Something in the Water?

Recently signs appeared on several water fountains around campus reading "PLEASE DON'T USE THIS WATER SOURCE BEFORE 9:30 AM." This caused quite a stir with persons asking "why is the water safe to drink at 9:30 and not before?" After contacting several possible sources of the sign, it was determined that it was not placed by Physical Plant personnel, contractors working on campus, or the City of Wilmington. Actually, a summer camp group conducting experimental analysis on water that had remained in pipes over night posted the signs.

To eliminate any concern, EH&S would like to make the following comments: UNCW receives its water from the City of Wilmington and the water meets the analytical and water quality standards of the Clean Water Act. EH&S receives copies of the more extensive analytical tests from the City of Wilmington and will sample water if there is reason to believe pollutants are present.

In the future, if you need to post signs restricting water use on campus, please to do the following first: notify Physical Plant (extension 3101) and tell them the reason the sign is being posted, and always include a name and telephone number on the sign to contact with questions.

SURPLUS in the Hallways

UNCW has been cited on several recent fire inspections for obstructing the exits with combustible materials stored in the hallways of buildings. Many of these items are being held for surplus.

EH&S works with Moving Services to identify materials that have been stored in hallways but, we often find the problem lies in the process. If you have surplus items for pickup please consider the following:

- Do not store surplus items in hallways or lobbies. Plan to store these materials elsewhere while awaiting pick up by Moving Services.
- Be explicit on the exact location of the equipment so it can be located by Moving Services
- Complete the Movable Equipment form as soon as the items are designated as surplus and forward the copies to the appropriate locations.
- Attach a copy of the Movable Equipment form to the surplus item so it can be recognized as surplus property and EH&S and Moving Services can identify it as an issue because it has taken an unacceptable period of time to move.

Thank you for your help in keeping our exits unobstructed, safety is everyone's responsibility.

For more information, or a demo
contact Sandie Sue at sues@uncwil.edu, or call x3892

A. NOW YOU CAN

INTERFACE WITH YOUR STUDENTS AND YOUR CAMPUS

http://pipeline.uncwil.edu

With Campus Pipeline you can:

Have a personal online information center with UNCW news and information. The Campus Pipeline platform generates an "intelligent" homepage that delivers announcements and access to information and services that are relevant to faculty.

Faculty will be able to do a range of administrative tasks easily and conveniently and have no sign-in access to SEAWEB.

Create course-specific links to web pages that you have already created, use, etc. with just a simple click. These links can be used for syllabi, reading lists, and other relevant resources, like video or sound clips.

Post assignments to course-specific Bulletin Boards.

Utilize class "chat" capabilities. Instructors will be able to extend the walls of the classroom by offering online discussion sessions and office hours exclusively to members of their classes.

UNCW The possibilities are endless.

Dragna Elected President of Coastal Horizons BOT

James Dragna, director of student development services, was installed as president of the Board of Trustees of the Coastal Horizons Center at its annual dinner meeting Aug. 28.

Coastal Horizons Center Inc. promotes choices for healthier lives and safer communities by providing professional assistance to those in need of prevention, crisis intervention, criminal justice alternatives, community outreach and substance abuse services.

Dragna

Dragna, a licensed professional counselor, said it was a great honor for him to be named as president as well as a tremendous personal and professional opportunity. "This is one of many examples of how the university and the community at large integrate services, and it helps the university as we develop outreach services on and off campus," he said.

For instance, the Rape Crisis Center, a program of Coastal Horizons, is an integral part of UNCW's response team to incidents of sexual assault on the campus. The Rape Crisis Center has trained UNCW counselors and university police to work with victims. Another example is that interns in psychology are regularly placed in Coastal Horizons and some have gone on to work there professionally.

He also commented on a joint project underway with Duke University looking at an alternative to methadone treatment for substance abusers. "This cutting edge intervention lends itself to the involvement of UNCW faculty to do compatible research as well."

During his presidency, Dragna will focus on three areas: to help Coastal Horizons transition into its new 23,000-square-foot facility on the corner of Shipyard Boulevard and Carolina Beach Road which is scheduled to open in September; to continue the excellent reputation this program has developed in its service to Southeastern North Carolina; and to lead Coastal Horizons as it develops a service to train professionals working in this field here and across the United States.

World Champ Among Entering Freshman Class

Pinkston

A graduate of River Hill High School, Pinkston ended 2000 ranked number one in the world in American-style Tae kwon do in Black Belt Boys Traditional Forms (for ages 16 and 17) by the North American Sports Karate Association (NASKA). This year, Pinkston advanced to the Men's Division (for ages 18 to 29). He is ranked third in the world in Men's Hard-style Forms and Hard-style Weapons vying against opponents with more years in competition. Cable sports network ESPN2 will air an event at which Pinkston and his three teammates from Team Charlie Lee competed at 8:30 p.m. Aug. 31.

Kieber's research interests in ozone depletion and global warming are central areas of scholarship within chemistry and environmental sciences and advance the concerns of today's global society.

Pabst is an internationally recognized expert on marine mammology. She has authored more than 20 peer-reviewed papers, twice written chapters for textbooks on the subject and received 21 separate grant awards years totaling more than $1.6 million in funding

Dillaman

Richard M. Dillaman, professor in the Biological Sciences Department, was given the Graduate Mentor Award which recognizes faculty who have excelled at teaching at the graduate level and who have an established record of mentoring students who earned master's degrees. He received a $250 award and a certificate.

Chancellor's Teaching Excellence Award for 2001 were awarded this spring to: Sally P. Cummings, associate professor, School of Nursing; Michael D. White, associate professor, creative writing; L. Drew Rosen, associate professor, information systems and operations management; Sherrill V. Martin, professor, music; and William J. Bolduc, associate professor, communication studies. This award, established in 1991, recognizes faculty who demonstrate outstanding teaching in the classroom. Each recipient received a $750 award and medallion.

Kieber and Pabst

Graduate Teaching Excellence Awards for 2001 went to Thomas B. O'Shaughnessy, earth sciences; Lauren S. Blanchard, English; Patricia M. Croker, English; Kathryn A. Hayslett, education; Vicki S. Stegall, biological sciences, and Mark V. Wainright, chemistry. Recipients were honored for demonstrating exceptional competence in teaching and mentoring undergraduate students.

Employee Discount Program

Faculty, staff and students are eligible for a discounted membership to Sam's Club. The cost is $20 and includes a primary card as well as one household and one add-on card. This is a $30 savings.

Enrollment applications will be accepted from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sept. 15 and 5 to 8 p.m. Sept. 17 at Sam's Club on South College Road. To enroll, bring your university ID to the UNCW hospitality table. Cash or checks will be accepted. For more information, call ext. 3274.

Chancellor's Achievement Awards Reception

The Chancellor's Achievement Awards reception will be held from 1 to 2 p.m. Sept. 7 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. The campus community is invited to attend this reception which honors the 405 spring semester students who received all A's while carrying a minimum of 15 credits.

Tai Chi Classes

Beginning Tai Chi classes will be offered from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays in the Student Recreation Center training room starting Sept. 11. The cost is $30 per month. For more information, contact wellness services at ext. 4137.

Windows on the World

The Office of International Programs will sponsor "Windows on the World: Study Abroad for a Semester or a Year" from noon to 2 p.m. Sept. 4 in the University Union, Room 100. This event will highlight UNCW's semester and year-long study abroad programs. UNCW students who have participated in the program as well as exchange students from partner universities will also attend. For more information, call Elizabeth Adams at ext. 3685 or e-mail adamse.

National Payroll Week

National Payroll Week, which honors America's 142 million wage earners and the professionals who pay them, is Sept. 3 through 7.

Senior Leadership Experience Program

Nominations are sought for participants in the Senior Leadership Experience Program sponsored by the Center for Leadership Education and Service (CLES). The program, modeled after Leadership Wilmington, will broaden seniors' awareness of current social issues in topics such as arts, technology, public education, politics, media, healthcare, environment and diversity. Sessions will be held from 4 to 6 p.m., Tuesdays, Sept. 18 through Nov. 27. Students must attend all sessions to successfully complete the program.

Faculty and staff should e-mail seniors' names to Shelly Hoover at hoovers. CLES will contact students to encourage their participation. The program is limited to 20 enrollees. For more information, call ext. 3877.

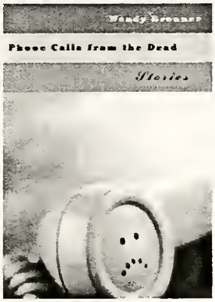
Creative Writing Professor's Short Story Collection Out in Bookstores This Month



Society misfits and quirky, supernatural relationships are at the core of Phone Calls from the Dead, a new short story collection by Wendy Brenner, assistant professor of creative writing.

"Our relationship with the unknown or supernatural can manifest itself in our lives through the most mundane objects," said Brenner, named one of 25 fiction writers to watch by Writer's Digest. "These stories illustrate how people, at their most desperate and isolated times, can still find moments of grace in the world."

Among this collection of 10 stories, published by Algonquin of Chapel Hill, is "Nipple," a story about a teenage girl who claims to have her uncle's nipple in an envelope. An excerpt from this story appears in the current issue of Seventeen. The Sept. 3 edition of People said Brenner's "offbeat stories" are "worth a look."

According to Algonquin, Phone Calls from the Dead is "an extraordinary book about ordinary people (except for the story told by a squirrel) caught in extraordinary circumstances. Brenner's voice is reminiscent of Lorrie Moore and a bit of Rick Moody with a twist of Woody Allen."

see Phone Calls on page 3

Cinematographer/Adventurer to Lecture

High altitude cinematographer David Breashears is the opening speaker of the 2001-02 Leadership Lecture Series "Beyond Boundaries" sponsored by the Campus Activities and Involvement Center. Breashears' multimedia presentation will be at 7 p.m. Sept. 18 in Kenan Auditorium.

Combining his skills in climbing and cinematography, Breashears led the first film team to attain IMAX film images from the top of Mt. Everest in May 1996. The film Everest, directed, photographed and co-produced by Breashears, chronicles this feat.

On May 10, 1996, on the third of four successful climbs up Mt. Everest, Breashears and his team stopped filming to assist several stranded climbers to safety during a blizzard. He and his expedition were later recognized for their efforts. After regrouping, Breashears and his team achieved their goal of filming from the top of the world on May 23.

Admission is free for faculty and staff and students; however, tickets are required for admission. Tickets are available at the University Union information desk or the auditorium box office. Admission for the public is $7.50.

UNCW Budget Authority Extended for September

Averting a governmental shutdown by six hours, the North Carolina General Assembly approved a continuing budget resolution Aug. 29 that provided UNCW and other state agencies budgetary authority through Sept. 28.

The resolution also provided UNCW with increased enrollment funding for on-campus and distance learning students, said Mark Lanier, special assistant to the chancellor.

Final action on the budget is expected later this month, Lanier said.

"On Thursday, the House of Representatives approved the Educational Revenue Act which calls for a one-half cent local option sales tax, an income tax increase for top wage earners, a sales tax on liquor and other tax changes that will generate approximately $300 million next year and $390 million in 2002-03. This bill is now under consideration by a House and Senate conference committee."

Once the budget is finalized, Lanier said the anticipated state employee salary increase of $625 could be awarded.

"It is anticipated that UNCW, like the other UNC system institutions, will be required to make the budget cuts that were published in previous issues of the Campus Communique," said Lanier. "We've already identified these reductions, and additional cuts are not expected. If needed, they will be discussed in future updates."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Feminist Colloquium

The Feminist Colloquium will meet for a brown-bag lunch from 12:20 to 1:20 p.m. Sept. 13 in the Faculty Common of Morton Hall. The reading "Ms. Goes to College," which is from the August/September issue of MS., will be discussed. A copy is on reserve in Randall Library under Ellerby/Feminist Colloquium.

Faculty/Staff Golf Tournament Scheduled

The annual faculty/staff golf tournament will be Oct. 12 at Olde Pointe Golf and Country Club. The cost is $32 per player. Individuals who sign up will be assigned to teams. Trophies will be awarded for first- and second-place teams in two flights. Door prizes and a meal is also included. The second Doug Johnson Memorial Award will also be presented. For more information, contact Jim Harris, housing and residence life, at ext. 3405 or e-mail harrisj.

MESSAGE FROM THE CHANCELLOR

Dear Friend of UNCW:

The world of education is changing quickly with new technology and new ways of communicating. The mission of education, however, never changes – to enlighten and impart knowledge and skills. I believe education of the mind is one of the most important elements of human development, from birth through the senior years of adulthood. The university offers many lifelong learning opportunities to develop the health of the mind, body, and spirit through our Division for Public Service and Extended Education.

Within these pages are programs that will challenge your mind, rejuvenate your spirit, and develop your talents. Through offerings in the arts, computers, languages, and travel, the university brings the world to you. With WebU, you can choose from more than 1900 online noncredit and certificate courses without leaving the comfort of your home .

The Tabitha Hutaff McEachern Lifelong Learning Series features a distinctive assortment of entertaining and educational lunch and dinner programs. In addition, the Lifelong Learning Society and Adult Scholars Leadership Program offer another avenue for discovery and knowledge.

Take the first step of a lifelong learning journey into a world of excitement, education, and challenge.

As always, thank you for your interest and support.

With all best wishes,

James R. Leutze

"Bring a Friend or Two" Tabitha Hutaff McEachern always brought her friends to the lunches and dinners. If you bring a new friend with you to any lunch or dinner, please take $2 off both tickets (with the exception of the Elliot Engel program). A new friend is someone who has never attended the speaker series at the university.

Dinner Programs

Topsy-Turvy: Life in Wilmington During the Civil War
with Dr. Chris Fonvielle

UNCW lecturer and author of several books on the Civil War, Dr. Chris Fonvielle examines civilian life as well as cultural and economic affairs in Wilmington with the war as a backdrop. He pays close attention to the town's transformation as a consequence of blockade-running. He also discusses the role of women, slaves and free blacks in war-torn Wilmington. Join Dr. Fonvielle in this program on Wilmington's interesting and strategic Civil War history!

6-8 p.m. Thursday, October 4 • Fee $25 • Register by October 1

"Beautiful Music: A Classical Concert" with Flutist Mary Jo White and Pianist Domonique Launey

Join us for an evening of classical flute and piano compositions and interesting stories about the men who wrote them. Wilmington performing artists, flutist Mary Jo White and pianist Domonique Launey, will play works by Bach (the master), Aaron Copland (America's favorite native composer), and Oliver Messiaen (a fascinating Frenchman who drove ambulances for the French Resistance in World War II). Enrich your own musical experience and enjoy a delicious dinner.

6-8 p.m. Tuesday, November 13 • Fee $25 • Register by November 9

How William Became Shakespeare
with Dr. Elliot Engel

Dr. Elliot Engel returns once again with a light and enlightening look at the author whom most critics call the greatest writer in English. In this witty and penetrating lecture, Dr. Engel explains the fascinating reasons why Shakespeare's beautiful language and brilliant characters have delighted audiences for more than 400 years. Dr. Engel, who visits us each semester, is extremely popular. Make your reservations early!

6-8 p.m. Thursday, December 6 • Fee $28 • Register by November 30*

* In order to reserve a table of eight for the Engel dinner, one party must pay (by check or credit card) for the entire table. If a group is greater than eight, please specify your exact numbers to arrange additional tables and seating.

Luncheon Programs

Capturing the Spirit of the Carolinas with Brownie Harris

Renowned photographer Brownie Harris returns as the new publisher of the former Wilmington Magazine renamed Capturing the Spirit of the Carolinas to share stories he has done about journalist David Brinkley, sports star Marion Jones, actor Pat Hingle, and others he has met over the course of a year since he purchased the magazine. He will bring some of his favorite slides, too, which are art unto themselves. Come and enjoy a pleasurable afternoon with a most talented photographer/publisher.

Noon - 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, September 19 • Fee $16
Register by September 14

Bless Your Heart, Tramp
with Celia Rivenbark

Wilmington's own author and columnist, Celia Rivenbark, will give us a hilarious look at Southern folks-up close and personal. Her new book, Bless Your Heart, Tramp, has received great reviews. She will tell us why we have to keep a "funeral casserole" in the freezer and why Southern men call their fathers "Deddy" no matter how big and powerful they've become. Fun and more fun is the menu for the day!

Noon - 1:30 p.m. Thursday, October 11 • Fee $16
Register by October 8

"Why Harry Potter is the Most Wonderful Wizard of All" with Dr. Maggie Parrish

Halloween is about witches, goblins, and … wizards! Join Maggie Parrish, UNCW English professor, as she discusses the Harry Potter books in the context of the greater fantasy tradition in literature. Come and hear more about the books that magically make young "non-readers" read. Board the train to Hogwarts at platform nine and three quarters and celebrate Halloween with spirit. (Dress in costume if you wish.)

Noon - 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, October 31 • Fee $16
Register by October 26

"The Role of the Newspaper in the Wilmington Community" with Ken Svanum, publisher of the Wilmington Morning Star and the Sunday Star-News

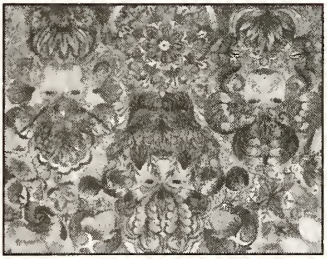
In January 2001, Ken Svanum was named the new publisher of the Wilmington Morning Star and Sunday Star-News, a part of the New York Times Company. During 1999 and 2000, Mr. Svanum was publisher of the Santa Barbara News-Press in Santa Barbara, California. A native Californian, and a veteran newspaperman since 1969, Mr. Svanum has been very active in all the communities he has lived. He has already become a member of the United Way Campaign cabinet and a member of the board of directors for the Cape Fear Literacy Council. Come welcome the new publisher and hear what he has to say about the role of the newspaper in the Wilmington community.

Noon-1:30 p.m. Thursday, November 15 • Fee $16
Register by November 12

Minnie Evans
with Anne Brennan, curator and registrar of St. John's Museum



On the anniversary of the birthday of Minnie Evans, December 12, 1892, guests will delight at the slides and stories about the art and life of this wonderful Wilmington artist. Born in a log cabin in Pender County, Minnie Evans gained international prominence in her later life for her visionary, colorful artwork. She was awarded (posthumously) the second star in Wilmington's Walk of Fame in 1997. Anne Brennan, curator of St. John's museum, will detail this unique artist's contribution to North Carolina art.

Noon -1:30 p.m. Wednesday, December 12 • Fee $16
Register by December 7

WOMEN'S EXPRESS LUNCHEONS

The talent of women on our campus and in our community is tremendous. The opportunity to share wisdom is great; hence the creation of the Women's Express Luncheons. This series of three lunches is designed especially for working women, but is not limited to this group. Topics are relevant to women of all ages. Take time for you, and if you desire, treat a friend for an informative and entertaining lunch break. The plated lunch will start at 11:45 a.m., the guest speaker(s) will begin at 12:15 p.m., and the program will conclude by 1 p.m. to enable guests to get back to work in a timely manner.*

Each lunch is $13 per person. If you sign up for all three, the cost is $36.

"Sexuality As We Age"

with Kate Bruce, Ph.D.

Notions of sexuality often focus on youth and physical appearance alone, yet there are several dimensions of sexuality. As we age, we can appreciate the multiple dimensions – emotional, physical, and social – that impact our perceptions of sexuality. Recent innovations, such as the Internet and technological and medical advances, have implications for how we learn about sexuality and what we expect for ourselves throughout our lifetimes. This lunchtime discussion, led by Dr. Kate Bruce, UNCW professor of psychology and the director of the honors program, will touch on some recent advances and the influence they can have on personal and societal sexuality.

11:45 a.m. - 1 p.m. Wednesday, October 3 • Fee $13 • Register by September 28

"Women at Midlife: An Opportunity for Growth and Change

with Karen Sandell, Ph.D.

Women at midlife have the opportunity and the challenge to rediscover their creative and generative talents in ways that are both liberating and growth enhancing. Exploring and reframing connections with family, friends, community, and self are major tasks of this developmental stage. Dr. Karen Sandell, UNCW assistant professor of sociology, looks at issues of relationship, self-esteem, and spirituality.

11:45 a.m. - 1 p.m. Wednesday, November 14 • Fee $14 • Register by November 2

"The Pursuit of Excellence"

with Patty Turrisi, Ph.D.

When you are engaged in multiple roles in life involving work, family, friends, and community, thinking through and carrying out your vision and mission is a challenging prospect. This lunch session is committed to practical suggestions about how you can develop more clear, logical and systematic thinking in support of your pursuit of excellence. Dr. Turrisi is the director of the UNCW Center for Teaching Excellence and professor of philosophy.

11:45 a.m. - 1 p.m. Tuesday, December 4 • Fee $13 • Register by November 30

ADULT SCHOLARS LEADERSHIP PROGRAM

Through UNCW's Adult Scholars Leadership Program, older adults learn about past and current problems in the region and possible solutions. For more than a decade, program graduates have been encouraged to use what they have learned to become more actively involved in enhancing the community through optional volunteer and entrepreneurial service.

The seven-week program, offered each spring on the UNCW campus, covers history and Southern culture, health and human services, education, government, arts and media, regional and economic development and criminal justice. The more than 70 presenters are leaders in the community and state and include North Carolina legislators, county commissioners, a district attorney and Superior Court judge, law enforcement personnel, UNCW administrators and leaders, media representatives, hospital CEOS and many others.

Once participants have graduated from the program, they are encouraged to volunteer their time in the community. However, volunteering is optional.

In addition, graduates will have an opportunity to join a thriving alumni group that consists of more than 225 members. The alumni continue the camaraderie found in the leadership program, enjoying monthly meetings, presentations and lectures, social events and a Christmas party. Many of the alumni volunteer their time at UNCW and in community organizations. For a brochure or more information contact Director Annette Coneglio Anderson, andersonac@uncwil.edu, (910) 962-3547.

Leading Organizational Change

with Dr. Stephen Harper

Dr. Stephen Harper leads a state-of-the-art seminar highlighting many of the ideas profiled in his latest book, The Forward-Focused Organization: Visionary Thinking and Breakthrough Leadership to Create Your Company's Future, launched earlier this year by the American Management Association.

Today's competitive arena places even the best companies in a precarious position. Managers who focus on fine-tuning today's products, processes, and operations may place their companies in peril. While progressive managers have embraced the continuous improvement mentality of the 1990s, today's consumers want more than incremental improvement. They want breakthrough innovation. Managers must position their businesses to be initiators and beneficiaries of change rather than the victims of it.

This program is directed at three levels of change leadership.

The Visioning and Strategy Process: Leaders need to direct their attention and resources to what lies beyond the horizon. Leaders in the past have been heralded for visionary thinking and breakthrough leadership. They must determine what business their business should be in and develop a "corpreneurial" strategy for making the vision a reality.

Developing Organization-wide Change Efforts: Leaders must create a status quo killing company. Leaders must develop a corporate culture where learning, experimentation and innovation are encouraged and rewarded and where doing anything the same way is abhorred.

Leading by Example: Today's change leaders must recognize they cast a shadow in everything they do. When it comes to leading change, you either lead by example or manage by hypocrisy. Leaders must personally demonstrate the type of behavior that fosters organizational change.

Dr. Harper will provide numerous ideas for analyzing one's business and making it more competitive. Through case analysis he will show participants how to apply the seminar's concepts to initiate organization-wide change.

9 a.m. - 4 p.m. Thursday, November 8, UNCW Executive Development Center at Landfall

Fee of $325 includes l*unch and a copy of The Forward-Focused Organization: Visionary Thinking and Breakthrough Leadership to Create Your Company's Future.*

$250 per person for multiple registrants from one company. This program can also be packaged for individual companies.

Register by November 2.

Celebrating the wine harvest

Broadway and Brunch II
9 a.m. - 6:30 p.m., Sunday, March 10, 2002

Travel with us to Raleigh's Memorial Auditorium for a day of Broadway featuring the hit play, Rent. Enjoy a delicious brunch as part of the activities.

Rent is considered to be the most exuberant and original American musical to come along in a decade. It has single-handedly reinvigorated Broadway and is taking the country by storm. Inspired by Puccini's "La Boheme", Rent is a joyous, breathtaking and often heartbreaking musical that celebrates a community of artists as they struggle with the soaring hopes and tough realities of today's world.

Sunday, March 10, 2002 • Fee includes orchestra seat for play, brunch and roundtrip transportation: $99 per person • Call (910) 962-3195 by October 30 to reserve a space. Don't wait!! Space is limited.

Registration Information

Most of our programs are open to individuals regardless of educational background. Courses with special prerequisites list requirements in the individual courses or program descriptions.

Fees

Because most of our programs are self-supporting, fees must be charged for enrollment and are listed with the course descriptions. (Some education-related expenses may be tax deductible. Please consult your tax preparer to determine what expenses are deductible.)

Payment

Fees may be paid in cash, by check (payable to UNCW) or with MasterCard or Visa (for costs of $10 or more).

Telephone registrations for adult programs are accepted for $10 or more using MasterCard or Visa. Please have your card ready when you call. Phone-in registrations are accepted from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Call 910-962-3195 for assistance.

Be sure to use the correct registration form (pages 25-27). Mail your completed form AND your check or credit card information to the address listed on the form. Your receipt and class information will be mailed to you confirming your enrollment.

Fax your registration information along with credit card information to Division for Public Service and Extended Education, UNCW, 910-962-3096.

Refunds/Cancellations

Refunds will be sent within 30 days of the date of your withdrawal/cancellation unless otherwise noted. A $10 processing fee will be charged. Fees can only be refunded if 1) You notify this office in writing (fax is acceptable) three (3) university working days prior to the start date of the program, unless otherwise specified; or 2) The class is cancelled by the university, in which case a full refund will be sent. In the event of a hurricane or other natural disaster, UNCW will refund your payment on a prorated scale based on the number of days cancelled. All refunds will be issued within 30 days following the cancellation.

Continuing Education Unit

(1 CEU per 10 contact hours) The CEU indicates that a person has attended and participated in a program. It is often useful as additional credentials with a current or future employer.

The NC Public Records Act

The NC Public Records Act requires us to release your name and address if requested, unless you specify you do not want the information released. Please note in the appropriate space on the registration form if you would like this information released.

Teacher Renewal Credit

Due to a change in state renewal policy, teachers may now opt to take any courses (10+ hours) pertinent to their subject area for renewal credit. It is recommended that you obtain prior approval from the appropriate school official. When a course is completed, letters of verification will be provided by the university upon request. Perfect attendance is required.

To register

We must receive your registration information and payment at least three university working days prior to the start of the program unless otherwise noted.

Sullivan Joins Women's Basketball Staff

Pat Sullivan, a member of UNC Chapel Hill's 1993 men's national championship team, has joined UNCW as assistant women's basketball coach.

"I'm delighted Pat's going to be part of our staff," said head coach Ann Hancock. "His experience and basketball knowledge will certainly give our program a boost."

Sullivan, a native of Bogota, N.J., played for the Tar Heels from 1991 to 1995. During that span UNC Chapel Hill won the national title and played in two Final Fours.

"This is a great opportunity for me," said Sullivan. "Coach Hancock has been part of several ACC championships and a national championship. She's very knowledgeable about the game and a great young coach. I'm looking forward to being a part of the Wilmington Community."

UNCW Maintains Top 10 U.S. News Ranking

For the fourth consecutive year, UNC Wilmington is ranked among the top 10 public universities in the South. The college rankings are developed each year by U. S. News & World Report.

UNCW is in the "universities – master's" category which in the past was called "regional universities." The name of the category was changed to better reflect the schools' missions as described by the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education, which includes those that offer a full range of undergraduate and master's level programs with few, if any, doctoral programs. U.S. News ranks approximately 1,400 public and private universities and colleges across the country.

Among the public universities in the South, UNCW is ranked seventh behind James Madison University, The Citadel, Appalachian State University, College of Charleston, Murray State University and UNC Charlotte. A complete report of the rankings can be viewed online at www.usnews.com or in the newsstand book America's Best Colleges and the Sept. 17 issue of U.S. News & World Report.

Among both public and private institutions in the South, UNCW was number 21 out of 130 institutions. The ranking system is based on seven categories: academic reputation (25 percent), graduation and student retention rates (25 percent), faculty resources (20 percent), student selectivity (15 percent), financial resources (10 percent) and alumni giving (5 percent).

UNCW's reputation for academic excellence continues to improve as it becomes the university of choice for more and more high school students. Although fewer students applied and were accepted this year than last, the number who actually enrolled rose. This year's enrollment totals 10,545 students. Among the 1,994 freshmen in this fall's class, the average SAT score was 1097 and their average GPA was 3.49.

Upperman Smith Appointed UNCW Trustee

Linda Upperman Smith was sworn in as a member of the UNCW Board of Trustees Sept. 5 by District Court Judge Rebecca Blackmore. Appointed to a two-year term by the UNC Board of Governors, Upperman Smith assumed the seat vacated by the resignation of Marcus Williams in August.

Active in the university and greater Wilmington community, Upperman Smith served on the UNCW Foundation Board from 1999 to 2001. She also serves on the trustee board at the Thalian Hall Center for Performing Arts. A native of Wilmington, Upperman Smith lived in California for more than 30 years. She received a master's degree in social work from the University of California, Los Angeles, and a master's degree in library science from the University of Southern California.

Spiritual Masters Lecture Series Set

The Pastoral Summit, based at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, is launching a speakers series this fall that will feature some of history's greatest spiritual role models.

The inaugural "Spiritual Masters" series, hosted at five downtown churches, will feature presentations on Dietrich Bonhoeffer, Thomas Merton, Evelyn Underhill, Henri Nouwen and Martin Luther King, Jr.

"Our hope is that these inspiring spiritual role models can, each in his or her own way, speak to our lives and the life of this community," said Paul Wilkes, Pastoral Summit Project director who also teaches in the Creative Writing Department.

The series begins Sept. 25 and runs through Nov. 13 with presentations given every other Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. Each host church will provide a free dinner prior to the presentation where an expert will talk about the life and thoughts of one of the spiritual masters.

"Churches are powerful forces — sometimes tapped and sometimes untapped — and the Pastoral Summit wants to do everything possible to encourage and applaud them," said Wilkes, a popular religious writer and documentary filmmaker. "Here we have five churches – of vastly different traditions – who are opening their doors to all seekers. These churches are truly reaching beyond their walls to the larger community."

AACSB Reaffirms Cameron School of Business Accreditation

UNCW's Cameron School of Business received reaccreditation of its bachelor's and master's degree programs from the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) International, the nation's premier business school accrediting organization. The announcement was made Sept. 11 at the organization's board meeting in St. Louis.

The Cameron School of Business received its initial accreditation with AACSB in 1993. Of the 1,200 schools of business throughout the United States, only about one-third are accredited by AACSB. The reaffirmation process involved an extensive self-evaluation of all aspects of the school's mission, curriculum, degree requirements, faculty resources and performance, student resources, student placement and technology. This was followed by a visit to UNCW by the AACSB Peer Review Team. The Cameron School of Business completed the reaccreditation process in August.

"Our achievement of reaccreditation with AACSB is primarily the result of the hard work and dedication of our outstanding faculty," said Larry Clark, dean of the Cameron School of Business. "It is the faculty that assures the quality of the programs, attracts outstanding students and sustains the expectations of overall high quality of education that is necessary for AACSB."

Clark stated that UNCW's reputation for overall academic quality and the proposed technology building, to be shared by the Cameron School of Business and the Department of Computer Science, were additional favorable factors for reaccreditation. Funds for this new building will come from UNCW's share of the Higher Education Facilities Bond passed overwhelmingly by North Carolina voters last November.

According to Clark, attending a business school that is AACSB accredited has many advantages including that students are assured that degree programs meet the stringent criteria set forth by the AACSB and the management community. An AACSB accredited program must be continually updated and revised to reflect the changing knowledge and practices of the real business world. It also gives graduates a competitive edge when seeking a position outside the region when his or her business degree is backed by AACSB.

UNCW Hosting Candidate Forum Sept. 25

The Council of Neighborhood Associations (CONA) in conjunction with WAAV radio, Wilmington Star-News and UNCW will sponsor a public forum for the large pool of candidates running for Wilmington city council and mayor at 7 p.m. Sept. 25 in King Hall Auditorium.

Candidates will field questions from the following panelists: Tom Barth, associate professor of political science; Rhonda Bellamy, WAAV news; Jon Evans, news anchor and managing editor of WWAY-TV3; Mark Schreiner, assistant city editor of the Wilmington Star-News; Herb Harris, representing The Wilmington Journal; and Hunter Thompson, representing CONA. Donn Ansell, talk show host for WAAV, will moderate. Questions from the floor will also be entertained.

WAAV, 980 AM, and UNCW-TV, which airs on The Learning Network, Time Warner Cable Channel 5, will broadcast live coverage of the forum.

The Council of Neighborhood Associations Inc. is a non-profit, grassroots coalition of neighborhoods dedicated to the improvement of the quality of life in New Hanover County through citizen involvement and participation in local government. CONA is comprised of over 35 homeowner associations and affiliated civic organizations and community activists.

To donate leave, submit an application for leave form, check the "donated leave" space and include the recipient's name and department. Indicate the number of vacation hours being donated and sign and date the form. A supervisor's signature is also required.

ITSD Upgrades E-mail Server to Speed Delivery

E-mail is a convenient, quick method for campus communication — except for several days during the past week when UNCW's record number of students pushed the e-mail server limits beyond its capacity.

"The volume and size of e-mails sent since the beginning of the semester were greater than our projections," said Bobby Miller, director of the Department of Computing Services. "We sincerely apologize for the recent e-mail problems. Staff in the division spent many hours upgrading the software that manages the e-mail system, and as of Sept. 13, the server effectively handled this increased traffic," said Miller.

Access to e-mail to conduct university business is an important concern for the Information Technology Systems Division, said Robert E. Tyndall, ITSD vice chancellor.

"Division departments will work around the clock if necessary to ensure this essential service is available to students, faculty and staff," said Tyndall.

Last month, the division announced changes in the university's e-mail system. Through the proposed Collaborative Computing Environment, ITSD will use Microsoft Outlook 2000 to offer the campus state-of-the-art e-mail integrated with scheduling capability.

"Plans to move the campus toward the new Microsoft Exchange environment are still underway," said Miller, adding the conversion will take place in phases starting with a small pilot group. By June 2003, the entire campus will be switched to Outlook which offers features designed to prevent delays that the campus experienced last week, said Miller. This migration should also provide better services such as common calendar capability, rapid e-mail and file sharing, he added.

Bangarra Dance Theatre to Open UNCW Arts in Action Series

Australia's vibrant, multifaceted dance company Bangarra Dance Theatre takes over UNCW's Kenan Auditorium at 8 p.m. Oct. 9. Their performance of Corroboree is the first in the 2001-02 UNCW Arts in Action Performing Arts Series.

As Australia's leading contemporary aboriginal dance company, Bangarra Dance Theatre combines technically sophisticated streetwise choreography with ceremonial and ritual traditions that date from 40,000 years ago. With bodies at times coated in white ash, indigenous dancers enact elemental scenes of Corroboree, giving voice to the aboriginal "dreamtime" and responding to the impact of modern society on traditional life. The troupe's dances, which were once conceived as rituals to the gods, now inform audiences about what it means to be an indigenous Australian in the modern world.

Bangarra Dance Theatre was formed in 1989 by Carole Johnson, founding director of Australia's National Indigenous Dance School, along with graduates. In 1991, Stephen Page became artistic director, and the following year he choreographed the company's first full-length work Praying Mantis Dreaming. As chief choreographer for Bangarra, Page developed a dance language that combined his aboriginal heritage with his urban lifestyle.

Most of the 14 performers are aboriginal or Torres Straits islanders who bring their personal heritage into the creative process. Djakapurra Numyarryun is Bangarra's cultural consultant as well as a leading dancer, didjeridu player and singer. The third member of the creative team is Page's brother, David, an award-winning composer whose musical career follows a similar line to Stephen's dance career by bringing together musical elements of the past and present — mixing sacred chants, traditional rhythms and electronic urban sounds to "create a spiritual feast for the ears."

Bangarra Dance Theatre participated in the opening and closing ceremonies of the 2000 Olympic Games in Sydney as well as the opening of the Olympic Arts Festival. This year marks the troupe's first North American tour with Corroboree. For ticket information, call the auditorium box office at ext. 3500.

University Theatre to Open Season with Gint

The UNCW University Theatre production of Gint will premiere at 8 p.m. Oct. 3 in Kenan Hall's SRO Theatre. Additional performances of this play, which kicks off the theatre's 2001-02 season, will be held at 8 p.m. Oct. 4-6. A matinee is scheduled for 2 p.m. Oct. 7.

This two-act play, written by American Romulus Linney, is an adaptation of Henrik Ibsen's classic Peer Gynt. In Linney's work, Gynt becomes Pete Gint, a ragged Appalachian youth, and the play spans 80 years as it tells the misadventures of a good-for-nothing dreamer who wants to be grand and glorious.

Nine UNCW undergraduate students, under the direction of Ed Wagenseller, constitute the cast. Senior Greg Reposa will perform the title role of Pete Gint. Jessica Fulbright, a junior theatre major, will portray his aged mother "Oldie Momma." Other cast members handle roles such as Gint's mountain neighbors, razorback hogs or asylum inmates.

Tickets are $5 for the public; free for UNCW students with valid ID. Call the Kenan Auditorium box office at ext. 3500 for reservations. Due to scenes that contain mature subject matter, this play is not intended for all ages.

Legislative Update on Salary & Benefit Issues and UNCW Benefit Enhancements

Salary Increases

The General Assembly has adopted a final budget that provides a $625 flat rate, annual salary increase for all permanent, full-time employees who were active as of June 30, 2001 (prorated for part-time employees). Increases are retroactive to July 1, 2001. Increases to base salary and retroactive adjustments will both be paid in October.

Health Plan Premiums

The State will continue to pay the full premium for employee coverage for all permanent employees three-quarters time or more. The cost to the State of providing this benefit has increased from $2,255 to $2,933 per year. [Part-time employees at least half-time, but less than three-quarter time are eligible to purchase employee coverage at the State rate.] The only material enhancement to the State Health Plan this year was to increase the maximum lifetime benefit from $2.0 to $5.0 million.

All employees are responsible for children or family coverage which, like the State's cost for employee coverage, will increase 30%. The premiums below will be effective in September paychecks. All premiums are deducted on a pre-tax basis, unless the employee elects to opt out.

Coverage Category	Monthly Increase	Annual Increase
Employee Only Coverage	$187.98 to $244.38	Pd for Emp≥3/4 Time
Children Coverage	$117.16 to $152.32	$421.92
Family Coverage/Spouse Coverage	$281.04 to $365.36	$1011.84

Health Care Deductibles & Medical Spending Account Limits

As you are aware, deductibles, co-payments, and maximum out-of-pocket limits in the State Health Plan were increased effective July 1, 2001. To help employees offset the increased deductibles and out-of-pocket costs, the medical care spending account limit will increase from $2,500 to $3,600 per year, beginning January 1, 2002. Medical care spending accounts enable employees to pay for out-of-pocket health care expenses on a pre-tax basis and also may be used to effectively spread deductibles & co-payments out over a period of time.

To minimize their total health care costs, employees should explore the financial advantages of a medical care spending account, regardless of income level. These spending accounts are a part of NC Flex which will have its open enrollment from October 15 through November 9. Your NC Flex brochure will be sent to you individually in early October.

State Contributions to Retirement Programs

The General Assembly set the following contribution rates for 2001-02 for the various retirement programs. Employee contribution rates remain 6.0% of salary for all plans.

	TSERS	ORP	LEO
Contribution to Retirement	1.97%	6.84%	6.97%
Disability Income Plan	.52%	.52%	.52%
TSERS Death Benefit	.16%	n/a	.16%
Retirement Health Insurance	2.35%	2.35%	2.35%
Total State Contribution:	5.00%	9.71%	10.00%

For members of the Teachers' and State Employees' Retirement System (TSERS & LEO), the 12-day per year of service cap on sick leave creditable toward retirement has been eliminated. Effective July 1, 2001, all accrued sick leave (including vacation leave transferred to sick leave in any prior year-end reconciliation) may be applied to retirement at the rate of one month of additional service credit for every 20 days of sick leave.

For members of the Optional Retirement Program (ORP), eligibility to participate in the UNC Phased Retirement Program for Tenured Faculty will accrue at five years of contributing service, regardless of age in 2003. TSERS members who are tenured faculty will continue to require 20 years of service at age 50 or five years of service at age 60 to be eligible for the Phased Retirement Program.

UNCW Parking Fee Waiver for 2001-02

For the current academic year, senior officers have agreed to reallocate savings realized from benefit-related accounts to waive parking fees for all permanent employees earning $40,000 or less. Approx 750 employees will save $105 in the current academic year.

UNCW Employee Recreational Benefit Expanded

Currently, permanent employees may use the Campus Recreation Center without charge; while temporary employees and part-time faculty are eligible to purchase access to the Recreation Center at $20.00 per month or $5.00 per visit. Chancellor Leutze has authorized expanding the employee recreational benefit to include all temporary employees holding UNCW ID Cards including part-time faculty, adjunct faculty, and SPA temporary employees. Family member access will continue to be on a regular fee-basis.

UNCW Term Life Insurance Premiums to be Reduced

Effective November 1, 2001, the University will convert our group life insurance program to US Life Insurance Company. Current participants will enjoy a one-month "premium holiday" -- with no life insurance deduction in October. Insurance options will be greatly expanded -- with employees being able to purchase 5xSalary up to $100,000 without proof of good health or up to $300,000 with proof of good health at a constant premium of $.18/$1000 coverage per month. Separate enrollment packages will be distributed in mid-October.

WOMEN'S EXPRESS LUNCHEONS

The talent of women on our campus and in our community is tremendous. The opportunity to share wisdom is great; hence the creation of the Women's Express Luncheons. This series of three lunches is designed especially for working women, but is not limited to this group. Topics are relevant to women of all ages. Take time for you, and if you desire, treat a friend for an informative and entertaining lunch break. The plated lunch will start at 11:45 a.m., the guest speaker(s) will begin at 12:15 p.m., and the program will conclude by 1 p.m. to enable guests to get back to work in a timely manner.

Each lunch is $13 per person. If you sign up for all three, the cost is $36.

"Sexuality As We Age"
with Kate Bruce, Ph.D.

Notions of sexuality often focus on youth and physical appearance alone, yet there are several dimensions of sexuality. As we age, we can appreciate the multiple dimensions – emotional, physical, and social – that impact our perceptions of sexuality. Recent innovations, such as the Internet and technological and medical advances, have implications for how we learn about sexuality and what we expect for ourselves throughout our lifetimes. This lunchtime discussion, led by Dr. Kate Bruce, UNCW professor of psychology and the director of the honors program, will touch on some recent advances and the influence they can have on personal and societal sexuality.

11:45 a.m. - 1 p.m. Wednesday, October 3 • Fee $13 • Register by September 28

"Women at Midlife: An Opportunity for Growth and Change
with Karen Sandell, Ph.D.

Women at midlife have the opportunity and the challenge to rediscover their creative and generative talents in ways that are both liberating and growth enhancing. Exploring and reframing connections with family, friends, community, and self are major tasks of this developmental stage. Dr. Karen Sandell, UNCW assistant professor of sociology, looks at issues of relationship, self-esteem, and spirituality.

11:45 a.m. - 1 p.m. Wednesday, November 14 • Fee $13 • Register by November 2

"The Pursuit of Excellence"
with Patty Turrisi, Ph.D.

When you are engaged in multiple roles in life involving work, family, friends, and community, thinking through and carrying out your vision and mission is a challenging prospect. This lunch session is committed to practical suggestions about how you can develop more clear, logical and systematic thinking in support of your pursuit of excellence. Dr. Turrisi is the director of the UNCW Center for Teaching Excellence and professor of philosophy.

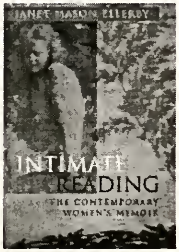
CAMPUS COMMUNIQUE

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

University Relations Vol. XXXI, No. 13 October 4, 2001 Phillip Brown, editor

English Professor Janet Ellerby's 'Intimate Reading' Explores Memoirs

In Intimate Reading: The Contemporary Women's Memoir Janet Ellerby, associate professor of English, depicts the many facets of struggling with life's difficult and often painful decisions, as well as detailed analyses of more than a dozen contemporary memoirs by American women.



At the age of 16, Janet Ellerby was sent across the country to a Florence Crittendon home for unwed mothers and was forced to give up her baby girl for adoption. The memoir narrates her long-held secret and analyzes the painful aftermath of this pivotal event in her life. In conjunction with the other memoirs, Ellerby discusses the debilitating consequences of secrets, such as shame, and the lasting effects of trauma. She goes on to examine other secrets that women feel compelled to keep such as sexual abuse, rape, sexual orientation, and mental illness.

Syracuse University Press describes the book as "an innovative look at the contemporary memoir. Intimate Reading blends autobiography and literary analysis to illuminate the intellectual, cultural, and emotional dynamics of life writing."

Ellerby examines American society's commitment to superficial appearances and the erosion of her emotional health because of it. Through telling her secret, Ellerby said she hopes to demonstrate "how honesty can guide us toward transformation, stability, and empowerment. Memoirs show us how to tell our truths." Ellerby's truths have been published and by telling her secret she said she feels "emotionally honest and liberated. I have much more peace of mind, a calm acceptance of myself and my faults."

Her journey was a difficult and often overwhelming one, plaguing Ellerby with insomnia and depression. However, her colleagues, friends and her own yearning to heal encouraged her to write her story. Intimate Reading reveals many family secrets as well as her own personal story, which she was fearful about in the beginning. However, the response has been supportive. Along her path to self-healing she discovered her parents felt much the same pain. "It's not something we're going to discuss over the dinner table, but I am still invited to dinner!" said Dr. Ellerby.

After 35 years, Janet Ellerby was reunited with her daughter Merideth, with whom she shares an uncanny resemblance, "I was so nervous, I was afraid she wouldn't like me; afraid she would be cold, suspicious, angry or that meeting me was for her just getting something over with, out of a sense of obligation." She was wrong. Their reunion was heartwarming and emotionally gripping. "We talked and cried and couldn't stop staring at each other," she said.

They have since spent holidays together and are planning a big family reunion this Thanksgiving, the first time all of Ellerby's children will be together. "It still feels miraculous to me, and I am filled with wonder at the gift I have received. A precious part of our family that we had lost was found because I told my story," she said.

Media Descend Upon Trask Coliseum to Witness Michael Jordan's Return

For the second consecutive year, professional basketball's Washington Wizards brought their training camp to UNCW. This year's visit coincided with the announcement that Laney High School alumnus Michael Jordan would return as a player. Television crews from ESPN, Washington, D.C., Raleigh, Greensboro and as far away as Japan as well as sportswriters from USA TODAY and other publications were among the estimated 150 journalists who camped out Tuesday for the team's first practice.

Nine satellite trucks from state and national media outlets sent crews to capture footage of Jordan and the Washington Wizards.

The Mission Statement of the Department of Athletics is provided on reverse side.

The Mission of the Department of Athletics, based upon and consistent with the purpose of the university, is to encourage student scholarship and sportsmanship with emphasis placed on helping students make appropriate progress towards completion of their chosen academic degree program. Academic integrity is a basic element of athletic programming decisions, thus ensuring that the educational values, practices and mission of UNCW set the standards for the program. UNCW's athletic program is characterized by its quest for student excellence in competition and in the academic setting. The university is committed to continually improving the program, which is an integral part of campus life and a university focal point for building student and regional involvement and support. The Department of Athletics provides opportunities for students to utilize their athletic skills through competition at the appropriate intercollegiate level and to have the university represented by men and women whose conduct and sportsmanship reflect positively on the institution. It seeks to field disciplined and competitive athletic teams dedicated to observing applicable rules, to provide quality athletic training and medical support to intercollegiate athletes and to support the general welfare of student-athletes. Athletics works to foster a sense of personal responsibility by those who attend athletic events. The program insists upon a high ethical code of honor and respect from each of its athletes and personnel and adheres to the policies, rules and guidelines of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the Colonial Athletic Association and the institution. The Department of Athletics is committed to complying with Title IX regulations and the promotion of affirmative action goals.

CCE Phase One Participants to Start Microsoft Outlook Training

The Information Technology Systems Division launches its Collaborative Computing Environment Oct. 22 as phase one participants begin training on Microsoft Outlook. CCE is a two-year plan to convert the campus to Outlook, a software that provides state-of-the-art e-mail and scheduling capability.

This initial group represents more than 250 individuals in offices or departments identified by vice chancellors, deans or academic department chairs, said Kim Kelly, ITSD program development coordinator. "Orientation and training sessions for phase one participants will be held through March 1. Users will learn how the conversion process will take place in their department, office or division and will see a step-by-step demonstration of Outlook's advanced e-mail and scheduling capabilities."

ITSD will give this book free to all training participants.

According to Dana Ward, customer service manager in the Department of Computing Services, the two-hour, hands-on training sessions will be offered on Wednesdays and Thursdays.

"During the week an office or department conversion is scheduled, ITSD personnel will conduct an orientation session on Monday. The new software will be installed on Tuesday. Training will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, and by Friday, participants will be experienced Outlook users," said Ward.

By consolidating e-mail, a calendar and task lists into one central location called Outlook Today, users can view their week at a glance, said Ward.

"Outlook Today displays weekly appointments, a list of tasks to be completed and the number of messages that need attention," said Ward. "When viewing the computer screen, a column on the left side displays all of Outlook's options. You can easily and quickly edit calendars, add contacts, check new e-mail messages, track and record information or edit 'to do' lists."

Outlook's e-mail capability also offers more formatting choices – colored text, bold, italics and different fonts, said Ward, adding that as part of the calendar feature, users receive an e-mail when invited to a meeting and can RSVP to Outlook's organizer via e-mail. During the conversion process, employees will not lose e-mail messages. For the training sessions, ITSD will provide a free copy of Microsoft Quick Course: Using Outlook to all participants, said Ward.

"Faculty and staff will find Outlook very easy to use," said Kelly. "Its developers truly had the end-user in mind, and as this initial group will discover, this software will improve communication across campus."

More information on CCE is available at www.uncwil.edu/dcs/exchange/.

Outlook Features

- Calendar
- Contact lists
- Journal - functions like a project management tool by recording a time line of events
- Notes - can be used to create reminders such as questions or ideas
- Tasks - can be used to record something and can be set to "send" you sticky-note reminders when something on the list is due
- Business card - add to your e-mail messages
- Personal mailboxes - set up individual mailboxes to organize messages
- Rules - automatically move, delete, forward or flag incoming and outgoing messages
- Spell check - automatically checks for spelling errors
- Enhanced mail merge capabilities - contact lists in Outlook can be used to create a mail merge in Microsoft Word
- Hide private appointments
- Group scheduling
- Simplified task bar - available in Outlook Today view. Other views have tool sets similar to other Microsoft products.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Lynne Snowden, sociology and criminal justice, had the article "A Costly Mistake: Inadequate Police Background Investigations" published in The Justice Professional.

Courtney Hackney, biological sciences, received $9,850 from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for the project "Redesign of Rat Island Monitoring Station."

John Taggart and James Merritt, CMS, received $14,000 from the Department of Environment and Natural Resources/Division of Coastal Management for partial administration and operation of the Coastal Reserve Program.

Lee Schweninger, English, had his book N. Scott Momaday published by Manly Inc . (Detroit: Gale, 2001). The book is a critical and biographical introduction to this Kiowa poet and novelist, one of America's premiere contemporary Native American writers.

Phil Furia, creative writing, was interviewed about Irving Berlin's God Bless America by Chicago's WKQX radio and Australia's ABC radio in relation to stories about increased patriotism following the Sept. 11 terror attacks in New York and Washington, D.C.

Mark T. Imperial, political science, had the article "A Decade of Service-Related Research: A Map of the Field" published in Nonprofit and Voluntary Sector Quarterly. It was co-authored by James L. Perry, Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis.

Mark Galizio, psychology, delivered the presidential address for Division 25 (Behavior Analysis) of the American Psychological Association annual meeting in San Francisco. The talk was entitled "Behavior Analysis, Island Biogeography and Truganini's Myth."

Mike Perko, was quoted in the article "College Jocks Speeding Up" published on the HealthScout Web site. It dealt with increased use of dietary supplements by student athletes.

Mike Mallin and Larry Cahoon, biological sciences and CMS, contributed to the Watershed Protection Roundtable final report which was prepared by the city's Stormwater Services Department. It provided suggestions on how to change land use and building codes to make future development more environmentally friendly.

Scott Ensign and Mike Mallin, CMS and biological sciences, had the article "Stream Water Quality Changes Following Timber Harvest in a Coastal Plain Swamp Forest" published in Water Research, vol. 35.

Date Rape Expert to Lecture During White Ribbon Campaign

Date rape expert Ron Campbell will present "Understanding Sexual Assault: A Male Perspective" at 7 p.m. Oct. 23 in Kenan Auditorium. This free, public event is part of the university's White Ribbon Campaign, a national social awareness effort to involve men in an effort to stop violence against women.

The White Ribbon Campaign, sponsored by UNCW's fraternities, the Division of Student Affairs and the Department of Athletics, will be observed Oct. 20-23. Fraternity members organized the inaugural White Ribbon Golf Tournament scheduled for Oct. 20 at Castle Bay Golf Club. Tournament proceeds will benefit the Domestic Violence Shelter Inc. The tournament, which is a captain's choice format for four-person teams, will observe a shotgun start at 12:30 p.m. Entry is $50 per person which includes cart, green fees and dinner. A discounted entry fee for students is available. For more information on the golf tournament, contact Stephen Hernandez at 794-1333.

Campbell, president and CEO of College Business Concepts, is a human sexuality educator with more than 20 years of experience in the field. He specializes in issues related to masculinity development, acquaintance rape, sexual assault and harassment. Campbell received a bachelor's degree in American studies from Heidelberg College and a master's degree in counseling, human services and guidance from Montclair State College.

Earlier in the week, Alan David Berkowitz will present programs for UNCW male athletes and fraternity members. "A Man's Responsibility to Prevent Sexual Assault," intended for athletes, will be presented at 7 p.m. Oct. 21 in Cameron Auditorium, and "Is What I Want What You Want?" for fraternity men will be at 7 p.m. Oct. 22 in the Warwick Center Ballroom.

Berkowitz, who earned a Ph.D. in psychology from Cornell University, developed model rape prevention programs for men at Hobart and William Smith Colleges. A Fellow of the American College Health Association, Berkowitz has more than 20 years of experience in higher education as a trainer, psychologist, faculty member and counseling center director. He received the Miguel Garcia-Tunon Award for Human Dignity from the American College Health Association.

In addition, campaign sponsors will distribute white ribbons to all male university administrators, faculty, staff and students on Oct. 22 to wear during the week. The ribbon is a statement that the wearer agrees not to commit, condone or remain silent about violence against women.

SACS Hearing Today

The SACS Self-Study Steering Committee will hold a hearing from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Oct. 18 in Dobo Hall, Room 134, for faculty and staff to provide feedback regarding the university's self-study report.

Creative Writing Sponsoring Free Readings

North Carolina writers Michael Chitwood and Michael McFee will read from their works at 8 p.m. Oct. 24 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium.

Chitwood, a native of Virginia, is a poet, fiction writer and essayist who lives in Chapel Hill. He is the author of the poetry collections Salt Works, Whet and The Weave Room and a volume of essays, Hitting Below the Bible Belt: Baptist Voodoo, Blood Kin, Grandma's Teeth and Other Stories from the South.

McFee, an associate professor of English at UNC Chapel Hill, is the author of the poetry collections Earthly, Colander, To See and Vanishing Acts. He also edited This Is Where We Live: Short Stories by 25 Contemporary North Carolina Writers and The Language They Speak Is Things to Eat: Poems by 15 Contemporary North Carolina Poets.

This free event is sponsored by the Creative Writing Department. A reception and book signing will follow the readings.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Chancellor's Staff Advisory Committee Meeting

The Chancellor's Staff Advisory Committee will meet at noon Oct. 23 in Warwick Center, Room 104.

Honors Program Events

The Honors Scholars Program in conjunction with the Graduate School will present "Everything You Wanted to Know About Graduate School" from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Oct. 22 in the University Union Living Room.

The honors program will also host a workshop on preparing departmental honors projects from 4 to 5 p.m. Oct. 24 in the University Union Living Room. For more information, call ext. 4181.

Refreshments will be provided at both events.

Ellerby, Boren to Read

English professors Janet Ellerby and Mark Boren will read from their works at 8 p.m. Oct. 30 in the Warwick Center, Center Stage Cafe.

Ellerby will read from Intimate Reading: The Contemporary Women's Memoir, which was published this year by Syracuse University Press.

In Student Resistance: A History of the Unruly Subject, which was published earlier this year, Boren chronicles international activism that examines the role of students and the nature of protest. Drawing on major incidents of student activism, including civil rights protests in the United States, the 1968 student riots in Paris and Tiananmen Square, Boren shows that "there is much to learn from students fighting for reform."

These free readings are sponsored by the Katherine K. Buckner Distinguished Presentations Series. There will be a reception and book signing following the reading.

The American Geophysical Union is accepting abstracts for presentation at the 2002 Ocean Sciences Meeting Feb. 11-15 in Honolulu. For more information, contact Harvey Leifert at 202-777-7507 or e-mail leifert@agu.org.

Education Students Benefit from New Scholarships

Two of the four new scholarships established for prospective education majors this year were funded by Watson School of Education professors Grace Burton and Carol Chase Thomas.

The Grace Burton Promise in Excellence Fellowship and Ann Royer Corley Scholarship are both endowed awards. The Burton Fellowship is designed for graduate students. The Corley Scholarship, named in honor of Thomas' godmother, is open to undergraduate or graduate students.

"The two faculty members who established these scholarships have contributed countless hours supporting the school, teachers and the community through the years," said Cathy Barlow, dean of the Watson School of Education. "To undertake the financial commitment involved in establishing these scholarships is a wonderful example. It underscores the professors' commitment to UNCW and the Watson School of Education."

The Herbert and Sylvia Fisher and Kathryn Jason Memorial scholarships were also established this year. Wilmington College alumnus Herbert Fisher '53 and Patricia Morrison are the respective donors.

A key component of the scholarships, coordinated through the Division for University Advancement, is that they have few if any restrictions in determining the recipients, said Barlow.

"From the standpoint of student recruitment and retention, it's extremely beneficial to have flexibility in awarding scholarships," Barlow said.

Physics Colloquium

Ashot Gasparian from the Physics Department, Hampton University, will present "Symmetry Breaking Phenomena in Physics and the Neutral Pion Lifetime" at 2 p.m. Oct. 19 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served

Rent EDC for Holidays

Departments and offices that are planning holiday functions should consider UNCW's Executive Development Center. The EDC can provide catering to accommodate up to 250 people. For more information on university discount rates, call ext. 3578.

Pre-game Social

The UNCW Triad Alumni Chapter will host a social Nov. 12 prior to the men's basketball game versus Wake Forest University. Reservations for the event, scheduled for 5 p.m. at the Ramada Plaza Hotel, 3050 University Parkway, Winston-Salem, are due by Nov. 5. Call ext. 2682.

Drama Presentation

Godly Decisions, a one-act play by Sandie Ward, academic affairs, will be presented at 5 p.m. Oct. 28 at New Covenant Holiness Church. Ward is also directing the play.

Psycho Screening

Randall Library will present Alfred Hitchcock's 1960 classic Psycho at 9 p.m. Oct. 30 in the library's auditorium. Prizes for the best costume representing a literary character from the horror genre will be awarded. For more information, contact Kimberley Barker at ext. 7807 or e-mail barkerk.

MPA Fellowships

UNCW's Master of Public Administration presented fellowships for the 2001-02 academic year to four students. Carla Isom, Boog Powell and Stacy Waters are working with Stephen Meinhold, political science, as part of a FEMA grant to link communities and local universities to improve disaster resistance. Nicholas Schwartz will work on activities related to storm water management, National Flood Insurance Program participation, nonconforming development and economic revitalization on a fellowship funded by the Town of Carolina Beach.

Note of Appreciation

The Gerontology Program would like to thank everyone, especially the postal services staff, for their help in locating a box of manuscripts.

General College News

UNCW©

Fall 2001

The primary focus of the General College is to ensure that students make a successful transition to UNCW, are retained in good academic standing, and identify and declare an appropriate major. Through its advisors and academic support programs, the General College works with students in their formative semesters to assist them in developing their interests, skills and talents to the fullest extent.

General College Advising

The Center for Academic Advising

The Center for Academic Advising (962-3245), located in the right side of Wagoner Hall, is the organizational center for General College Advising. Advisors and administrative staff are available to assist students 7:30 am-5:30 pm Monday through Friday and additional hours as needed.

In addition to Orientation advising and Pre-registration advising, General College provides extensive intervention every semester to help students in academic difficulty.

Advising for more than 3,300 General College students this fall is provided by three full-time and six part-time staff advisors; their average load is 225-250 students. Twenty-nine dedicated UNCW faculty members work with the General College to advise an average of 50 students each.

In recognition of its excellence, The National Academic Advising Association (NACADA) presented a prestigious national award to UNCW's General College.

Freshman Seminar

Freshman Seminar (UNI-101) is a course especially designed to help freshmen succeed in making the transition to college life. It introduces the student to the university community and helps the student develop skills needed for academic and social success.

Athletic Academic Advising

The General College provides support for our student athletes through:

- Academic Advising
- Educating student athletes about NCAA and CAA eligibility
- Requesting progress reports from faculty twice per semester
- Teaching the Athletic sections of UNI 101 as part of the NCAA Champs Life Skills Program
- Monitoring Athletic Study Hall
- Meeting with recruits.

Last year our 328 student athletes had an impressive average GPA of 2.84.

Did You Know...

A typical Freshman has at least 4 contacts with General College Advising by the end of fall semester.

In the month of September alone, more than 400 students came into The Writing/Reading Place for one-to-one peer consultations on their academic papers across the curriculum.

Approximately half the Freshman class takes Freshman Seminar (UNI-101).

Last year UNCW's Freshman to Sophomore retention rate exceeded 80%, and was among the highest in public universities comparable to UNCW.

The Learning Center already has provided 427 tutoring and supplemental instruction sessions this academic year.

Over 3,300 Freshmen and undeclared upperclassmen are advised within the General College this fall semester.

The Learning Center 962-3549

2nd Floor Randall Library

The Learning Center offers a variety of services to assist students in specific coursework as well as general study skills development.

- Free tutoring is offered to all UNCW students in any Basic Studies course. Tutoring sessions are by appointment only. To request a tutor, students must come to the Learning Center Monday through Friday, 8:00 am-5:00 pm. Once a Tutor Request has been submitted, the LC staff will schedule an appointment for the student to meet with his/her new tutor within a few days. Please encourage your students to seek tutorial assistance early.
- Supplemental Instruction (SI), a series of weekly peer-assisted study sessions, is offered in ACG 201, BIO 110, 240, 335; and CHM 101, 211 this semester.
- Academic Success Workshops are offered every Wednesday at 12:00 noon and 6:00 pm, through October 24. Topics range from Time Management to Test Taking Strategies.
- Individual Study Skills Consultations with a learning skills specialist are available. Call the LC to make an appointment.
- For Study Skills Workshops tailored to the needs of individual organizations, classes or meetings, call the LC to discuss your group's needs and to arrange a workshop.

For more information visit the Learning Center website at: www.uncwil.edu/gc/learningcenter or call the Learning Center.

The Writing/Reading Place 962-7155

2nd Floor Randall Library

The Writing/Reading Place offers one-to-one peer consulting on any UNCW academic papers across the curriculum, from freshman studies to graduate theses. More than 30 TAs, Interns, Community Consultants (specialists in specific writing areas, such as LD, ESL, Non-Trad and/or students with marginal abilities) and volunteers are available to work with your students from 10 am to 9 pm, Monday through Thursday, Fridays from 10 am to 3 pm, and Sundays from 6 pm to 9 pm.

Additionally, our staff members will be delighted to come to your class to explain what we do and how we can help students improve their writing.

Appointments are appreciated, and walk-ins are welcome. We also are happy to work with any of your students who might require on-going tutoring to help them write to your standards. Call Pat Coughlin, Director, or Deborah Gay, Assistant to the Director, for further information.

The Math Lab 962-7215

101 Bear Hall

The Math Lab helps students make the transition to college mathematics by providing:

- Diagnostic and placement testing
- Tutoring for introductory level math and statistics
- Course specific review and problem sessions
- Help with study skills and math anxiety.

Drop-in hours are Monday through Friday 9 am to 2 pm.
One-to-one appointments are available Monday through Thursday 2-5 pm, and 7-9 pm.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Center Stage Lunch Buffets

The Center Stage lunch buffets, served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Warwick Center Seahawk Grille, will feature the following menus:

Friday - cinnamon roasted pork loin, eggplant parmesan, mashed potatoes with gravy, broccoli casserole, spiced apples, assorted rolls, salads, desserts and beverages.

Tuesday - citrus soy marinated chicken, vegetable tetrazzini, fruited wild rice, steamed carrots, green beans, assorted rolls, salads, desserts and beverages.

Society Seeking Members

Omicron Delta Kappa National Leadership Honor Society is accepting membership applications. Applicants must be juniors, seniors or graduate students with a minimum 3.2 GPA. Faculty and staff should direct interested students to the Center for Leadership, Education and Service for an application.

Golf Tournament Results

Team members of the championship flight from this year's faculty/staff golf tournament were Greg Dalton, Marc Ellington, Kevin Ankrom and Lee Bost. Winning first flight team members were Chet Harvey, Sam Chance, Larry Harvey and Stuart Vick. Greg Dalton and Tom Schmid won prizes for closest to the pin, and Mitch Baird won for the longest drive. The team comprised of Nikki Howard, Mark Lanier, Jeff Stanfield and Susan Campbell received the "most fun" award. Ray Cockrell won the second annual Doug Johnson Memorial Award.

Tournament organizers would like to thank all the volunteers who donated time or prizes for the event including Nancy Maready, Arnold Siko and the bookstore, Tom Williamson and Aramark, vending and auxiliary services, Rob Brickles and athletic marketing, Tim McNeilly and campus recreation and Jerry Wainwright and the men's basketball team.

Department Hosts Fall Break Conference

During fall break, the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures hosted the Mountain Interstate Foreign Language Conference (MIFLC). Keynote speaker John Kronik, professor emeritus from Cornell University, presented "The Gray Dachshund: Of Borders, Barriers, Bridges and Us." Special sessions also honored George Woodyard, leading critic of contemporary Latin American theatre and founding editor of Latin American Theatre Review. Terry Mount, MIFLC president, organized the 62 sessions featuring more than 200 scholars presenting papers on international film, literature, language, civilization and foreign language pedagogy.

Biological Sciences Seminar

Shelley Etnier, research associate at the Center for Marine Science, will present "Twisting and Bending in Biological Beams" at 2 p.m. Oct. 19 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Movie Makers Lecture

Washington, D.C., filmmaker Todd Rohal will show his short film Hillbilly Robot at 2 p.m. Oct. 19 in Morton Hall, Room 100.

Heritage School

Five seminars on the African-American experience will be offered from 9 a.m. to noon Saturdays, Oct. 20 through Nov. 17, in the University Union, Room 212, as part of Heritage School 2001 sponsored by the Upperman African-American Cultural Center. Registration is limited; for more information, call ext. 7087. The speakers and topics are Earl Sheridan on "African-American Politics in a New Century," Deborah Brunson on "Race Relations: Current Status and Future Challenges," Nathaniel Murrell on "Rastas, Ganja and the Law," Bettie Glenn on "Health Challenges Among African-Americans" and Karen Bullock on "Diversity: It's In 'Every' One of Us."

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Patton McDowell, advancement, is among the fourth group of William C. Friday Fellows for Human Relations. During the two-year fellowship, he will participate in six weekend seminars focused on leadership development, human relations and North Carolina issues.

Michael Shaffer, philosophy and religion, delivered the paper "Coherence, Justification, and the AGM Theory of Belief Revision" at the Conference on Coherentism in Epistemology at Dominican College in Ontario, Canada. The article will be published in the conference proceedings.

David White, chemistry, attended the 53rd southeastern regional meeting of the American Chemical Society in Savannah, accompanied by graduate student Corey M. Ottenberg and C. Matthew Whaley and F. Crisp McDonald Jr., winners of the Undergraduate Research Fellowship. Ottenberg presented the talk "Immobilization of Ligands on Photoluminescent Porous Silicon: A New Series of Preorganization." It was co-authored by Stephen A. Skarabal, chemistry, and White. Whaley presented the poster "Unexpected Nitrosyl Laboilization by Phosphines in Cyclopentadienyl Complexes of Rhenium," which was co-authored by Mark Wainright, and White. McDonald presented "Preorganized Ligands on Photoluminescent Porous Silicon Using Hydrosilylaiton Chemistry," which was co-authored by Ottenberg, Skrabal and White.

Ned Martin, chemistry, chaired an organic chemistry session at the 53rd southeastern regional meeting of the American Chemical Society. In addition, Martin presented two papers on his research: "Through-Space Magnetic Shielding by Selected Functional Groups, Part One: Applications to the Prediction of Chemical Shifts," which was co-authored by former UNCW graduate student Kimberly H. Nance, and "Through-Space Magnetic Shielding by Selected Functional Groups, Part Two: Origin of the Shielding Effect," which was co-authored by Nance and University of Georgia collaborators Henry Schaefer III, Paul Schleyer, Zhi-Xiang Wang and H. Lee Woodcock, a former UNCW undergraduate student.

Sales Tax Increase

Effective Oct. 16, the North Carolina sales and use tax rate increased from 6 to 6.5 percent. Use tax code T5 when entering taxable purchase requisitions in the financial records system.

Postal News

Faculty and staff who receive personal packages via regular mail will receive notification through campus mail to pick up packages at the post office window in Warwick Center.

In light of recent anthrax incidents, UNCW Postal Services would like to remind students, faculty and staff that every precaution is taken to provide secure mail delivery in adherence to U.S. postal regulations. Direct questions to Doris Moore ext. 3182.

New Application Services Procedures

Effective Oct. 15, the Department of Application Services implemented new procedures for project requests and approvals. Updated documentation, guidelines and forms are available at www.uncwil.edu/das/project_request_forms.htm. For audit purposes, access changes to ADS, FRS, HRS and SIS accounts must use the account request form at www.uncwil.edu/das/account_request_forms.htm. Direct questions to Sandie Sue at ext. 3892 or e-mail sues.

Shared Leave

Linda Fowler, telecommunications, and Sharon Green, CMS, need shared leave donations. Send vacation leave donations to Pam Christie in human resources.

Book Sale

Randall Library will hold its fourth annual book sale from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Nov. 5 and 6 and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 7. Sale proceeds will fund library programs and projects. Faculty or staff interested in donating books or sound and video recordings should contact Beth Roberts at ext. 3720.

Administrative Policies and Procedures Update

Numerous revisions to Administrative Policy ACG 2.60 (University Equipment) have recently been approved and published on the Web. Key revisions include:

- Equipment being transferred or sent to surplus property is not to leave university departments without a signature on the departmental copy of the movable equipment form of the individual removing the equipment.
- Departments are encouraged to order the revised movable equipment forms from printing services. The movable equipment forms were revised to assist originating departments in obtaining appropriate signatures and in carrying out their responsibilities regarding the accountability for university equipment.
- When equipment is temporarily removed from the custody of the department or the employee(s) to which the equipment is normally assigned, obtain signatures on the equipment temporary check-out list prior to allowing removal of the equipment and upon return of the equipment. The revised list is available on the administrative forms directory.
- Departments may destroy software licenses when the software is no longer needed but must send software media (diskettes, CDs, etc.) to surplus property for disposal, regardless of the cost of the software.

University employees are encouraged to read the revised policy in its entirety. This policy is published in the Administrative Policies and Procedures and on the Web at www.uncwil.edu/sp/admproc/acg260.htm.

Welcome

Please welcome the following new employees: Sharon Bratton, history, and Cheryl Sanford, SBTDC.

CAMPUS COMMUNIQUE

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

University Relations | Vol. XXXI, No. 16 October 25, 2001 | Phillip Brown, editor

Panel Explores News Coverage of Sept. 11

Four Wilmington journalists and media executives will participate in a panel at UNCW to discuss the moral and practical issues of news coverage after the Sept. 11 terrorist attack and the subsequent U.S. military retaliation. The discussion will take place at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 5 in the Warwick Center Ballroom preceded by a reception at 6:30 p.m.

Panelists for "The Media: Moral and Practical Issues - Sept. 11 and After" are Rhonda Bellamy, news director at WGNI and WMNX and talk show host at WAAV radio; Jon Evans, news anchor and managing editor at WWAY-TV 3; Susan Dankel, general manager of WHQR, Wilmington's National Public Radio affiliate; and Allen Parsons, associate publisher and executive editor of the Wilmington Star-News.

Bellamy

Evans

Dankel

Parsons

Sponsored by the Pastoral Summit and the Creative Writing and English departments, this event is free and open to the public.

"We constantly hear complaints about 'the media, the media,' but actually there is no such thing," said Paul Wilkes, a creative writing lecturer and project director of the Pastoral Summit. "Instead, there are many different kinds of news organizations, with a variety of approaches. And within them, decisions about coverage are made by an even wider range of individuals, often under both deadline and economic pressures."

The Pastoral Summit began three years ago with a Lilly Endowment grant to study church excellence and the role of faith in both public and private life. The Pastoral Summit is sponsoring a Spiritual Masters Series which is being held at downtown Wilmington churches. For more information, visit the Web site www.findagreatchurch.org.

Dedication of Shinn Plaza Set for Nov. 6

The campus community is invited to the dedication of Shinn Plaza scheduled for 4:30 p.m. Nov. 6 at the plaza which is located adjacent to the International and Honors residence halls. The plaza honors Gerald Shinn, professor emeritus, philosophy and religion. Shinn, who taught from 1967 to 1995, is UNCW's only recipient of the O. Max Gardner Award. This is the highest faculty honor given by the UNC Board of Governors.

UNCW's Ocean Monitoring Program Receives $925,000 Federal Grant

UNCW received a $925,000 grant from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) to continue its Coastal Ocean Research and Monitoring Program (CORMP).

"We are grateful for the strong support of senators Jesse Helms and John Edwards, representative Mike McIntyre and their staffs," said Robert Wicklund, director of federal programs at UNCW.

The CORMP program, now moving into its third year, is a comprehensive coastal ocean research and monitoring program taking an in-depth look at the biological, chemical, geological and physical/meteorological dynamics of North Carolina's coastal ocean.

"We have begun a far-reaching program to assure that future decisions regarding the health of our fragile coasts is based on comprehensive information and understanding," said Marvin K. Moss, professor of physics and physical oceanography who is directing and administering the grant. "UNCW has jumped into the forefront of an issue that is national in scope and of concern to people around the country and the world."

The program, which began in late 1999, addresses the rapid growth and development of the Southeastern region and its effects on the coastal system as well as the long-term problems associated with frequent hurricanes and other storm systems, beach erosion, polluted run-off from cities and farms and loss of living resources.

The program will have 17 permanent moorings in the coastal waters of North Carolina's Onslow and Long bays, with 20 or more fixed sites where monthly transects collect additional interdisciplinary data.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Child Care Funding

UNCW received $128,556 in federal funding from the U.S. Department of Education to provide low-income students with affordable child care. The Higher Education Amendments of 1998 authorized four-year grants to 222 institutions. UNCW was the only UNC system institution that received this funding.

Mark Williams, director of financial aid and veterans services, wrote the grant for UNCW's proposal. He included statistics from the 1999 Office of Institutional Research study of child care needs.

"The 1999 child care study clearly showed the need for child care services and financial assistance among students at UNC Wilmington," said Williams.

UNCW will administer grants of up to $500 to students with the first grants expected to be available in November.

Physics Colloquium

Curt Moyer, physics and physical oceanography, will present "Teaching Quantum Physics with QM Tools" at 2 p.m. Nov. 2 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served.

Biological Sciences Seminar

Gary Ray, a research marine biologist with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Research and Development Center, will present "Ecological Monitoring of a Beach Nourishment Operation: Asbury Park, Manasquan Inlet, New Jersey" at 4:30 p.m. Oct. 25 in Dobo Hall, Room 134.

French Films

The film Sans toit ni loi will be shown at 7 p.m. Oct. 29 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium, as part of the French Film Series sponsored by the Department of Foreign Language and Literatures. This 1985 film, directed by Agnes Varda, is a documentary-style portrait of a homeless woman's acceptance. 37,2 le matin, a film adapted from a novel by Philippe Dijan, will be shown Nov. 5.

Farewell Reception

Randall Library will host a farewell reception for Kimberley Barker, outreach librarian, at 3 p.m. Nov. 2 at the library's first-floor art wall.

Center Stage Buffets

The Center Stage lunch buffets, served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Warwick Center, Seahawk Grille, will feature the following menus:

Friday - London broil, baked ziti, oven-roasted potatoes, steamed broccoli, squash casserole, assorted salads, rolls, desserts and beverages.

Tuesday - Celebrate Halloween with these creepy delights - sliced horror ham with ominous orange glaze, vegetable stir-crazy stir-fry, scary scalloped potatoes, spooky spiced apples, peas with albino eyes, assorted salads, rolls, desserts and beverages.

The cost is $5.25 for these all-you-care-to-eat luncheons.

Adult Scholars

The Adult Scholars Leadership Program, which is sponsored by the Division for Public Service and Extended Education, will begin Feb. 8. This seven-week program is geared for older adults who are interested in learning about the community's history, education, government, arts, media, economy as well as volunteer and entrepreneurial opportunities. The cost is $240, and the deadline to register is Dec. 8. For more information, call ext. 3547.

Dance of Redemption

Sandra Harris, an accounting technician in the Division for Public Service and Extended Education, will portray Deneice in Alicia Alexander's Dance of Redemption. The work, about an activist who lectures on the 1898 riots, will be performed at 3 and 8 p.m. Nov. 10 at the Community Arts Center. Tickets for the performance, sponsored by Kuumba Productions and the Arts Council of the Lower Cape Fear, are $8 and $12. For more information, call 343-1282.

Aquila Theatre

The Aquila Theatre Company of London will present its production of The Wrath of Achilles at 2 p.m. Nov. 11 in Kenan Auditorium.

Based upon Homer's epic war poem The Iliad, this original work tells the story of the near-defeat of the Greeks at the hands of the advancing Trojans; Achilles' stubborn refusal to fight in the war; the tragic death of his great friend Patrouclus; and the great hero's eventual return to the battlefield to face the Trojan warrior Hector. The company uses movement, music, dance and drama to produce this age-old epic tale of human conflict.

Tickets are $5.50 for UNCW students and children age 12 and under; $11.50 for faculty/staff; $17.50 for all others and on sale at Kenan Auditorium box office. Call ext. 3500.

Witch-hunting Lecture

Lynn Mollenauer, history, will present "The Burning Times: Witches and Witch-hunting in Europe and America, 1500-1800" at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 30 in the Randall Library Auditorium.

Protected Area Designation

Robert George, biological sciences, is seeking faculty interested in working to achieve the designation of the Lindquist Coral massifs as a marine protected area. George described the biology of these deep coral reefs, which are located in Onslow Bay, in the international journal Hydrobiologia. He named the reefs in memory of David Lindquist. To contact George, e-mail georger.

Hurricanes Bus Trip

Campus recreation is sponsoring a bus trip to the National Hockey League game between the Carolina Hurricanes and the New York Rangers Nov. 2 at the Raleigh Entertainment Sports Arena. The cost is $30 and includes ticket and transportation. For more information, call ext. 7443.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

MEMORANDUM

TO: All UNCW Employees

FROM: Stan H. Harts, Director, Environmental Health & Safety (EH&S)
Maj. Robert L. Riley, University Police

SUBJECT: Anthrax Threat Procedures

DATE: October 17, 2001

Recently there has been a great deal of attention given to the "Anthrax letters" being mailed to several locations in the country. Although, unfortunately, there has been one death linked to such a letter, the risk is actually extremely low. In fact, in 1998 nearly 200 facilities received such letters. Most were empty envelopes, many others contained powdery substances, no incidents occurred. However, as a result of the recent mailings many questions have been asked, and in response, the University Police and the UNCW Environmental Health & Safety Departments are providing the following information. The purpose of this letter is to outline the procedures at UNCW and to inform employees that a plan does exist to address such an event if it did occur. Although the risk is minimal, we need to remain alert but calm and regard all threats or suspicious packages as valid. Following the procedures below are our best defenses.

HOW TO IDENTIFY SUSPICIOUS PACKAGES

- Excessive postage
- Handwritten or poorly typed addresses
- Misspellings
- Cut and paste lettering
- Letters addressed to persons by title only with no name
- Stains on the outside of the envelope
- NO RETURN ADDRESS
- Incomplete mailing address (such as UNCW, Wilmington, NC only)
- Excessive weight
- Uneven weight or package contains bulky items.
- Wires or aluminum foil
- A postmark that does not match the return address

IF YOU LOCATE OR RECEIVE A SUSPICIOUS PACKAGE, ONE THAT CONTAINS A THREAT AND OR CONTAINS POWDER (ANTHRAX LETTERS)

- Do not try to clean it up.
- Do not allow anyone else to touch the package and do not shake it or handle it excessively.
- Place the package in a plastic bag. If you do not have a bag, cover the envelope with clothing, a trashcan, etc.
- Leave the room, close and lock your office or suite door. Stay nearby but clear the adjacent work areas.
- Keep your hands away from your face and wash your hands immediately with soap and water.
- Call University Police at 4911.
- List all persons who may have been in contact with the package.
- University Police will notify New Hanover County 911Center and Emergency Management. The Hazardous Materials Response Team will be responsible for collecting the evidence and conducting any necessary decontamination. Physical Plant will be contacted to shut down air handling and ventilation equipment.
- New Hanover County has procedures in place to test individuals potentially exposed and provide antibiotic treatment if necessary.

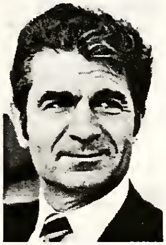
ANNOUNCEMENTS

Noted Israeli Author Among Panelists for Terrorism Discussion Sponsored by Political Science Department



Bar-Zohar

Michael Bar-Zohar, a former member of the Israeli Parliament, military lecturer and writer, will be the keynote speaker at the free, public lecture and panel discussion "Terrorism, the Middle East and Security at Home" at 7 p.m. Nov. 1 in the Warwick Center Ballroom.

Bar-Zohar, who served as a foreign correspondent in Paris from 1959-1964, saw military action in Israel during the Sinai Campaign in 1956 and the Six-Day War in 1976, and served as media and communications adviser to his longtime friend Moshe Dayan. In the 1973 Yom Kippur War, he was in the paratrooper battalion that crossed the Suez Canal and established the Israeli bridgehead in Egyptian territory.

A member of the 10th Knesset from 1981-84, Bar-Zohar was re-elected to the 12th Knesset in 1988, where he became chair of the Education and Culture Committee and the Sports Committee. He served as a member of Itzhak Rabin's inner staff in the 1992 primaries. In 1996, he was involved in the campaign for the re-election of Shimon Peres, and in 1999, he was active in the Labor Party electoral campaign.

His writing career includes research and non-fiction books as well as several novels. His book Enigma, published in 1978, was made into a movie starring Martin Sheen and Derek Jacobi.

In addition to Bar-Zohar, panelists for the discussion include Remonda Kleinberg, associate professor of political science, UNCW, an expert in international relations and international law; Cindy Combs, associate professor of political science, UNC Charlotte, an expert in international terrorism and author of Terrorism in the 21st Century; and Sanford Silverburg, professor of political science, Catawba College, an expert in Middle East Politics and author of Palestine and International Law. The moderator will be Milan Dluhy, professor and chair of UNCW's Department of Political Science.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Chris Halkides, chemistry, presented the talk "Using Oxidation Numbers and Teaching Kinetics in Biochemistry Lectures" at the 53rd southeastern regional meeting of the American Chemical Society in Savannah.

Mark Williams, financial aid and veterans services, gave the invited presentation "The New Learning Community - learnstudentaid.org" at the North Carolina Community College Student Development Personnel Association Conference in Greensboro. The presentation was sponsored by the Fund to Improve Postsecondary Education.

Jim Megivern, philosophy and religion, chaired the opening panel at the international conference "Human Rights and Prison Reform" held in Manhattan. Sponsored by C.U.R.E., a U.S.-based prison reform organization begun in Texas in 1972, the five-member panel examined the international human rights documents concerned with the death penalty. Academics and activists from 33 nations took part in the conference, drawing up "report cards" on the observance of or violation of these international standards by their own governments.

Yeoun Soo Kim-Godwin, nursing, had the paper "A Model for the Delivery of Culturally Competent Community Care" published in the Journal of Advanced Nursing. She also had the paper "Postpartum Beliefs and Practices Among Non-Western Cultures" accepted in the American Journal of Maternal Child Nursing.

Art Gowan, business, was quoted in the Sept. 30 News & Observer article "Groups Dispose of Worn-out Flags the Proper Way."

Rick Olsen, communication studies, presented the paper "Postmodern Bandstand: TRL and the Creation of Virtual Community" at the Popular Culture Association in the South. The paper examined the rhetorical and ethical features of the MTV program Total Request Live.

Opera Performance

The San Francisco Western Opera Theatre will present their production of Mozart's Cosi fan tutte at 8 p.m. Nov. 6 in Kenan Auditorium. For tickets, contact the auditorium box office at ext. 3500.

WSO Performance

The Wilmington Symphony Orchestra will present "Music That's Easy to Love" at 8 p.m. Nov. 3 in Kenan Auditorium. For tickets, call the auditorium box office at ext. 3500.

Ellerby, Boren to Read

English professors Janet Ellerby and Mark Boren will read from their works at 8 p.m. Oct. 30 in the Warwick Center, Center Stage Cafe.

Book Sale

Randall Library will hold its fourth annual book sale 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Nov. 5 and 6 and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 7.

Centura Funds Cameron School of Business Scholarships

Larry Clark, dean of the Cameron School of Business, (right) watches Scott Custer, president of RBC Centura, sign the scholarship check.

RBC Centura Banks Inc., a $12 billion-asset financial services company based in North Carolina, has pledged $50,000 over five years to support two $2,500 annual scholarships and to establish one endowed scholarship at UNC Wilmington's Cameron School of Business. UNCW will award the first scholarships in the fall of 2002. These honors scholarships will be designated for business majors attending UNCW from regions in North Carolina that RBC Centura serves.

In announcing the scholarships, Larry Clark, dean of the Cameron School of Business, said, "The RBC Centura Scholarships will permit two outstanding business majors to earn an education at UNCW. In designating that recipients be from the Centura Bank service region, Centura supports both the customer base it serves and UNCW."

"Our commitment to our communities is very important to us," said Scott Custer, president of RBC Centura, which is based in Rocky Mount, N.C. "The ability to combine this donation with education at such an important university makes us truly proud. UNCW is an asset to the community as well as to the students it serves."

Musician/Songwriter Charlie Daniels Added to Walk

Charlie Daniels, musician, songwriter and composer, was inducted into the Walk of Fame Oct. 24 at the walk plaza, which is located behind the Cotton Exchange Plaza.

Celebrate Wilmington! honored Daniels, a native of Wilmington, for his contributions to the arts. Celebrate Wilmington! is a partnership among the community, the Arts Council of the Lower Cape Fear and UNC Wilmington to promote the area's cultural arts. As the 10th Walk of Fame inductee, Daniels joins past honorees such as professional football player Roman Gabriel, artist Minnie Evans and journalist David Brinkley.

S.C. Scholar to Lecture on Literary Biography

Matthew Bruccoli from the University of South Carolina will lecture on "Writing About Writers: Experiences as a Literary Biographer" at 8 p.m. Nov. 8 in Cameron Hall Auditorium. The Katherine K. Buckner Distinguished Presentations Series and the UNCW English Department sponsor this free, public lecture.

Bruccoli, the Emily Brown Jefferies Professor of English at USC Columbia, served as general editor of the Dictionary of Literary Biography. His publications include Some Sort of Epic Grandeur: The Life of F. Scott Fitzgerald and Fitzgerald and Hemingway: A Dangerous Friendship. He also co-edited Thomas Wolfe's O Lost and F. Scott Fitzgerald Before Gatsby: Twenty-six Stories both published by the University of South Carolina Press.

A member of the USC Columbia faculty since 1969, Bruccoli earned a Ph.D. at the University of Virginia. He teaches courses on 20th-century American fiction, bibliography and text, Fitzgerald and Hemingway and the profession of authorship.

A reception and book signing will follow the lecture.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Movie Makers Lectures

UNCW graduate Chip Hackler will show his film Cathedral and discuss his work at 2 p.m. Nov. 2, and filmmaker Jerry Ziesmer will discuss his work at 2 p.m. Nov. 9 as part of the Movie Makers Lecture Series sponsored by the Film Studies Program. Both lectures will be in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium.

Hackler, associate director of the Film Studies Program, is also an independent filmmaker who has worked in the Wilmington film industry for more than 18 years.

Ziesmer was associate producer on Almost Famous and first assistant director for Jerry Maguire, Singles and Say Anything. In addition to working with writer/director Cameron Crowe, Ziesmer was an assistant director on Apocalypse Now and 1941 where he worked with Francis Ford Coppola and Steven Spielberg, respectively.

UNCW Has Lowest Loan Default Rate in UNC System

According to data from the U.S. Department of Education in Washington, D.C., UNCW has the lowest student loan default rate of any UNC system institution.

UNCW's Federal Perkins Loan Default Rate was 1.4 percent for the period ending June 30, 2000. The UNCW rate reflects 134 borrowers in the repayment cohort with only two in default. Appalachian State University had the second lowest rate at 5.7 percent. Elizabeth City State University had the highest default rate at 50 percent.

"The default rate is an indicator of several factors including overall management of the loan programs, the quality of the academic programs and the student's ability to find and secure employment that allows them to sustain repayment," said Mark Williams, director of financial aid and veterans services.

Alumni Association Seeking Honorees

The UNCW Alumni Association is seeking nominees for its annual awards program. The Alumnus/Alumna of the Year Award is open to all men and women who attended and/or graduated from Wilmington College or UNCW. The Distinguished Citizen Award is open to anyone for notable service to the university and community. The awards will be presented Jan. 18 at a formal dinner in the Warwick Center Ballroom.

Nominations can be made by writing a letter of recommendation to the association's board of directors, specifying the award category and describing why the individual merits the honor. Include the nominee's name, address, daytime phone number and work place and send to Patricia C. Smith, executive director of alumni relations, at Wise Alumni House by Nov. 30. For more information, call ext. 2682.

Festival of Trees Selling Raffle and Luncheon Tickets

The 19th annual Festival of Trees is sponsoring a raffle to benefit the Lower Cape Fear Hospice. The grand prize is a 2002 Harley-Davidson ZLX Sportster 883 motorcycle. The drawing will be held Dec. 2 at the Festival of Trees located at the Hilton Wilmington Riverside.

Tickets are also on sale for the annual Festival of Trees Luncheon scheduled for Dec. 1 at the Hilton Wilmington Riverside. Haskell Eargle, an internationally known floral designer from Waxhaw, N.C., will be the featured speaker. Eargle's designs have been displayed at the Mint Museum in Charlotte and the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. Luncheon tickets are $30. For more information, contact Amanda Lisk at ext. 7363.

"The Wrath of Achilles"

sunday, november 11
2 pm, kenan auditorium

"The classics made relevant with superb acting and clever staging." The New Yorker

Revisit the plains of Troy for a compelling and epic theatrical experience - "The Wrath of Achilles", based on Homer's epic war poem, The Iliad. Renowned for its bold and innovative stagings of Greek drama, Aquila will hurl their audience into a world at war where the desperate struggle for survival in mortal combat tests the mettle of these great classical heroes. "The Wrath of Achilles" will bring a new generation of theatre-goers face to face with the sheer dramatic force and power of epic ancient Greek poetry.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Lu Ellen Huntley, English, represented the state's District 13 at the annual North Carolina English Teachers Conference in Winston-Salem, where she presented "Sustained Revision: Where the Action Is in the Writing Process."

Barbara Waxman, English, had the article "Old Age and Life Writing" published in The Encyclopedia of Life Writing, edited by Margaretta Jolly (Fitzroy Dearborn Publishers).

Ned H. Martin, chemistry, attended the Frontiers in Biomolecular Simulation Symposium at Georgia Tech.

Peggy Turner, disability services, presented "Technology Access Issues - Curb Cuts on the Information Superhighway" at the National Academic Advising Association Conference in Ottawa, Canada.

Susan Lovelace and James Merritt, CMS, received $280,182 in funding from the Department of Environment and Natural Resources for 2001-02. The grant will support education about the N.C. National Estuarine Research Reserve.

Thomas Lankford, Martin Posey, Troy Alphin, Ami Wilbur and Stephen Kinsey, biological sciences and CMS, received $10,000 from North Carolina Sea Grant for the project "Connecting Coastal Ocean Processes and Estuarine-dependent Fisheries: Impacts of the Cape Fear Plume on Recruitment."

Eleanor Wright, curricular studies, received $9,288 from UNC Charlotte for the project "Collaboration Program in Low Incidence Populations: Severe Disabilities and Autism."

Jessica Burtt, CROSSROADS, received $60,000 from the Governor's Crime Commission for the project "CROSSROADS CO-OP: Substance Abuse Prevention and Peer Education."

William McLellan and Ann Pabst, biological sciences and CMS, received $24,950 from the National Marine Fisheries Service for the project "Development of Large Whale Necropsy Protocol."

Stephen Errante, music, composed Festival Dances, which was commissioned by the Dearborn (Michigan) Orchestral Society for its first concert in the Ford Community and Performing Arts Center.

Lavonne Adams, creative writing, contributed Poem on the Vagaries of Love for a "quilt of poetry" displayed at the opening of the N.C. Women's and Children's Hospitals in Raleigh. Each North Carolina county was represented by a female poet.

Tom Barth, political science, had the article "The Role of Ad Hoc Regional Alliances in Managing Growth" published in the October edition of Public Works Management & Policy. Barth also chaired a roundtable on MPA programs at the annual Southeastern Conference on Public Administration in Baton Rouge, La.

Erin Meagher and Bill McLellan, biological sciences, participated in a two-month NOAA cruise in the eastern tropical Pacific Ocean near the Galapagos Islands. The cruise investigated stress in dolphins repeatedly captured in the tuna purse-seine fishery.

Daniel Ivancevich, accountancy and business law had the article "IT Opportunities for Internal Auditors" published in the July/August issue of Internal Auditing. The article was co-authored by L.M. Hadden, D.R. Hermanson and M.C. Hill of Kennesaw State University.

Julian Keith and Antonio Puente, psychology, had the article "Memory and Attention Differences Between Cardiopulmonary Bypass Surgery Patients and Healthy Controls: Some Advantages of Parametric Statistics Over Incidence Reports" accepted for publication by the journal Neuropsychology. Howard F. Marks, M.D., a New Hanover cardiothoracic surgeon, and UNCW alumni, Keri Malcolmson, Shane Tartt and Amy Coleman, were co-authors. Malcolmson is a graduate student in the medical sciences program at the University of Florida, Gainsville. Tartt and Coleman are enrolled in medical schools at Pennsylvania State University and East Carolina University, respectively.

IACUC Proposals

The Institutional Animal Care and Use Committee will meet Nov. 8 to review protocols involving vertebrate animals. Faculty, staff and students planning research or teaching classes that involve animals should submit proposals via e-mail to M. J. Carver, sponsored programs, at carvermj by Nov. 6. Direct questions to ext. 3809.

Toner Cartridges

Don't throw away those empty toner cartridges. Recycle them at central stores. For details, call ext. 3621 or 3180.

Recycle Directories

UNCW's recycling program will collect outdated campus directories; place directories next to building recycle containers.

Purchasing Reminders

Verification of merchandise received and timely payment are critical to university/vendor relationships.

Departments should forward partial and completed receiving invoices with the appropriate signatures to purchasing services within three days of receipt.

Departments should send original invoices to accounts payable unless documented otherwise on standing order exceptions. Misplaced invoices could create vendor hardships and prevent the university from receiving payment discounts. Invoices sent to departments or enclosed in goods received should be forwarded to accounts payable immediately.

NC Flex

Open enrollment for NC Flex is through Nov. 9. Employees must re-enroll in medical expense and dependent day care spending accounts each year. During open enrollment, employees can change dental, vision and AD&D options. When finished, return the NC Flex booklet to human resources for its use at other state agencies. Information about NC Flex is available at the Web site www.ncflex.org.

Faculty/Staff Flu Vaccinations Set for Nov. 7 and 8

Flu shots for faculty and staff will be given Nov. 7 and 8 in the Student Recreation Center Training Room. The chart below lists the time and date for inoculations. It is not necessary to call wellness services to make an appointment.

Individuals whose last name begins with:

OCTOBER HIGHLIGHTS

UNCW Volunteers
Halloween Carnival for Kids
October 25th 5-10pm Warwick Center

Join over 300 UNCW student volunteers as we entertain 250 children from numerous communities in New Hanover County. Volunteers plan, create, an operate a huge spooky haunted house in Center Stag Student organizations run carnival games such as fac painting; bean bag toss; twister; and many more. Tricks and treats are provided by area businesses.

After visiting the Carnival and haunted house, kids are matched with UNCW student 'escorts' and take trick-or-treating through the UNCW Residence Hall

This is one event you won't want to miss!!! Call the UNCW volunteers, at 962-3877 to sign up for volunteer on a committee or for day-of-event work.
Let's show some very special kids that UNCW is a frightfully delightful place to be!!!

Aquila Theatre Company

in Homer's "The Wrath of Achilles"
Sunday, November 11, 2001, 2pm
Kenan Auditorium

Revisit the plains of Troy for a compelling and epic theatrical experience - The Wrath of Achilles based on Homer's epic war poem, The Illiad. Renowned for its bold and innovative stagings of Greek drama, Aquila will hurl their audience into a world at war where the desperate struggle for survival in mortal combat tests the mettle of these great classical heroes. Homer's great epic poetry will live again in this invigorating and exciting production described by The New York Times as "a performance of staggering power."

National Hunger and Homelessness Awareness Week

November 12th –16th

Did you know that one-tenth of the families in the United States are living in poverty. Most do not have enough money to buy the food they need to eat. Join the Center for Leadership Education and Service and the UNCW Volunteers for a week's worth of programming reflecting on the interrelated crises of poverty, hunger, and homelessness facing our nation today. This week is designed to raise awareness about these issues as well as show students, faculty, staff, and the community easy ways that YOU can make a difference both locally and nationally. For more information or to sign up for any of the events below, please call the Center for Leadership Education and Service at 962-3877.

Monday November 12
Faces of Homelessness/ 7pm/ UU Living Room

Come hear the true stories of homeless people from the Wilmington community. Speakers from an area homeless shelter share their daily struggles, their successes, and the route that led them to a life on the streets.

Tuesday November 13
Food Drive/ 6pm/ UU 212

Join other UNCW students as we collect canned goods from area grocery stores. Last year 50 bags of food were collected for the hungry in our area.

Wednesday, November 14
Hunger Banquet/ 6:30pm/ WCBR

The UNCW Department of Social Work is hosting a free dinner to raise awareness about hunger issues and the global community. This experiential, informative, program will be an experience you never forget.

Thursday November 15-Friday November 16
Homelessness Awareness Sleep Out
8pm-8am

Have you ever wondered what it was like to be homeless? Come experience it for one night. The sleep out is designed to raise personal awareness about the issue of homelessness as well as community awareness. Media coverage from this event in 1997 resulted in a $10,00 donation to an area homeless shelter.

All Week Long.../ 11am-2pm daily

Stop by tables in the University Union to participate in a letter writing campaign, or to learn more about hunger and homelessness on the local, national, and international level.

Adopt-A-Family Thanksgiving Baskets

If you, your organization, class, or hall would like to sponsor a needy family for Thanksgiving, please call 962-3877 by November 12th to register with the UNCW Volunteers. Food baskets are prepared and delivered to families in need. Many families were sponsored last year, but many more went unadopted...please help us reach our goal.

UNCW Angel Tree - November 26-December 6

One way to bring meaning to the holiday season is to give to those less fortunate than you. Stop by the trees in the University Union lobby and the Randall Library lobby and select an angel to adopt on your own or with an organization. Each angel represents a youngster in the area community who won't have much of a holiday season without your help. Wrapped and labeled presents can be turned in to the Center for Leadership Education and Service, UU212, by 5pm on December 6th. Make a difference in the life of a child!

Visiting Poet Timothy Liu to Give Reading Nov. 13 in King Hall

Poet Timothy Liu will read from his works at 8 p.m. Nov. 13 in King Hall Auditorium. This free, public reading is sponsored by the Creative Writing Department. A reception and book signing will follow.

Liu, a distinguished visiting professor in UNCW's Creative Writing Department, is the author of four books of poems including Hard Evidence published this year. His first collection of poetry Vox Angelica won the 1992 Norma Farber First Book Award from the Poetry Society of America. In addition to receiving a PEN Open Book Citation in 2000 and a special mention for the Pushcart Prize in 1999, Liu is a two-time finalist for the Lambda Literary Award.

According to Poetry magazine, Liu's poetry is a "daring, sensitive, impassioned body of work that deftly struggles to balance the internal, sensitive, solitary world of the poet against the external struggle of an Asian, Mormon, gay man with everyday living. Liu's range of subject matter is wide and contemporary, sometimes sexually frank, often meditative, always emotionally candid."

Liu's poems and reviews have been published in the journals The Antioch Review, Boulevard, The Kenyon Review, Paris Review, Ploughshares, River Styx and TriQuarterly. He is also the editor of two books, Word of Mouth: An Anthology of Gay American Poetry and Take Out: Queer Asian American Writing.

Liu

Liu, whose parents are from the Chinese mainland, grew up in San Jose, Calif. He studied at the University of Massachusetts, the University of Houston and Brigham Young University. An assistant professor of English at William Paterson University, Liu lives in Hoboken, N.J. During his two-month stay as a distinguished visiting professor, Liu is teaching a poetry workshop in UNCW's Master of Fine Arts Program.

Movie Makers Lecture Features Jerry Ziesmer

READY WHEN YOU ARE,
Mr. Coppola, Mr. Spielberg, Mr. Crowe.
Jerry Ziesmer

Filmmaker Jerry Ziesmer will discuss his work at 2 p.m. Nov. 9 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium, as part of the Movie Makers Lecture Series sponsored by the Film Studies Program.

Ziesmer, who was associate producer on Almost Famous and first assistant director for Jerry Maguire, Singles and Say Anything, also worked as an assistant director on Apocalypse Now and 1941 where he worked with Francis Ford Coppola and Steven Spielberg. He chronicled his life behind the camera in the autobiography Ready When You Are, Mr. Coppola, Mr. Spielberg, Mr. Crowe.

UNCW Holding First-ever Dance Production

The UNCW Department of Art and Theater will perform its first-ever dance production – Dancers and Friends Dancing. The performance, which opens at 8 p.m. Nov. 15 in Kenan Auditorium, features choreography by UNCW professors Nancy Podrasky Carson and Doris Levy as well as local choreographers Erika Meyerson and Harper Piver. Additional shows will be held at 8 p.m. Nov. 16 and 17. Admission is $7; UNCW student tickets admitted free with a valid I.D. Special group rates are available to dance groups and schools; call the auditorium box office at ext. 3500.

Dancers and Friends Dancing is comprised of four pieces including CityScape, a unique display of life in a larger city depicted through dance and movement, and Stories, an exploration of character and mood that was inspired by actual events and experiences of the performers, who will dance to a soundtrack that combines music with their voices to tell their individual stories. The other dances, Within and Recalled by the Manufacturer Malfunction on Line 17, are modern dance pieces choreographed by Erika Meyerson and Harper Piver, respectively.

The performers for Dancers and Friends Dancing are trained dancers, actors and athletes who wanted to create a unique dance-theater event, said Carson. "The performers are from a variety of backgrounds. Some have been studying dance for 15 years and others have never danced on a stage. They all work together and help each other out and that cooperative mood will be very evident in our production."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Concert Band

The UNCW Concert Band, under the direction of Harry McLamb, will perform at 8 p.m. Nov. 19 in Kenan Auditorium. Tickets are $5, $2.50 for faculty and staff and free to UNCW students with ID.

Friday - Fruited pork loin, pasta primavera, wild rice, glazed carrots, squash casserole, assorted salads, beverages and desserts.

Tuesday - BBQ chicken, vegetable pot pie, macaroni and cheese, green beans, corn on the cob, assorted salads, desserts and beverages.

The cost is $5.25 for these all-you-care-to-eat luncheons.

Exhibition Games

The Seahawk men's basketball team will play the Lithuanian All-Stars in an exhibition game at 7 p.m. Nov. 9, and the women's team will play the National Women's Basketball League at 2 p.m. Nov. 10. Both games are in Trask Coliseum. Tickets are $5 for the men's game. Faculty and staff admission is free to the women's game.

Hunger and Homelessness Awareness Week

Hunger and Homelessness Awareness Week is Nov. 12-16. Events include a "Faces of Homelessness Panel," canned food drive, "hunger banquet," and a sleep-out on the Campus Commons. For more information on the week's activities, contact the Center for Leadership Education and Service, at ext. 3043.

Piracy on the High Sea

William McCarthy, history, and Richard Lawrence from the N.C. Underwater Archaeology Unit at Fort Fisher will lecture on "Terrorists of the High Seas: Piracy During its Golden Age" at 7 p.m. Nov. 8 in the Randall Library Auditorium.

Authors' Tea

"An Afternoon Tea with Carolina Authors" will be held at 1 p.m. Dec. 1 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. Authors Ellyn Bache, Nan Graham, Pamela Duncan and Michael Malone are the featured guests. Tickets are $15. Proceeds benefit the American Association of University Women Educational Foundation fellowships, grants and scholarship programs. For more information, call Georgia Polhemus at 452-7666.

Greeks to Build House

Fraternity and sorority members, in partnership with residents from the Landfall community, are sponsoring Friends of Habitat House. During the next 11 weeks, volunteers from Greek organizations will help build a home for a mother and her three children. A ground breaking ceremony for the project will be at 10 a.m. Nov. 10 at 1203 South Fifth Street. For more information, contact Stacy Cross at ext. 3119.

Physics Colloquiums

Gabriela Gonzalez from the Department of Physics and Astronomy, Louisiana State University, will present "Gravitational Waves: A New Window to the Universe" at 2 p.m. Nov. 9.

Anna Lin from Duke University's Physics Department and the Center for Nonlinear and Complex Systems will present "Frequency Locking of Reaction-diffusion Patterns" at 2 p.m. Nov. 16.

Both talks will be in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served.

Think EDC for Office Holiday Celebrations

UNCW's Executive Development Center is available for departments and offices that are planning holiday functions. The EDC can provide catering to accommodate up to 150 people in a banquet-style setting or 250 people reception-style. For more information on discounted rates, call ext. 3578.

CCE's Outlook Provides Employees Access to E-mail and Calendar Anywhere, Anytime Using Web Browsers

As the Collaborative Computing Environment continues its Phase One implementation, faculty and staff are discovering how easy it is to access e-mail, calendar and contact information from any computer.

By using Outlook Web Access (OWA), faculty and staff can use any computer's Web browser to open their Outlook account, said Beverly Vagnerini, director of the Department of Client Services in the Information Technology Systems Division.

"Just type mail.uncw.edu, and at the prompt, enter your username and password. Using e-mail, calendar and contact lists with Outlook Web Access is nearly the same as using Outlook on your desktop," Vagnerini said.

Once OWA opens the mail account, the shortcut icons for the inbox, calendar, contacts and options will be displayed on the left side bar. To display folders, the user will need to click <Folders> at the bottom of the side bar, said Vagnerini

"Because Outlook Web Access works with any Internet browser, users can now work with their e-mail as if they were sitting at their own desktop," said Vagnerini. "Double click a message, and it will open in a new window for easier viewing."

With OWA users have access to several useful tools through the options icon.

"Using 'view,' faculty and staff can quickly organize messages by sender, subject, conversation topic, unread, unread by conversation and sent to," said Vagnerini. "The 'out of the office assistant' can send an automatic response to anyone who e-mails the user, and you can even set it up to send a customized message with additional details."

Users will also have access to the Global Address List through OWA, said Vagnerini. This roster of all faculty and staff is stored alphabetically by last name.

To use the list, click on the "to" button of a new message. When the new window opens, type in part or all of the recipient's last name and a list of names will appear. The Global Access List is selected by default. Select the correct recipient and then click on the "ok" button at the bottom of the window.

"The Global Address List takes the guess work out of finding e-mail addresses of UNCW colleagues while you're away from the office," said Vagnerini adding that it is updated with new users weekly.

Using Outlook Web Access, faculty and staff will also have access to their calendar from any computer. After clicking on the calendar icon, users can view and schedule appointments or invite others to a meeting. "Working with the calendar using OWA is nearly the same as using Outlook on your desktop," said Vagnerini.

ITSD started Phase One of the Outlook implementation in late October. A deployment schedule is posted at the Web at www.uncwil.edu/dcs/exchange. The site will also provide updates on Outlook's campus-wide implementation as well as answers to frequently asked questions and "how to" tips about the software.

Health Professor Teaches Nutrition to Gastric Bypass Support Group

Prior to Thanksgiving, health educator Melody Kyzer (left) took members of a local gastric bypass support group on a grocery store walk-through where she gave them tips on nutritionally beneficial alternatives to traditional holiday menus.

You diet, lose weight, stop and gain it all back. You diet, lose weight, stop and gain it all back - again. For the severely obese, one solution to this yo-yo behavior is gastric bypass surgery.

The surgery alters patients anatomically. To help cope with the physical, mental and emotional changes that result from the operation, members of a local gastric bypass support group rely on health educator and registered dietitian Melody Kyzer.

An assistant professor in the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department, Kyzer along with professors Sue Combs and Lisa Griffin volunteer each month offering continuing education programs about better eating habits and increased physical activity to the group's nearly 100 members.

"Losing weight requires physical and emotional changes, but for those who undergo surgical weight-loss procedures, an educational component devoted to nutrition is especially important for any individual," said Kyzer, a graduate of the University of South Carolina School of Public Health.

Gastric bypass and other surgical procedures have common post-operative side effects including nausea, diarrhea and abdominal pain, said Kyzer. To combat these side effects, she instructs individuals on selecting the most nutritionally beneficial foods.

"Immediately after the surgery, anatomical changes prevent the body from adequately absorbing nutrients, especially protein. Patients must work to preserve as much muscle mass as possible until the body can handle different types of food."

As weight loss continues, individuals experience more changes such as improved self-esteem and increased mobility.

"Changes in body perception can trigger a host of issues," said Kyzer. "For instance, as an individual loses weight, a spouse could become insecure with the attention his or her mate is receiving from members of the opposite sex, and co-workers can get jealous of a colleague's new confidence level and improved self-esteem."

Obesity is a cause that Kyzer can relate to on a personal level. She grew up an overweight teenager. While she learned to eat healthier and lose weight, she remembers her feelings of awkwardness and embarrassment.

"Many members of the gastric bypass support group have obese children, and where do children learn their eating habits? One of my goals is that group members will take these nutritional lessons home to their families and use the information to make a change in their children's lives," said Kyzer.

Dealing with the physical, emotional, mental and social aspects of a person's life, whether it's obesity, substance abuse, diabetes or other chronic illnesses, is the thrust of health education, said Kyzer. She is one of four professors teaching courses in the HPER Department's new health education concentration.

According to Mike Perko, program coordinator for the concentration, educational intervention and support is the best avenue to prevent, delay or control such health problems.

"Students who pursue the health education concentration will receive comprehensive preparation to design, implement and evaluate programs promoting healthier behaviors in a variety of settings. Public schools, colleges, voluntary health agencies, government agencies and corporate and commercial worksites are among the organizations with an increasing need for health education specialists," said Perko, an assistant professor in health who specializes in dietary supplement use among young athletes.

"Promoting healthy behavior is more than counting calories or knowing facts and figures. Facts and figures change everyday. What doesn't change is the fact that people's motivations, personality traits, upbringing, perceptions of reality, etc., lead them to many unhealthy behaviors. The chronic diseases that now account for more than 50 percent of all premature deaths in the United States, while largely a result of poor diet, lack of exercise and stress, among other causes, are results of personal and environmental behaviors or patterns that many people fail to recognize and understand. In order to change unhealthy behaviors, health specialists must identify the underlying behaviors which cause people to make unhealthy decisions," said Perko.

Like a detective who studies clues and who asks probing questions, such is the case with a health specialist.

"Striving for optimal health involves a dynamic interplay between a person's physical, social, emotional, intellectual, vocational, environmental and spiritual states," said Perko. "Health education specialists are prepared to take all these facets of life into account to encourage change, and our program is designed to instruct students on how to provide individuals, groups and communities with the information and science-based processes necessary to make informed decisions concerning their lifestyles and health behaviors."

Graduates of the health education concentration are prepared to take the certified health education specialist exam, which is the recognized standard in the field, said Perko.

In addition to Kyzer and Perko, other faculty teaching courses in the health education concentration are department chair Carl Stockton and associate professor Darwin Dennison.

Stockton developed the health education program at Radford University and is a member of the board of directors for the American Association of Health Education. Dennison, a former national president of the American Association of Health Education and a fellow of the American College of Nutrition, developed DINE software, the only nutrition software to have a patent on food choices and recommended for use by the National Institutes of Health.

Seahawk Men's Basketball Game to Be Televised

UNC Wilmington vs
Ohio State
5 p.m. Dec. 2
Time Warner
Cable Channel 30

Bring a Toy, Get Free Admission to Women's Basketball Game

A fan bringing a new, unwrapped toy will receive free admission to the women's basketball game against Coastal Carolina University scheduled for 7 p.m. Dec. 1 in Trask Coliseum. This offer supports the Toys for Tots campaign directed by the Marine Corps Reserve.

Listen to Seahawk Basketball on the Internet

Seahawk men's basketball fans can listen to radio broadcasts via the Internet through Yahoo Broadcasting Inc. at sports.yahoo.com. Using audio streaming, Yahoo will carry the WAAV broadcast featuring Sam Gore and Wayne Jackson. The broadcast is also accessible from the Seahawk athletics site at www.uncwil.edu/athletics.

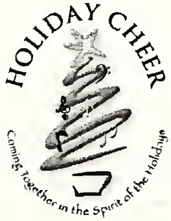
Heritage Society Dinner Dance

The Italian Heritage Society of Cape Fear will hold its annual holiday dinner and dance from 6 to 11 p.m. Dec. 8 at the Warwick Center Ballroom. Tickets are $40 per person. Proceeds benefit the society's scholarship fund. To purchase tickets, call 793-2688 between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Be a Part of Graduation

Volunteers are needed to assist with commencement Dec. 21 in Trask Coliseum. Volunteer duties include helping assemble students in Hanover Hall for the procession, taking tickets and distributing programs. Staff interested in volunteering for Hanover Hall duties should contact Jennie Royal, assistant dean of students, at ext. 3119 or e-mail royalj. Other volunteers should contact Mary Crookes, university events coordinator, at ext. 7505 or crookesm. Volunteers must report for duty at 8 a.m. Dec. 21 and duties should be completed by 11:30 a.m.

Holiday Cheer



HOLIDAY CHEER
Coming Together in the Spirit of the Holidays

The Campus Activities and Involvement Center is sponsoring "Holiday Cheer" at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 13 on the University Commons. This program is designed to celebrate the many traditions of the holiday season. Festivities include holiday, music, refreshments and season's greetings from Adrien Lopez, president of the Student Government Association.

SGA Reaching Out to Community Through Off-campus Meetings

The legislative body of UNCW's Student Government Association met Nov. 13 in the Town Hall on Castle Street. According to Kelly Graham, secretary of public relations for the SGA, off-campus meetings are an opportunity for the association to reach out and bring UNCW into the community as well as to learn how students can become more involved in local issues. Wilmington mayor-elect Harper Peterson was guest speaker for the meeting.

Angel Trees

The Center for Leadership Education and Service (CLES) is sponsoring its annual Angel Tree Program which benefits children at the Boys and Girls Home of North Carolina at Lake Waccamaw. After selecting an angel from trees located in the University Union or Randall Library, participants take the angel to CLES, University Union, Room 212, for gift information about that child. Wrapped and labeled gifts are due at CLES by Dec. 10. For more information, call ext. 3877.

Art Sale

The UNCW Art Club will hold a Christmas art sale from 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Dec. 3-5 in Kenan Hall.

Shinn Plaza Dedicated

Gerald Shinn (right), professor emeritus of philosophy and religion, along with members of his family celebrated the dedication of the plaza named in his honor. Located near the International and Honors Houses, the structure combines various elements that are symbolic of Shinn's discipline. The intricate design of the filigree metal dome symbolizes the complexities of philosophical discussion and the Doric columns, which are the oldest and simplest of the three orders of classic Greek architecture, are symbolic of the Doric dialect possibly spoken by ancient Greek philosophers.

Finalist Meetings

Rebecca Porterfield, Kenneth Spackman and Cecil Willis are finalists for the position of associate vice chancellor for academic affairs. Faculty are invited to attend meetings with the candidates on the following dates: Nov. 30 with Willis, Dec. 6 with Porterfield and Dec. 7 with Spackman. Meetings will be held from 4 to 5 p.m. in Cameron Hall, Room 105.

Department chairs can meet with finalists from 3 to 4 p.m. in Alderman Hall, Room 215, on the following dates: Nov. 30 with Spackman, Dec. 7 with Porterfield and Dec. 14 with Willis.

Nominees Sought for Teaching Awards

Faculty, staff, students and alumni interested in nominating professors for the Chancellor's Teaching Excellence or Distinguished Teaching Professorship awards should submit a nomination letter by Jan. 25 to the provost's office. Award descriptions and criteria are available at www.uncwil.edu/aa. Click on the link "Nominations for Teaching Awards."

SPA Temporary Employees

Beginning in January, departments will use HR ONLINE for pay actions for SPA hourly and flat-rate employees instead of the HR 1.30 form. Employees who are responsible for processing HR 1.30 forms must register for one of the following HR ONLINE training sessions: 9 a.m. to noon p.m. Dec. 13 in Cameron Hall, Room 105, or 9 a.m. to noon, Jan. 15 in Hoggard Hall, Room 226. Current HR ONLINE users must register for a workshop scheduled from 2 to 4 p.m. Dec. 11 in Cameron Hall, Room 105. To register, e-mail JoAnn McDowell at mcdowellj.

Open House

The UNCW bookstore is holding a holiday open house from 4 to 7 p.m. Dec. 4. Clothing and gifts will be discounted 20 percent off regular prices. Refreshments will be served.

Credit Union Membership

Immediate family members of university employees are now eligible for membership at the State Employees' Credit Union. Immediate family includes spouse, parents, children and persons living in the same residence maintaining a single economic unit with a member. To complete membership applications, employees must be on the payroll at the time the application is submitted. This includes part-time faculty, graduate teaching assistants, student workers and temporary hourly employees. The most recent pay stub will be required to verify employment. In addition to traditional banking services, the credit union offers financial counseling, low interest loans until payday and a travel service.

December Payroll

Due to winter break, employees who are paid on the last day of the month will be compensated Dec. 20. Employees enrolled in direct deposit will receive pay stubs Dec. 19; funds will be credited to accounts Dec. 20. For employees who are not on direct deposit, the cashier's office will distribute paychecks Dec. 20. Employees paid mid-month will be compensated Dec. 14.

Student Time Sheets

December time sheets are due in payroll by 4 p.m. Dec. 20. Time sheets must be signed by employees and supervisors and must be accompanied by recap sheets.

Directory Correction

On page 22 of the telephone directory, the extension of Jack Hall, director of environmental studies, should be 3488.

Welcome

Please welcome the following new employees: Kelly Barham, public service and extended education; Thomas Gemelke, university police; and Lisa Williams, accounting.

Technology Grants

The Committee for Technology Innovations is accepting grant proposals to fund projects that support the transfer of information technology to applications that improve learning or the quality of life at UNCW. Due to budget constraints, grants for this year will cover equipment exclusively. Proposals are due by 5 p.m. Dec. 10. Deliver to Kim Kelly, Alderman Hall, Room 207, or e-mail completed forms as an attachment to kellyk. Proposal forms are available at www.uncwil.edu/itsd.

Medical Insurance

Employees who have dependents age 19 or older who will graduate in December should notify human resources and complete a change form to remove them from medical insurance. Dependents who are removed within 30 days of their graduation have continued coverage under the COBRA provision. The right to COBRA continuation and refund of premium lapses after 30 days. Direct questions to Kay Fryar at ext. 3698.

Shared Leave

Patricia Aburahmeh, English; Linda Fowler, telecommunications; Sharon Green, CMS; and Heidi Messini, public service and extended education, need shared leave donations. Send vacation leave donations to Pam Christie in human resources.

UNC Wilmington Hosts Annual Screening of Capra Holiday Classic

A scene from "It's a Wonderful Life"

In what has become a holiday tradition, the University of North Carolina at Wilmington will host its annual screening of Frank Capra's It's a Wonderful Life at 7 p.m. Dec. 7 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. The Capra family's 35mm print will be used for the screening.

Following the film, there will be a panel discussion featuring Frank Capra Jr., his filmmaker son Jonathan and film studies professor Sue Richardson.

This event, which is free and open to the public, is sponsored by the Film Studies Program, the Association for Campus Entertainment and the Office of the Chancellor in conjunction with EUE Screen Gems Studios, Joe Dunton Camera, the Italian Heritage Society and Barnes & Nobles Booksellers.

Trim the Tree Party

Chancellor James R. Leutze invites faculty, staff and students to his annual "Trim the Tree Celebration" in honor of the upcoming holiday season. The party will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. Dec. 13 in the lobby of Alderman Hall.

Drop by to visit with the chancellor, hang an ornament on the tree and enjoy cookies and hot cider.

Holiday ornaments are available from previous years but feel free to bring a new decoration.

Limited Edition Hoggard Hall Print on Sale

A limited edition print of Hoggard Hall by North Carolina artist William Mangum is on sale at the university bookstore. The unframed prints, which measure 22 inches by 15 inches and restricted to 750 copies, sell for $150 each.

Mangum, a watercolor artist recognized for architectural and landscape scenes, earned bachelor's and master's degrees in fine arts from UNC Greensboro. His paintings have been exhibited at the National Arts Club, the Society of Illustrators and the Knickerbocker Artists League. Mangum's second book Carolina Preserves features stories by 48 North Carolinians accompanied by his watercolor paintings.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Faculty Advisory Committee Meeting

The Chancellor's Faculty Advisory Committee will meet at noon Dec. 14 in Alderman Hall, Room 215.

Chancellor's Staff Advisory Committee Meeting

The Chancellor's Staff Advisory Committee will meet at noon Dec. 12 in Warwick Center, Room 104. Members of the committee are: Annie Aldrich, telecommunications; Lisa Allred, payroll; Carolyn Andrews, Randall Library; Margaret Bailey, public service and extended education; Glenda Bowen, Watson School of Education; Phillip Brown, university relations; Judy Connelly, bookstore; Susie Goodrum, institutional research; Faith Joyce, physical plant; Lori Leitch, biological sciences; Mike Lloyd, printing services; Steve Mastro, CMS; Charles Mills, physical plant; Annette Richards, nursing; and Karen Thompson, career services. Staff are encouraged to share comments and suggestions with committee members.

Technology Roundtable

The Teaching and Learning with Technology Roundtable will meet at 3 p.m. Dec. 13 in Dobo Hall, Room 202. The meeting will showcase FIRE, a new Web programming environment on campus. FIRE provides access to a wide range of technologies for interactive database-driven Web sites. It also hosts a new course in the Computer Science Department, supports research projects in bioinformatics and gives faculty access to XML and Web services.

Note of Appreciation

Tim and Patricia Brewer of Owings, Md., express their sincere gratitude for the overwhelming response of thoughtfulness and generosity to staff and students following the loss of their daughter, Kristen Noelle, who was a UNCW student. "A special thank you goes out to all who attended the service in Maryland," said the Brewers.

Coach's Call-in Show

WAAV-AM, flagship of the Seahawk Radio Network, will debut The Jerry Wainwright Call-in Show Dec. 6. The weekly one-hour question-and-answer program will air from 7 to 8 p.m. and will originate from the restaurant Buffalo Wild Wings, 29 Campen Boulevard. Fans may attend the show or call in questions to 763-4000.

UNCW Senior to Intern with Sen. John Edwards

Mike Jenkins, a senior political science major, will spend the spring semester as an intern in the Washington, D.C., office of Sen. John Edwards (D-NC). Jenkins, who is originally from Cary, will work on various projects and issues related to North Carolina and the war on terrorism. Edwards is a ranking member of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence.

Center Stage Buffets

The Center Stage lunch buffets, served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Warwick Center, Seahawk Grille, will feature the following menus:

Friday – Fried pork chops, pasta primavera, mashed potatoes with gravy, broccoli and cheese casserole, carrots, assorted salads, desserts and beverages.

Tuesday – Sliced roast beef au jus with horseradish cream sauce, manicotti, oven roasted potatoes, buttered corn, green beans with garlic, assorted salads, desserts and beverages.

Black Faculty to Meet

UNCW Black Faculty will hold their monthly meeting from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Dec. 10 in the University Union, Room 207. The agenda includes a discussion of black faculty presence on campus.

Hawk's Nest Closed Dec. 21

The Hawk's Nest will be closed Dec. 21 due to commencement functions scheduled for the dining room. Faculty and staff are invited to a complimentary continental breakfast that morning from 8 to 9:30 a.m.

Note of Appreciation

The Office of Alumni Relations appreciates the efforts of employees and volunteers of the university community who helped prepare Wise Alumni House and grounds for the Old Wilmington by Candlelight Tour sponsored by the Lower Cape Fear Historical Society.

UNCW Students Can Travel to Beijing

UNCW students can apply for a semester-long program in Beijing. Sponsored by the South Atlantic States Association for Asian and African Studies and organized by Wake Forest University, the program offers a combination of Chinese language classes, cultural activities and social sciences courses about contemporary China. The next program will be offered in fall 2002. Interested students should contact Paula Kamenish, English, at ext. 3617.

Holiday Dinner

Campus dining will host its annual holiday dinner buffet from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. Dec. 12 in Wagoner Hall. The menu will include carved roast beef au jus and horseradish sauce, grilled chicken breast with orange-ginger glaze, eggplant Parmesan, pesto tres pepper bow tie pasta, baked potatoes, sauteed zucchini and tomatoes with oregano, buttered corn, broccoli au gratin, assorted salads, rolls, desserts and beverages. The cost is $6.80 for adults and $3.40 for children age four to 12. Children age three and under eat free.

A Christmas Carol

Tony Rivenbark '70 stars as Scrooge in the Theatre Exchange production of A Christmas Carol. Performances will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, Dec. 12-15 and 19-22, and 3 p.m. Dec. 16 and 23 at Thalian Hall, Studio Theatre. For ticket information, call 343-3664.

UNCW Receives 2002 Azalea Festival Poster

Provost John Cavanaugh accepted a copy of the official poster for the 55th annual Azalea Festival from Azalea belle Catherine Gerdes. The poster, painted by Wilmington artist Barbara Jamison, is the first to feature the familiar belles. Copies of the poster are on sale at the Azalea Festival Office, 5725 Oleander Drive. For more information on the festival, scheduled for April 4-7, call 794-4650.

Be a Part of Graduation

Volunteers are needed to assist with commencement Dec. 21 in Trask Coliseum. Duties include helping assemble students in Hanover Hall for the procession, taking tickets and distributing programs. Staff interested in volunteering for Hanover Hall duties should contact Jennie Royal, assistant dean of students, at ext. 3119 or e-mail royalj. Other volunteers should contact Mary Crookes, university events coordinator, at ext. 7505 or crookesm. Volunteers must report at 8 a.m. Dec. 21, duties should be completed by 11:30 a.m.

Volunteer Meeting

An information meeting for commencement volunteers will be held at 8 a.m. Dec. 13 in Wagoner Hall, Madeline Suite. Duties and procedures will be explained, and parking passes and name tags will be distributed. Danish and coffee will be served. Volunteers should RSVP their attendance to Mary Crookes by Dec. 11.

Finalist Meetings

Rebecca Porterfield, Kenneth Spackman and Cecil Willis are finalists for the position of associate vice chancellor for academic affairs. Faculty can attend meetings scheduled for 4 to 5 p.m. in Cameron Hall, Room 105, with Porterfield on Dec. 6 and Spackman on Dec. 7.

Meetings for department chairs will be held from 3 to 4 p.m. in Alderman Hall, Room 215, with Porterfield on Dec. 7 and Willis on Dec. 14.

Angel Trees

The Center for Leadership Education and Service (CLES) is sponsoring its annual Angel Tree Program which benefits children at the Boys and Girls Home of North Carolina at Lake Waccamaw. Participants should select an angel from trees located in the University Union or Randall Library and take it to CLES, University Union, Room 212, for gift information about that child. Wrapped and labeled gifts are due at CLES by Dec. 10. For more information, call ext. 3877.

Holiday Wish

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington is a toy collection site for the WECT Holiday Wish Project. To participate, bring a new, unwrapped toy to the Greek Affairs Office, University Union, Room 209B, by Dec. 10. The Salvation Army will distribute the contributions. For a list of toys needed, call ext. 3119 or ext. 3877.

Parking Consultants

Consultants will be on campus Dec. 6 and 7 to meet with specific focus groups about campus parking. Scheduled meetings, which will be held in the University Union, Room 100, are listed below. Employees who are members of these groups are encouraged to attend.

Dec. 6

- 11 a.m. to noon - resident advisers and residence coordinators
- noon to 1 p.m. - commuter and non-traditional students
- 1 to 2 p.m. - Student Government Association

Provost's Faculty Hours

Faculty drop-in hours for the provost scheduled for Dec. 14 have been changed to 3 to 5 p.m. Dec. 17.

Farewell Reception

The Division of Student Affairs will host a farewell reception for Rosemary Ferguson, health educator, wellness services, from 3 to 5 p.m. Dec. 11 in the University Union Living Room.

New Copiers

Between Jan. 2 and March 31, all departmental copiers will be replaced with new digital models that will collate at no additional charge. Printing services will contact departments prior to replacement to determine if a stapling feature is required. Direct questions to Brenda Nelson at ext. 3563.

Communique Winter Break Schedule

Due to winter break, the Campus Communique will not be published Dec. 20 or Jan. 3.

Claritin Update

Effective Jan. 1, the prescription medication Claritin will be a non-preferred drug under the State Health Plan. Employees enrolled in the plan will be charged a $40 co-payment per prescription. A preferred drug list is available at http://statehealthplan.state.nc.us/yourbenefits/.

A committee of North Carolina physicians and pharmacists organized by the State Health Plan selects this list. When there is more than one brand name drug available for a medical condition, employees should ask their physician to prescribe a drug on the preferred list. For prescriptions on the list, the co-payment is $10 for generic drugs, $25 for brand-name drugs without a generic equivalent or $35 for a brand-name drug with a generic equivalent for each 34-day supply. Direct questions to Kay Fryar at ext. 3698.

Fire Exit Drills

The Environmental Health and Safety Department will conduct fire exit drills in academic and auxiliary buildings Jan. 2-4.

Tax-deductible Contributions

Employees who wish to make a 2001 tax-deductible contribution to UNCW should submit donations to advancement services, Alderman Hall, Room 104, by the close of business on Dec. 21.

Nominees Sought for Teaching Awards

Faculty, staff, students and alumni interested in nominating professors for the Chancellor's Teaching Excellence or Distinguished Teaching Professorship awards should submit a nomination letter by Jan. 25 to the provost's office. Award descriptions and criteria are available at www.uncwil.edu/aa. Click on the link "Nominations for Teaching Awards."

SPA Temporary Employees

Beginning in January, departments will use HR ONLINE for pay actions for SPA hourly and flat-rate employees instead of the HR 1.30 form. Employees who are responsible for processing HR 1.30 forms must register for one of the following HR ONLINE training sessions: 2 to 5 p.m. Dec. 13 in Cameron Hall, Room 135, or 9 a.m. to noon, Jan. 15 in Hoggard Hall, Room 226. Current HR ONLINE users must register for a workshop scheduled from 2 to 4 p.m. Dec. 11 in Cameron Hall, Room 105. To register, e-mail Jo Ann McDowell at mcdowellj.

Shared Leave

Patricia Aburahmeh, English; Debbie Dyar, accounting; Kim Fisher, purchasing; Sharon Green, CMS; and Heidi Messini, public service and extended education, need shared leave donations. Send vacation leave donations to Pam Christie in human resources.

Medical Insurance

Employees who have dependents age 19 or older who will graduate in December should notify human resources and complete a change form to remove them from medical insurance. Dependents who are removed within 30 days of their graduation have continued coverage under the COBRA provision. The right to COBRA continuation and refund of premium lapses after 30 days. Direct questions to Kay Fryar at ext. 3698.

December Payroll

Due to winter break, employees who are paid on the last day of the month will be compensated Dec. 20. Employees enrolled in direct deposit will receive pay stubs Dec. 19; funds will be credited to accounts Dec. 20. For employees who are not on direct deposit, the cashier's office will distribute paychecks Dec. 20. Employees paid mid-month will be compensated Dec. 14.

CAMPUS COMMUNIQUE

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

University Relations Vol. XXXI, No. 22 December 13, 2001 Phillip Brown, editor

Student's Story Highlights Need for More Diversity Education

Junior Justin Thompson read a story about his feelings of shame and loneliness. He read of his being different and of being afraid. The story was of his life - a gay student on a Southern college campus.

"I am gay, and I'm proud of it. Being able to tell my story was important, particularly as a way to get information out in the open," said Thompson, a communication studies major. At a public event sponsored by the Office of Campus Diversity, Thompson read six works that he wrote for a creative writing class. "Maybe it (the reading) helped someone living in the closet feel less alone or someone in the audience rethink their views about homosexuality."

Joanne Nottingham, director of campus diversity, echoed these sentiments. "Justin's reading was an opportunity to educate the community about diversity. The goal of this office is to provide minority students the chance to explore their culture as well as to develop programming that educates the entire campus," said Nottingham. "It takes a long time to learn a culture, but a short time to learn to be open to new ideas. Each individual has his or her own comfort zone when dealing with minorities. Events such as this reading allow students a chance to move beyond that comfort zone and look for commonalities we all share as members of the human race."

Thompson said that he hoped this first project with campus diversity would serve as a "jumping off point" for the future.

"In the next five to 10 years, I hope to see a safer environment not only here at UNCW but in society. I see myself becoming more of an activist for everyone but especially for gay students," said Thompson.

"College is the greatest learning experience of our lives. It is when most of our viewpoints are challenged or changed, and professors should play a pivotal role in challenging us," said Thompson.

Even though acceptance can't be forced, Thompson said the university should be doing more for gay, lesbian

Perdue to Address December Graduates

Lt. Gov. Beverly Perdue will deliver UNCW's fall commencement address at 9:45 a.m. Dec.21 in Trask Coliseum.

Prior to her election as lieutenant governor, Perdue served five terms in the North Carolina Senate and two terms in the state House of Representatives. She was consistently ranked as one of the most effective members of the General Assembly.

December graduates should report to Hanover Hall by 9 a.m. Dec. 21 to robe and form the processional. Following the main ceremony, academic departments will hold individual commencement ceremonies and host receptions for their graduates and guests. Reception locations are on the Web at www.uncwil.edu/stuaff/transitions/seniors/.

Celebrate Wilmington! to Honor Sam Garner

Sam Garner, executive director of the Thalian Association and long-time volunteer with the North Carolina Azalea Festival, will be honored Dec. 15 by Celebrate Wilmington! with its Lifetime Achievement Award in the Arts. The honor recognizes his accomplishments in the theatre and as a mentor and educator for many of Wilmington's talented performers.

Garner

An alumnus of Wilmington College (now UNC Wilmington), Garner's professional acting experience includes dinner and community theatre and summer stock. A former president of the N.C. Theatre Conference, Garner has won numerous awards for excellence in community theatre including Best Director and Best Show from the Thalian Association's yearly competition and Best Director, Best Show and Best Supporting Actor with BUMP Productions.

Garner taught drama and theatre in the public school system for 17 years. He started the drama program at Millbrook High School in Raleigh where a theatre is named in his honor. He also began the City Children's Theatre for the Wilmington Parks and Recreation Department.

As a volunteer with the North Carolina Azalea Festival for 33 years, Garner worked with the arts show and staged concerts and pageants. For the past five years, he has served as the queen's coordinator.

For a complete broadcast schedule for the program, which airs on The Learning Network, Time Warner Cable Channel 5, visit the Web site www.uncwil.edu/dpsee/uncwtv.

Seahawk Perch Social

The Seahawk Perch, UNCW's Commuter and Non-traditional Student Services Center, will hold a social for new and returning commuter and non-traditional students from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Jan. 8 in Warwick Center Ballroom 4. Faculty, staff and students are encouraged to attend and welcome these first-year and transfer students. Refreshments will be served.

Hawk's Nest Closed Dec. 21

The Hawk's Nest will be closed Dec. 21 due to commencement functions scheduled for the dining room. Faculty and staff are invited to a complimentary continental breakfast that morning from 8 to 9:30 a.m.

Watson School of Education Accreditation Renewed

The Watson School of Education received notice from the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) that re-accreditation has been granted for all of its basic and advanced professional teacher education programs.

The NCATE team, the organization responsible for professional accreditation of teacher education, visited UNCW April 21-25, 2001. During the evaluation visit, the team talked with students, faculty, and personnel from school systems in Southeastern North Carolina.

Cathy Barlow, dean of the Watson School of Education, said the NCATE accreditation process "compares us to national standards and gives students a more versatile degree, enabling graduates to obtain certification in other states because they have met those standards." Professional accreditation is one way to assure the public that schools of education are graduating well-qualified teachers ready for today's classrooms. UNCW's Watson School of Education has proven its commitment to producing quality teachers for our nation's children by achieving re-accreditation this past month under the performance-oriented standards of NCATE, Barlow said.

UNCW is one of 60 schools of education that received either initial or continuing accreditation from NCATE's Unit Accreditation Board during its meeting in October. NCATE accredits 525 institutions nationally, and these institutions produce two-thirds of the nation's new teacher graduates each year. Another 100 institutions are candidates or pre-candidates for accreditation. UNCW's School of Education was first accredited by NCATE in 1982.

Technology Roundtable

The Teaching and Learning with Technology Roundtable will meet at 3 p.m. Dec. 13 in Dobo Hall, Room 202. The meeting will showcase FIRE, a new Web programming environment on campus.

Communique Winter Break Schedule

This is the final edition of the Campus Communique this year. The publication will resume Jan. 10.

UNCW Students Can Travel to Beijing

UNCW students can apply for a semester-long program in Beijing. Sponsored by the South Atlantic States Association for Asian and African Studies and organized by Wake Forest University, the program offers a combination of Chinese language classes, cultural activities and social sciences courses about contemporary China. The next program will be offered in fall 2002. Interested students should contact Paula Kamenish, English, at ext. 3617.

"Garner has worked tirelessly to improve the arts in Wilmington," said Bev Bowers, Celebrate Wilmington! chair. "We are pleased to honor him."

Celebrate Wilmington! is a joint partnership between the community, the Arts Council of the Lower Cape Fear and the University of North Carolina at Wilmington to celebrate the arts and promote Wilmington's Walk of Fame.

The Lifetime Achievement Award in the Arts is presented annually to local patrons or artists who have made outstanding contributions to the cultural life.

Garner will join past award winners: Seymour Alper, patron, 1994; Doug and Kay Swink, theatre, 1995; Tabitha Hutaff McEachern, patron, 1997; Bob L. Alexander, music and arts education, 1998; Hannah Block, musician/vocalist/patron, 1999; and Dan and Bruce Cameron, patrons, 2000.

Season's Greetings and Best Wishes for the New Year

The university will be closed for winter break Dec. 24 through Jan. 1.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Mark Galizio and Carol Pilgrim, psychology, had the articles "Clustering in Artificial Categories: An Equivalence Analysis" and "Conditional Discrimination and Stimulus Equivalence in Young Children Following Three Different Baseline Training Procedures" published in Psychonomic Bulletin and Review, vol. 8., and Experimental Analysis of Human Behavior Bulletin, vol. 19, respectively. The first paper was co-authored with Katherine Stewart '99M. Christy Jordan '99M co-authored the second paper.

Linda MacRae, academic affairs , presented "Inside the Protege and Leader Program at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington" at the inaugural conference of the National Association of Mentors in Higher Education held in Fayetteville.

Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion, had the article "Toward a Professional Responsibility Theory of Public Relations Ethics" published in the Journal of Mass Media Ethics. This article was co-authored with Kathy Fitzpatrick of the University of Florida.

David White, chemistry, had the article "Understanding the Steric Control of Stereoselective Olefin Binding in Cyclopentadienyl Complexes of Rhenium: An Application of De Novo Ligand Design" published in the international journal Organometallics. The paper was co-authored by UNCW student Aaron M. Gillespie who also presented the poster "De Novo Ligand Design Applied to Chiral Recognition of Olefins by Cyclopentadienyl Complexes of Rhenium," which White co-authored, at the 2001 National Student Research Symposium of Sigma Xi. White co-authored a second poster, "Unexpected Labilization of Nitrosyl by Phosphines in Cyclopentadienyl Complexes of Rhenium." UNCW student C. Matthew Whaley presented this poster and won an award for outstanding poster presentation.

Raymond Burt, foreign languages and literatures, had the article "Autobiography as Reconciliation: Elias Canetti's Die gerettete Zunge" published in Modern Austrian Prose: Interpretations and Insights.

Maurice F. Stanley, philosophy and religion, had his textbook Logic and Controversy published by Wadsworth Publishing Company. The text applies introductory logic and critical thinking to contemporary issues.

William Cooper, chemistry, was one of two instructors at the regional training workshop "Radiation Treatment of Industrial and Municipal Wastewater" in Istanbul, Turkey. The workshop was sponsored by the International Atomic Energy Agency. Cooper presented "Decontamination and Cleanup Capabilities and Procedures Following a Chemical or Biological Incidence" at the regional workshop "Contingency Planning Conference: Regional Preparedness for Terrorism and Other Disasters" at Western Carolina University. He also presented the seminar "Free Radical Processes in Treating Toxic Wastes: Results of Both Basic and Applied Research" for WCU's Department of Chemistry.

Mike Mallin and Martin Posey, CMS and biological sciences, co-chaired the special session "Anthropogenic Impacts on the Ecology of Tidal Creeks and Canals" at the Estuarine Research Federation meeting in St. Petersburg, Fla. Mallin, Doug Parsons, Matt McIver, Scott Ensign, Jenny Johnson and Heather Covan, CMS, presented "Nutrients, Nutrient Limitation and Phytoplankton Blooms in Urbanized North Carolina Tidal Creeks." Posey, Troy Alphin, Larry Cahoon, Dave Lindquist and Mallin presented "Food Web Dynamics in Tidal Creek Estuaries." Kim Nelson, Lynn Leonard, Posey, Alphin and Mallin presented "Created Oyster (Crassostrea virginica) Reefs as a Bioremediation Tool in Small Tidal Creeks." Tara MacPherson, Mallin and Cahoon presented "Sediment Oxygen Demand and Biochemical Oxygen Demand-patterns of Oxygen Depletion in Tidal Creeks." Parsons and Mallin presented "Effect of Pollutant Source Distance on Water Quality Parameter Concentrations of Six Tidal Creeks." Mciver, Mallin, Parsons, Ensign, Johnson, Covan and Chris Shank presented "Impacts of Sewage Diversion on the New River Estuary."

Eleanor Covan, gerontology, received $11,000 in supplemental funding from Taylor & Francis Journals Inc. for editorial services for the journal Healthcare for Women International.

Michael Bradley, SBTDC, received $1,382 in supplemental funding from the U.S. Small Business and Technical Development Center for 2001 programs.

and other minority students.

"As a freshman, it would have been much easier had I known about the campus diversity office. During orientation, no one mentioned it," said Thompson, who spent his first two years on campus "in the closet." He added that it would help if faculty and staff who are gay could acknowledge it.

Other suggestions Thompson offered to promote increased awareness about diversity include incorporating more minority literature in English classes and offering sensitivity training and more positive representations of homosexuals.

"It doesn't have to be elaborate. In the case of a question on a health test, it could be as subtle as giving a 'straight' person AIDS or in a business class simulation, make the decision maker gay," said Thompson. "Growing up, I always thought it would have been neat to see a diamond commercial featuring two men."

Nottingham said such suggestions were important. "During the next year, I plan to work to open the lines of communication between this office and other academic departments to explore joint programming to broaden the university's diversity efforts. It is my goal that all students, faculty and staff will benefit from these efforts."

During the past year, university administrators changed the organizational structure of the office. Nottingham now reports directly to the Provost's Office. She said the change emphasizes the university's commitment to diversity.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

IRB Reviews Due Jan. 18

The UNCW Institutional Review Board (IRB) must review all research using human subjects that will be conducted by faculty, staff and students during the spring semester. IRB review and renewal forms are available from the Office of Sponsored Programs or the Web site www.uncwil.edu/ora/. Send one copy of the completed forms to Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion, by Jan. 18. Researchers will be notified if additional copies or electronic submission to sponsored progams is required. Proposals requiring full IRB review that miss this deadline must wait until the board's May meeting for consideration and approval.

Office Relocation

Auxiliary Services Office (parking, ID's, motor fleet) has relocated from Burney Support Center to the Warwick Center in offices that formerly housed human resources.

Intercultural Festival

UNCW's ninth annual Intercultural Festival will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Feb. 16. Campus and community organizations interested in participating through craft demonstrations, musical performances, cultural dances or a display booth should contact Angie Roth, campus activities and involvement, at ext. 3827 or e-mail rothar for an application. The submission deadline is Jan. 11.

Policy Update

Organization and Administration of Fund-raising for the University (ADV 1.00)

This new administrative policy (ADV 1.00) governs the organization and administration of fund-raising for the university. Employees are encouraged to read the policy in its entirety, as noncompliance with policy guidelines may result in the loss of non-profit status. The policy is published in the Administrative Policies and Procedures manual and is accessible on the Web at www.uncwil.edu/sp/admproc/adv100.htm

Key points of the policy include:

- Before beginning any fund-raising activity, obtain prior approval from university advancement. This includes direct solicitation by phone, mail, e-mail or in person of individuals, corporations and foundations for cash and in-kind gifts.
- Gifts must be directly related to an educational purpose. The university is not obligated to accept any item (liquid or in-kind) that does not support the academic program.
- All gifts must be recorded through advancement services.
- Direct all questions concerning acceptance or receipt of any gift to the office of the vice chancellor for university advancement.

Alumni Events Set for Homecoming Jan. 19

Homecoming 2002 at UNCW will be celebrated Jan. 19, and the UNCW Alumni Association is inviting all who attended or graduated from Wilmington College and UNCW to participate in one or all of its scheduled activities. Special recognition will be given to all 1980s graduates as well as alumni who were members of Delta Sigma Theta, Delta Zeta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

The Young Alumni Council will host UNCW graduates from 1991 to 2001 at a social starting at 9 p.m. Jan. 18 at the Front Street Brewery. A DJ will entertain, food will be provided free of charge, and there will be a cash bar.

The following activities are planned for Jan. 19:

- The bookstore, located in the Burney Student Support Center, will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Alumni can show their membership card to obtain a 10 percent discount on non-sale items.
- The annual homecoming 5K run starts at 9 a.m. at the Student Recreation Center. Early bird registration is $14; on race day the fee is $16. The first 250 registrants receive commemorative T-shirts. To register, call ext. 7443.
- A drop-in lunch will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Wise Alumni House. There is no charge, but reservations are required and can be made by calling the alumni relations office at ext. 2682.
- AAGA, the African American Graduates Association, will have its annual luncheon meeting at noon in the Center Stage Café. Ralph Parker, the former director of minority affairs, and past AAGA leaders will be recognized. Linda Melvin Rawley '86 will give the homecoming message. Lunch is $5 for reservations made by Monday, Jan. 14, and $10 at the door.
- UNCW basketball alumni will have a reunion basketball game at 3 p.m. in Trask Coliseum. There is no charge for admission.
- The Chicken Pickin' Pregame Social will be held at 5 p.m. in the Hawk's Nest. General admission is $10 for alumni and guests. Reservations are recommended. Call ext. 2682.
- At 7 p.m. the UNCW Seahawks host James Madison University in Trask Coliseum. A limited number of game tickets will be available at $10 a person for adults and $5 for children 14 and under. To obtain, call ext. 3233.
- During half-time the Cameron School of Business Alumni Chapter will host a social in Trask Coliseum, Room 142.
- The celebration concludes at 9:30 p.m. with the annual homecoming dance in the grand ballroom of the Wilmington Hilton Riverside. This year's event will feature entertainment by the Voltage Brothers. Tickets are $20 a person and will be on sale at the door.

Barnes & Noble to Run Bookstore

A review of three proposals for operation of the University Bookstore resulted in the decision to outsource bookstore operations to Barnes & Noble College Bookstores. The details of the contract and the transition have not been finalized, but it is anticipated to be effective around the middle of spring semester 2002.

This decision was consistent with the recommendation of the Bookstore Selection Committee and the chancellor's executive cabinet. The selection committee, made up of three students, three faculty and three staff members and chaired by the UNCW director of internal audit, evaluated proposals submitted by Barnes & Noble College Bookstores, follett Higher Education Group and the UNCW University Bookstore.

Barnes & Noble was selected because its proposal assured the university a total revenue stream of $500,000 over five years in excess of both of the other two competing proposals. This revenue

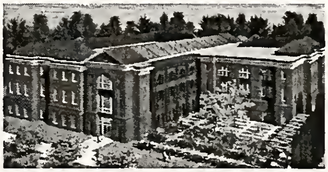
Education Building Ground Breaking Jan. 17

The campus community is invited to attend a ground breaking ceremony at 5 p.m. Jan. 17 for the facility that will house the Watson School of Education and Regional Education Resource Center. The event will take place at the proposed construction site near Dobo Hall at Reynolds Drive. This is the first building being constructed with funding from the higher education facilities bond passed overwhelmingly by voters November 2000.



Seahawk Club Sets Records

The UNCW Student Aid Association (Seahawk Club) ended its 2001-02 captain's campaign by topping the $1 million mark and reaching a record number of members.

"We are delighted at the results of the campaign and appreciate the hard work and support of those involved this year," said Chris Delisio, Seahawk Club executive director. The club has raised $1,003,591, and membership totals 1,770. Chris Glendenning served as campaign chair. Greg Dalton, Gene Palmer, Bill Rudisell and Jim Stasios worked as campaign captains directing efforts of more than 70 volunteers.

Alumni Scholarships

Applications are available for 2002-03 UNCW Alumni Association scholarships. The submission deadline is March 15.

Prospective or current UNCW students can apply for one of the 13 scholarships offered. Each scholarship covers the cost of tuition and fees for one academic year, up to $1,500.

Of the 13 awards given annually, 11 go to undergraduates and two go to graduate students. These scholarships are based on academic achievement, demonstrated financial need and school and community involvement. Applicants must have a minimum grade point average of 3.0 on a 4.0 scale on all high school or college work. For the Jim Humphries Memorial Scholarship, applicants must be UNCW juniors or seniors with a minimum 2.5 GPA and demonstrated campus and community leadership.

Applications can be obtained online at www.uncwil.edu/alumni/scholarship or by calling the Alumni Relations Office at ext. 2682. Completed application packets, which must include two "Recommendation for Award" forms to be completed by a teacher, guidance counselor, professor or employer; a certified high school and/or college transcript (if applicable); and a completed application form, should be sent to alumni relations, Wise Alumni House.

Ed Lab Tutoring

The Educational Lab at the Watson School of Education will offer tutoring in reading/language arts and math for children in kindergarten through sixth grade Jan. 28 through April 18. UNCW education majors will be matched with a child for one-on-one tutoring sessions. Children will attend one or two sessions each week between 3 and 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday in King Hall, Room 203. Fees are $150 for 20 hours of elementary reading/language arts tutoring, $187.50 for 25 hours of elementary reading/math tutoring, $75 for 10 hours of elementary math tutoring and $150 for 20 hours of special needs tutoring. For more information, call ext. 3633.

Library Lectures

Lisa Pollard, history, and Herbert Berg, philosophy and religion, will present public lectures at the Northeast Regional Library, 1241 Military Cutoff Road. Pollard will discuss "Unveiling Myths about Women in the Middle East" on Jan. 17. Berg will speak on "Islam vs. Islamic Extremism: Roots of Hostility Toward America" on Jan. 24. Both programs start at 7:30 p.m. and will include time for questions and discussion. For more information, contact Dorothy Hodder at 772-7858.

For spring 2003, recipients are David Blake, earth sciences; Yixen Chen, history; William Cooper, chemistry; Barbara Waxman, English; and John Karlof, mathematics and statistics.

Summer curriculum development initiatives were awarded to Laurie Patterson and Ron Vetter, computer sciences, to teach Introduction to Computing and Computer Applications in a modular format"; Douglas Gamble, earth sciences, to develop course materials for GGY 205: Practical Methods in Geography; Andrea Deagon, foreign languages and literatures, to restructure Latin 101-102: Latin through Natural History; and Hana Noor Al-Deen, communication studies, to attend a summer course in digital technology.

Summer research initiatives were given to Renee Stein, psychology, to study the effects of age stereotyping; Ann Stapleton, biological sciences to research gene mapping—plants and UV rays; David Monahan, creative writing, to produce Monkey Junction; Jeffrey Spears, criminal justice, to research sentencing practices in Illinois; Laela Sayigh, biological sciences, to conduct a dolphin whistle loop experiment; Tom Hudson, computer science, to study collaborative computing at UNCW; Lou Buttino, communication studies, to work on the documentary 1000 Children; William Moore, history, to research the Shaker culture; Michael Maume, sociology, to research economic deprivation and violence; Paulo Almeida, chemistry, to research modeling toxin membranes; Ann Conner, art and theatre, to complete wood block relief prints; Keith Newlin, English, to work on the Theodore Dreiser encyclopedia; Mark Imperial, political science, to study watershed management; John Stevens, foreign languages and literatures, to research Spanish dialectics; Colleen Reilly, English, to study the document cycle at Siemens; Andrew Clark, history, to work on a Senegal Peace Corps memoir; Paul Townend, history, to study nationalism in the Irish-British conflict; and Gur Adhar, computer science, to research geometric modeling of molecules.

ITSD Adopts Network Wiring Standard

The Information Technology Systems Division has adopted Category Six (CAT 6) as the baseline standard for intra-building network wiring throughout campus. This standard supports network speeds up to a gigabit per second.

In addition to adopting this standard for new construction, the division plans to replace wiring in all buildings to meet this standard.

"CAT 6 is an emerging industry standard for cable to connect hardware products for data and digital transmission," said Bobby Miller, director of computing services. "It is important to adopt this standard in new construction and to upgrade existing networks to offer the campus consistent and reliable network performance and to support future technologies.'

This standard, which is set by the Telecommunications Industry Association/Electronics Industry Alliance under the sponsorship of the American National Standards Institution, is one in a series of new baselines called for by ITSD Vice Chancellor Robert Tyndall.

To date, ITSD has installed gigabit links between five fiber optic hubs on campus and has replaced or upgraded approximately 200 switches that support high-speed transmission links to all campus desktop and computer lab systems.

stream will assure the university's ability to maintain or increase student scholarships and to moderate student fee increases needed to expand the University Union and student services buildings.

"This contract award was a financial issue and was not based on a quality of service issue," said Dick Scott, associate vice chancellor for business affairs. "It does not indicate any dissatisfaction with our employees, but is in response to our seeking a more financially viable way to run the bookstore especially in these tight budget times."

This action will affect 14 permanent UNCW Bookstore employees who will be separated from state employment under the Reduction in Force laws. However, under state and UNCW's Reduction in Force Policy, these employees will receive these considerations:

- Guaranteed employment by Barnes & Noble for 12 months at their current salary, contingent only on continued satisfactory performance. Severance salary (or a discontinued service retirement allowance for certain individuals) which ranges from a minimum of two weeks salary up to a maximum of eight months salary — payable in addition to the Barnes & Noble salary.
- Continued coverage by the State Health Plan for 12 months at no cost for employee coverage and lifetime eligibility to participate in the State Health Plan at the employee's own cost.
- Priority re-employment consideration for 12 months from the date of RIF notification which provides priority in relation to all other applicants for positions at the same or lower salary grade for which the RIF candidate qualifies within UNC Wilmington — or priority in relation to all non-state employee applicants for such vacancies among other state agencies.

Barnes & Noble College Bookstores is a privately held company, separate from the retail booksellers.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

W-2 Distribution

In accordance with Internal Revenue Service regulations, 2001 W-2 forms will be distributed Jan. 31. Currently enrolled undergraduate students will receive forms at their UNCW post office boxes, currently enrolled graduate students through the cashier's office and permanent employees with their paychecks or direct deposit stubs. Forms for temporary employees and all others will be mailed to permanent addresses.

Mileage Rate Increase

Effective Jan. 1, the maximum business standard mileage rate increased to 36.5 cents per mile.

Motor Fleet Vehicles

Effective Jan. 2, employees and students who use motor fleet vehicles must pick up transportation packets at the auxiliary services office, Warwick Center, between 7:30 a.m. and 4:45 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and 7:30 a.m. and 4:15 p.m. Fridays. Vehicle pick up at any other times will continue through university police. Direct questions to Pat Barker at ext. 3591. Auxiliary services is located in offices formerly occupied by human resources.

Earned Income Credit

Employees who are eligible for the earned income credit (EIC) and who would like to receive advance EIC payments must complete a new W-5 form for 2002. In order for advance EIC payments to be effective with January paychecks, submit the W-5 form to payroll by 5 p.m. Jan. 18. To obtain a form, call ext. 3163.

Yoga Classes

A yoga class, taught by Christian Barnes, will be held from 11:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. Tuesdays starting Jan. 15 in the Student Recreation Center training room. Participants should wear comfortable clothing and bring a towel or yoga mat. For more information on this free class, call Liz Grimes at ext. 3274 or e-mail grimese.

Supplemental Retirement

New tax laws have increased amounts that employees can tax defer in retirement savings. Employees participating in a tax-sheltered plan who would like to increase their contributions should contact their vendor. Non-participating employees can contact human resources for general information on tax-deferred plans or contact one of the following university-approved vendors: Fidelity Investments, 1-800-343-0860; Lincoln Financial Services, 1-800-434-5507; TIAA-CREF, 1-800-842-2776; VALIC, 791-4659; BB&T 401(k), 1-800-722-4015; or BenCorp Deferred Comp., 1-888-600-2763.

Retirement Vendors Visits

David Haden, a representative with VALIC, will be available to discuss retirement programs on the second Wednesday of each month in human resources starting Feb. 13. To schedule an appointment, call 791-4659.

Tamara Langham, a representative with Lincoln Financial Services, will be in HR Jan. 15 and 30 and Feb. 12 and 27. To schedule an appointment, call 1-800-343-0860.

Adverse Weather

UNCW's adverse weather policy, which applies when weather makes travel to or from the university hazardous, was in effect Jan. 4. Employees who were unable to get to work due to inclement weather may elect to use vacation leave to account for the day missed, or supervisors should arrange for employees to make up the day when they will not incur overtime.

With winter weather now here, employees should keep in mind that the university is open for business as usual unless closing is announced via local media and the adverse weather hot line (ext. 3991 or 888-657-5751).

Memorial Bench

The Division of Student Affairs will dedicate a bench in memory of Barbara Rogers who died Sept. 2. Rogers worked in the division for nine years before retiring to Florida. The bench will be located in front of the Warwick Center. Anyone interested in contributing to the purchase of the bench or memorial plaque should contact Heather Smith at ext. 3735 or e-mail smithh.

IRB Reviews Due Jan. 18

The UNCW Institutional Review Board (IRB) must review all research using human subjects that will be conducted by faculty, staff and students during the spring semester. IRB review and renewal forms are available from the Office of Sponsored Programs or the Web site www.uncwil.edu/ora/. Send one copy of the completed forms to Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion, by Jan. 18. Researchers will be notified if additional copies or electronic submission to sponsored progams is required. Proposals requiring full IRB review that miss this deadline must wait until the board's May meeting for consideration and approval.

UNCW Office of Federal Programs Tops $5 Million in Funding

Since its inception three-and-a-half years ago, the UNCW Office of Federal Programs (OFP) has generated more than $5.5 million in appropriated federal and other funds for research, construction and operational costs of university programs. Counting Congressional add-ons for the current fiscal year, the office has raised $5,792,000 with other funding possible in the next month.

These funds are in addition to the annual appropriations to the National Undersea Research Program and other federal programs that existed prior to the establishment of OFP. UNC Wilmington's total annual federal contracts and grants for the year ending June 30, 2001, was $13,126,648.

OFP was created to address the growing needs at the university to develop and support new research and service programs through Congressional and federal agency partnerships. Two prominent programs at UNCW – mariculture and coastal ocean research and monitoring – were initiated by the OFP and continue to grow, making major contributions to the nation. OFP also assisted the School of Nursing in establishing rural health care facilities and educational programs in under-served regions of southeastern North Carolina.

Robert Wicklund, OFP director stated, "The success of this program can be directly attributed to the university's policy of creative freedom and the support given to this venture through the offices of the chancellor and provost not only to bring in funds, but to identify and build programs from the beginning."

Total funding and sources for each program are as follows:

- Mariculture – $1,334,000 from the Department of Agriculture
- Coastal ocean monitoring program – $2,998,000 (includes $250,000 of federal

UNCW Athletic Hall of Fame to Induct Four Members Feb. 2

Four former student-athletes will be inducted into the UNCW Athletic Hall of Fame Feb. 2. The induction of Garry Cooper, Burak Erdem, Heather Fenton and Lou Howard will increase hall membership to 19. Tickets for the ceremony, which will be held in the Warwick Center, are $10. They are available from the Trask Coliseum ticket office.

"We're very pleased to honor these four individuals," said Peg Bradley-Doppes, UNCW athletics director. "They each have excelled in their own way and continue to be fine representatives of our program."

Cooper, a four-year starter in men's basketball from 1977 to 1981, is director of parks and recreation for Pamlico County. He ranks among the school's top 10 career leaders in six statistical categories including points scored, field goals made and field goal percentage.

A native of Ankara, Turkey, Erdem works for Sovana Inc., a marketing firm in Irving, Texas. As a member of the men's swimming team from 1992 to 1995, Erdem earned the Sam O'Leary Outstanding Swimmer Award in his junior and senior years. He still holds the school record in the 100- and 200-meter backstroke.

Fenton, originally from Ohio, teaches at Mac Williams Middle School in Fayetteville. During her four-year career in track and field, she earned All-Colonial Athletic Association honors in 1993 and 1994 and qualified for the 1994 NCAA Cross Country Championships. Following graduation, Fenton was an assistant coach with the UNCW program from 1995 to 1999. She completed her master's degree in 1999.

A retired teacher and coach, Howard played a key role as Wilmington College dominated the national junior college baseball scene. With Howard in the pitching rotation, the Seahawks won the 1961 National Junior College

Division Name Change

Effective Jan. 1, the Division for Public Service and Extended Education became the Division for Public Service and Continuing Studies.

"While our name has changed, our commitment to our region remains the same," said Michelle Howard-Vital, vice chancellor for the division. "The division will continue to pursue positive changes in our service area through outreach, economic and leadership development, civic forums and diverse learning activities aimed at strengthening all citizens of Southeastern North Carolina."

Friends Funding

The Friends of UNCW are accepting grant proposals through Feb. 22 for departmental projects that do not require substantial funding.

Founded in 1963 to assist in the accreditation of Wilmington College, Friends of UNCW support and promote educational, scientific and charitable projects on behalf of the university. For an application, contact Gennie Beatty at ext. 3751.

Physics Colloquium

Gurudas Ganguli from the Naval Research Laboratory, Washington D.C, will present "Plasma Dynamics in the Earth's Auroral Region" at 8 p.m. Jan. 31 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212.

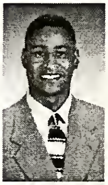
UFO Lecture

Robert Hastings will present "UFOs: The Hidden History," a 90-minute lecture and slide show, at 7 p.m. Jan. 28 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. Hastings, an independent UFO researcher and lecturer from New Mexico, will discuss the U.S. government cover-up of UFOs based upon information from previously classified documents. This free lecture is sponsored by the Association for Campus Entertainment.

Biological Sciences Seminar

Elizabeth Guthrie from the Department of Biological and Environmental Sciences at the University of Tennessee at Chatanooga will present "Contamination and Attenuation of Polyaromatic Hydrocarbons in Marine Sediments: San Diego and a New England Refinery Site" at 2 p.m. Jan. 18 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Assistant Coach Named Best Dressed



Terry

Rodney Terry, fourth-year men's basketball assistant coach, was named the best dressed aide among the nation's NCAA Division I assistant coaches by the Web site collegeinsider.com.

"It's quite an honor to be selected first from a group of outstanding and well-dressed coaches," said Terry. "I just hope I can live up to the expectations that come with the recognition."

Marine Band to Perform

The U.S. Marine Corps Band, based at Camp Lejeune, will open the Tabitha Hutaff McEarchern Lifelong Learning Series with "A Patriotic Salute!" This musical performance will feature national favorites including God Bless America and Stars and Stripes Forever. The show, scheduled for 7 p.m. Jan. 29, will be preceded by a catered dinner that begins at 6 p.m. Tickets for the performance and dinner are $20. Preregistration is required by Jan. 25; call ext. 3195. Admission for UNCW students is free. Students should call ext. 4034 for reservations. This program is sponsored by the Division for Public Service and Continuing Studies.

Port City Step Show

The 2002 Port City Step Show will be held at 8 p.m. Jan. 18 in Kenan Auditorium. For tickets, contact the auditorium box office at ext. 3500.

SGA and Volunteerism

Student Government Association representatives must complete five hours of volunteer service in "community-building activities" during each semester they hold a position, according to a resolution passed at the association's Jan. 8 meeting.

Kelly Graham, SGA secretary of public relations, said the resolution is "another step in the current administration's goal of getting the UNCW campus more involved in the surrounding community."

Hornets Bus Trip

Join campus recreation to see the Charlotte Hornets take on the Indiana Pacers Feb. 15. This charter bus trip to the Charlotte Coliseum costs $20 and includes game ticket, a $5 food coupon and a Hornets T-shirt. Space is limited. For more information, call ext. 7443.

Note of Appreciation

Celeste Jones, auxiliary services, would like to thank everyone "for all the many expressions of sympathy shown to me and my family during the recent loss of my mother."

Donations Needed

The UNCW Fellowship of Christian University Students is collecting personal hygiene items for the Domestic Violence Shelter. Donations will be accepted from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Jan. 30 through Feb. 1 at the University Union. Full-sized products are preferred.

Dance Clinic

Campus recreation is sponsoring a Latin and swing dance clinic from 9 to 10:30 p.m. Mondays, Jan. 29 through Feb. 25. To register, call ext. 7443.

Yoga Classes

A free yoga class will be held from 11:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. Tuesdays through April 23 in the Student Recreation Center training room.

Chemistry Symposium

The UNCW Chemistry Department will host its sixth annual Symposium on Chemistry and Biochemistry Jan. 25 and 26 in Dobo Hall, Room 205. The symposium will feature lectures by 11 noted chemists and biochemists.

Friday's featured programs will begin with a luncheon at noon. Presentation topics include aquatic chemistry, pharmaceutical chemistry and biochemistry. A dinner will be held at 6 p.m. in Wagoner Hall, Madeline Suite.

Saturday's lectures begin at 9 a.m. The talks will focus on chemistry education as well as highlighting research methodologies designed to improve student learning in general, organic and physical chemistry. A luncheon will be held at 12:45 p.m. in Wagoner Hall, Madeline Suite.

Online registration is through the Web site http://aa.uncwil.edu/chem/news/symp00/. Registrations are due by Jan. 18. Seating at the luncheons and dinners are limited to the first 50 reservations.

Mentoring Month

January is National Mentoring Month. Volunteers interested in serving as tutors or mentors should contact Phyllis Story at the Cape Fear United Way Volunteer Center at 798-3912.

Effective Jan. 1, the maximum business standard mileage rate increased to 36.5 cents per mile.

New Copiers

By March 31, all departmental copiers will be replaced with new digital models that will collate at no additional charge. Direct questions to Brenda Nelson at ext. 3563.

Alumni Scholarships

Applications are available for 2002-03 UNCW Alumni Association scholarships. The submission deadline is March 15.

Prospective or current UNCW students can apply for one of the 13 scholarships offered. Each scholarship covers the cost of tuition and fees for one academic year, up to $1,500. For more information, call ext. 2682.

Ed Lab Tutoring

The Educational Lab at the Watson School of Education will offer tutoring in reading/language arts and math for children in kindergarten through sixth grade Jan. 28 through April 18. UNCW education majors will be matched with a child for one-on-one tutoring sessions. Children will attend one or two sessions each week between 3 and 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday in King Hall, Room 203. Fees are $150 for 20 hours of elementary reading/language arts tutoring, $187.50 for 25 hours of elementary math tutoring, $75 for 10 hours of elementary math tutoring and $150 for 20 hours of special needs tutoring. For more information, call ext. 3633.

Retirement Vendors Visits

David Haden, a representative with VALIC, will be available to discuss retirement programs on the second Wednesday of each month in human resources starting Feb. 13. To schedule an appointment, call 791-4659.

Tamara Langham, a representative with Lincoln Financial Services, will be in HR Jan. 15 and 30 and Feb. 12 and 27. To schedule an appointment, call 1-800-434-5507.

Congratulations

Congratulations to the following UNCW employees who earned degrees at fall commencement. Rosemary Guendner, Dianne Matthews and Dana McKoy received bachelor's degrees, and Linda MacRae earned a Master of Arts in Liberal Studies.

Spring Soccer School

The Men's and Women's Soccer Programs will hold a spring Seahawk soccer school March 11-15 for children ages six to 14. Classes will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to noon Friday. For a brochure, call ext. 3932 or 3044.

IRB Reviews Due Jan. 18

The UNCW Institutional Review Board (IRB) must review all research using human subjects that will be conducted by faculty, staff and students during the spring semester. IRB review and renewal forms are available from the Office of Sponsored Programs or the Web site www.uncwil.edu/ora/. Send one copy of the completed forms to Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion, by Jan. 18. Researchers will be notified if additional copies or electronic submission to sponsored programs is required. Proposals requiring full IRB review that miss this deadline must wait until the board's May meeting for consideration and approval.

YWCA Year-round Pool

The YWCA of the Lower Cape Fear will hold a ribbon-cutting ceremony to open its year-round pool at 4 p.m. Jan. 23. Faculty and staff are invited to stop by the center, 2815 South College Road, between 4 and 6 p.m. for a reception and special prices on pool passes.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

William Cooper, chemistry, received $150,000 from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for the project "Demonstration of Shipboard Ozone Treatment and Process-control Strategies for the Control and Mitigation of Aquatic Nuisance Species."

Scott Simmons, sociology and criminal justice, received $8,010 from the Heinz Family Foundation for the project "Craft Production and Socioeconomic Complexity: Provenance Studies of Copper Ore Deposits and Analyses of Copper Artifacts from Lamanai, Belize."

Carmelo Tomas, biological sciences and CMS, received $5,000 from North Carolina Sea Grant for the harmful algal blooms species leaflet series.

Dick Scott, business affairs, received $102,004 from the Federal Emergency Management Agency to solve a campus drainage problem that is problematic during hurricanes.

Perri Bomar, nursing, received $167,240 from the National Institutes of Health/Department of Health and Human Services/HRSA to fund construction of an interdisciplinary academic nurse-managed health center in Bolton.

Milan Dluhy, political science, had the book The Miami Fiscal Crisis: Can a Poor City Regain Prosperity? published by Westport, Conn: Praeger. It was co-authored by Howard Frank.

Robert George, biological sciences and environmental studies, presented the invited science seminar "Conservation of Coastal Estuaries and Offshore Deep-water Coral Reefs: Challenges Ahead" at the UNC Pembroke Department of Biology.

Steve Skrabal, chemistry, gave the invited talk "Speciation and Fluxes of Dissolved Copper and Zinc in Estuaries" at the Partners in Environmental Technology symposium and workshop in Washington, D.C.

William McLellan, D. Ann Pabst, and Sentiel Rommel, biological sciences and CMS, had the paper "Functional Morphology of Venous Structures Associated with Male and Female Reproductive Systems in Florida Manatees (Trichechus manatus latirostris)" published in Anatomical Record.

Karen Bullock, social work, had the paper "Black Elderly and Their Family Caregivers: A Theoretical Perspective" published in the conference proceedings of the National Black Family Summit: The Family and the New Millennium; An Agenda for the 21st Century.

Patricia Kelley and Jack Hall, earth sciences, co-authored the paper "The Moonsnail Project: A Collaborative Research Partnership Between Middle Schools and Universities" which was presented at the annual meeting of the Geological Society of America (GSA) in Boston. Kelley is president of the Paleontological Society, which met jointly with the GSA.

Karel Dutton, public service and continuing studies, presented "Hot Community Programming" at the annual LEARN Conference in San Francisco. LEARN is the largest non-profit association of lifelong learning in the world.

Mary Andrade Carlson, career services, received the Outstanding New Professional Award from the North Carolina College Personnel Association. Carlson is the organization's membership chair.

Ann Pabst, William McLellan and Shelley Etnier, CMS and biological sciences, along with graduate students Erin Meagher and Vicki Stegall and undergraduate honors student Michelle Barbieri, presented their research at the 14th international biennial meeting of the Society for Marine Mammalogy in Vancouver, Canada. This research team and their colleagues from Duke University, the Virginia Marine Science Museum, Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, Florida Marine Mammal Pathobiology Laboratory authored or co-authored 13 presentations at the meeting. In addition, McLellan and Pabst chaired sessions on marine mammal strandings and anatomy, respectively.

Virginia Adams, nursing, was appointed to the North Carolina Scholars Commission by N.C. Sen. Marc Basnight. Her term expires in 2005. She was also elected to the board of directors of the Southern Regional Educational Board Council on Collegiate Education for Nursing for a term ending in 2004. The council serves 16 states and the District of Columbia.

Laela Sayigh, and Alessandro Bocconcelli, biological sciences and CMS, along with graduate students Mandy Hill and Genevieve Haviland and undergraduate student Kim Hoover, attended the 14th biennial conference on the Biology of Marine Mammals in Vancouver where Sayigh and Haviland (with Bocconcelli as co-author) presented posters, and Hill gave an oral presentation. Graduate student Carolina Priester had her poster presented at the conference.

Evgeny V. Dafner, CMS, presented the poster "The Evaluation and Peculiarities of Carbon Transport by the Mediterranean Outflow to the Open Atlantic" at the 2001 American Geophysical Union fall meeting in San Francisco. It was co-authored by Melchor González-Dávila and J. Magdalena Santana-Casiano from Departamento de Química, Universidad de Las Palmas de Gran Canaria, Spain.

Lewis Gambill, education, received his Ph.D. in elementary education with a concentration in technology from the University of South Carolina.

Moorad Alexanian, physics and physical oceanography, had the paper "'Macroscopic' Quantum Superpositions: Atom-field Entangled and Steady States by Two-photon Processes" accepted for publication in Physical Review A. The work is relevant to physical realizations of quantum information processing, which is the focus of current research in quantum optics. The paper was co-authored by Subir K. Bose of University of Central Florida.

Baseball Championship. After transferring to Wake Forest University, Howard amassed an 18-6 career record with the Demon Deacons. Following a brief stint with the Pittsburgh Pirates organization, Howard embarked on a teaching career. He built a 225-25 record in 25 seasons coaching at Roland-Grise Junior High School and closed out his career with a five-year stint as pitching coach at Hoggard High School.

Professor Names One of New Deep-sea Discoveries for Chancellor

A newly identified crustacean is just one of thousands of marine organisms awaiting discovery in our oceans' depths said Robert George, professor of biological sciences.

George outlined two new genera and six new species of crustacea in the paper "Desmosomatidae and Nannoniscidae from Bathyal and Abyssal Depths Off North Carolina and Their Evolution" published in the December 2001 Journal of Natural History. Among his finds is the deep-sea isopod Leutziniscus jebamoni, named in honor of UNCW Chancellor James R. Leutze. This recognition is due to the chancellor's "concern for the health of the environment and his contributions to international understanding," said George. This lobster-shaped organism, about the size of a pencil eraser, was captured four miles deep in the Hatteras abyssal plain.

"The deep-sea area off of North Carolina is rich in diversity much like that of a tropical rain forest," said George. "There are probably thousands of species living within a square mile area at or near the ocean floor."

With 90 percent of the marine life from this area yet to be discovered, George said the thrust of his work will focus on seeking protection for this marine area.

"Greater study is needed to fully understand the commercial implications of this area," said George. The region includes 30- to 40-foot coral reefs similar to those found off the coast of Norway, George added. "One seldom associates North Carolina and coral reefs. Other states, such as California and Florida, are taking steps to protect their coral reef areas because of their importance to marine life. The time is now for North Carolina to take action to preserve this vital natural resource."

Annual Charles Cahill Award Recipients Named

Nineteen faculty proposals received Charles L. Cahill Awards for faculty research and development. The selection committee, comprised of representatives of each school appointed by their respective deans, determined the recipients from 25 submissions.

An annual fall competition, the awards are funded by the Provost's Office. This year's recipients are: Michael McCartney, biological sciences, for the development of automated amplified fragment length polymorphism (AFLP)-based DNA fingerprinting and applications on biodiversity estimation and fisheries genetics; Sarah Messer, creative writing, for White Horse:108 Stories of Do Khyentse Yseshe Dorje (a cycle of Prose poems); David Monahan, creative writing, for the short film Monkey Junction; Paulo Almeida, chemistry, to measure interactions in model systems; Jeffery Wright, chemistry/CMS, to explore fungi from the salt marshes of North Carolina as sources of new pharmaceutical leads; Sue-Jen Chen, Mahnaz Moallem and Hengameh Kermani, specialty studies, to research handheld computers and classroom assessment on student achievement and quality of instruction; Ronald Sizemore, biological sciences, to develop FISH (Fluorescent In Situ Hybridization) for the detection and identification of archaea in estuarine environments; Ann Stapleton, biological sciences, to study why plants don't sunburn; John Karlof, mathematics and statistics, to research a new approach for coding and decoding group codes; John Fischetti, specialty studies, to study early career educators and the future of teaching; Michael Smith, earth sciences, to investigate early Colonial earthen ceramics from Charles Towne Colony; Todd Berliner, English, for archival research and interviews for "The Seventies Style: Aesthetic Perversity in Hollywood Cinema"; Linda Mechling, curricular studies, for computer-based video instruction to teach generalization grocery shopping with a non-adapted word list; Yixin Chen, history, to research memories of Anhui Villagers who survived the great leap forward famine; Wayland Tseh, HPER, to study levels of physical activity of children participating in daily physical education and children participating in weekly physical education; John Whitehead, economics and finance, to estimate benefits of renewable wind energy; Clayton Ferner, computer science, to compare message-passing versus distributed-shared memory; John Manock, chemistry, to use neutral red lysosomal assay for monitoring the health of regional marine ecosystems; Renee Vincent, art and theatre, for the Cinema Anamorphic Lens System Project.

Combined funding for the Cahill Awards totaled $41,735. The award is named in honor of former provost Charles Cahill.

"Our congressional delegation, especially senators John Edwards and Jesse Helms and Rep. Mike McIntyre, have recognized the important work that UNCW is doing. They and their staffs have been exceptionally responsive to our requests for help to obtain funds," said Wicklund.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

Spring Break in Paris

Jim McNab, international programs, will lead a study group to Paris March 2-9. The approximate cost is $950 and includes accommodations and airfare departing from Raleigh. Interested students should call ext. 3859. The trip is limited to 15 participants.

Postal Reminders

Outgoing mail as well as all student mail directed to post office boxes should include departmental return addresses.

The post office postage meter will seal only number 10 size envelopes.

Note of Appreciation

Mary Crookes, university events coordinator, and the Office of Transition Programs wish to express their appreciation to the many UNCW staff members involved in this year's commencement ceremonies Dec. 21. "All UNCW divisions played a vital role in commencement both 'behind the scenes' and on the day of the ceremonies. The teamwork put forth by everyone resulted in another successful event and made commencement a very special and memorable day for our graduates and their families," Crookes said.

W-2 Distribution

In accordance with Internal Revenue Service regulations, 2001 W-2 forms will be distributed Jan. 31. Currently enrolled undergraduate students will receive forms at their UNCW post office boxes. Currently enrolled graduate students and permanent employees at their departments. Forms for temporary employees and all others will be mailed to permanent addresses. Note the distribution correction for graduate students.

Shared Leave

Patricia Aburahmeh, student affairs; Kim Fisher, purchasing; and Tammy Haynes, Randall Library, need shared leave donations. Send vacation leave donations to Pam Christie in human resources.

Earned Income Credit

Employees who are eligible for the earned income credit (EIC) and who would like to receive advance EIC payments must complete a new W-5 form for 2002. In order for advance EIC payments to be effective with January paychecks, submit the W-5 form to payroll by 5 p.m. Jan. 18. To obtain a form, call ext. 3163.

Retirement Plans

New tax laws have increased amounts that employees can tax defer in retirement savings. Employees participating in a tax-sheltered plan who would like to increase their contributions should contact their vendor. Non-participating employees can contact human resources for general information on tax-deferred plans, or contact one of the following university-approved vendors: Fidelity Investments, 1-800-343-0860; Lincoln Financial Services, 1-800-434-5507; TIAA-CREF, 1-800-842-2776; VALIC, 791-4659; BB&T 401(k), 1-800-722-4015; or BenCorp Deferred Comp., 1-888-600-2763.

Homecoming Weekend

The UNCW Alumni Association welcomes back alumni for homecoming Jan. 19. Special recognition will be given to all 1980s graduates as well as alumni who were members of Delta Sigma Theta, Delta Zeta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon. For more information on all planned activities, call ext. 2682.

In Memory

James H. Nelson, associate professor of computer science at UNCW for 21 years, died Jan. 10. Nelson, who joined UNCW in 1980, worked at the university until going on permanent disability in April 2001.

A native of Mississippi, Nelson received bachelor's, master's and Ph.D. degrees in electrical engineering from Vanderbilt University. He taught courses in electronics, assembly language, digital logic and design and computer architecture. Nelson also spent part of his time as the computer systems administrator for the Department of Mathematical Sciences when it acquired and managed its own computing resources prior to hiring a full-time staff person.

"His greatest joy was instilling his passion and enthusiasm for the study of computing in his students," said Ron Vetter, chair of the Computer Science Department. "Dr. Nelson was often cited by graduating seniors for his significant impact on their education at UNCW. UNCW was extremely fortunate to have such a caring and genuinely committed person work with its students. He made their experience at UNCW truly memorable."

Nelson was preceded in death by his wife, Helen. He is survived by a son, James, and a daughter, Suzanne Lilygren. Burial will be at 10 a.m. Jan. 21 at SeaLawn Memorial in Hampstead. Friends and acquaintances are welcome to attend.

CAMPUS COMMUNIQUE

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

University Relations Vol. XXXI, No. 25 January 24, 2002 Phillip Brown, editor

UNCW's Community Service Commitment Among Nation's Best

In a study published by The Washington Monthly, UNCW is listed among the top 20 universities in the nation for its commitment to community service through its spending of Federal Work-Study Program funds. UNCW, ranked 8th, was the only public or private institution in North Carolina to make the top 20.

The study was done by The Washington Monthly in conjunction with Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism. It was based on the 1999-2000 fiscal operation report.

UNCW used 37 percent of its 1999-2000 federal work-study funding of $327,397 to pay students to tutor children in reading and math and to work for non-profit organizations in the community including the American Red Cross and the Brigade Boys & Girls Club. In comparison, the average college devotes less than 12 percent of its work-study funds to community service, according to the U.S. Department of Education.

Student's are approved to participate in the program through the university and apply for jobs directly with approved community service agencies.

UNCW provides student tutors in New Hanover, Brunswick and Onslow counties. In addition, UNCW reimburses non-profit agencies for 75 percent of approved employment costs. Students are currently working for Family Services After School Enrichment, the local chapter of the American Red Cross, the Brigade Boys and Girls Club, the Child Advocacy Commission, Community Boys and Girls Club and the North Carolina Coastal Federation.

"We expect to spend $335,000 this year on community service work-study employment," said Mark Williams, director of financial aid and veterans services. "About 200 students are working directly in local elementary, middle and high schools and 31 are working for other agencies."

As a result of UNCW's performance with the community service program, the university received an additional $50,000 for its community service program this year from the U.S. Department of Education.

Alumni Association Honors Jackson, Stasios

Wayne Jackson and James Stasios were honored by the UNCW Alumni Association at its annual awards banquet Jan. 18. Each year the association recognizes two individuals whose contributions have impacted the university and community.

Stasios

Stasios, a Jefferson Pilot investment advisor and 1970 UNCW graduate in business administration, received the Alumnus of the Year Award, which is given to a graduate who is distinguished due to his/her contributions of service to UNCW and the community. He serves as a UNCW Seahawk Club board member and was the head captain of the club's membership campaign for two years. Stasios also served on the board of directors for the Alumni Association and was chairman in 1995-96.

Jackson was honored with the Distinguished Citizen of the Year Award, which is presented to a citizen of the Wilmington community who has made a positive impact on the community or has demonstrated an extraordinary service to the university.

A broadcasting veteran, Jackson's 35-year career included stints at WCFC-WFMA Radio in Rocky Mount and WECT-TV 6. He has remained an active volunteer for both the university and the community at large.

Jackson serves as an announcer for the UNCW men's basketball team game broadcasts and was a member of the broadcasting team for the university's first game from Trask Coliseum in 1977 when the Seahawks played the Wake Forest Demon Deacons. Jackson is a founding member of the Seahawk Club. In April 2000, he received the William J. Brooks Award from the Department of Athletics for his outstanding contribution toward the advancement of student athletes.

He was also honored with the Doctorate of University Friendship by former Chancellor William H. Wagoner "for 34 years of outstanding televised public support of UNCW and its many activities and in recognition of consistent high standards of professional integrity and sense of fair play." For the past 11 years, Jackson has volunteered in the Division for Public Service and Continuing Studies as chair for the UNCW Adult Scholars Leadership Program.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Biological Sciences Seminar

John Bruno from the Department of Marine Sciences at UNC Chapel Hill will present "Landscape-scale Rarity and Metapopulation Dynamics in a Marine Plant Community" at 2 p.m. Jan. 25 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

UNCW Trustee Named Among Legal Elite

Larry Dagenhart, chair of the UNCW Board of Trustees, was listed among the state's legal elites in the January issue of Business North Carolina. Dagenhart, a member of Smith, Helms, Mulliss and Moore of Charlotte, was cited as one of the top attorneys in the business law and corporate counsel categories.

Port City Comedy Jam

Comic Bill Bellamy will perform at 8 p.m. Feb. 2 in Kenan Auditorium for the Port City Comedy Jam sponsored by the Association for Campus Entertainment. Bellamy, a former host of MTV Jams and HBO's Def Comedy Jam, appears in the WB sitcom Men, Women and Dogs. Tickets are $10, $2 for UNCW students and are on sale at the University Union information desk and the Kenan Auditorium box office.

Interracial Dialogues

The YWCA Interracial Dialogue Study Circles will begin five-week meeting schedules in February. Led by two co-facilitators, the circles offer participants a chance for reflection on personal experiences regarding race relations. Groups are limited to a maximum of 15. For more information, contact Amber Milliken at 799-6820.

Mad for Stars

Randall Library is hosting the exhibit "Mad for Stars – Cinema Icons" through Feb. 28 at its first-floor art wall. Seventy-five Hollywood stars are featured. Included in the display are items from the Minot West Godwin Photograph/Memorabilia Collection, which is housed in the library's Special Collections.

MLK Commemoration

Lucas

Dramatist Jim Lucas will be the featured performer at UNCW's 2002 Martin Luther King Jr. commemoration scheduled for 7 p.m. Jan. 24 in Kenan Auditorium. The event, sponsored by the Office of Campus Diversity, is free and open to the public. Advance tickets are required, call the Kenan Auditorium box office at ext. 3500.

Lucas has received national acclaim for his dramatic recitations and interpretive readings depicting the life and times of King.

Women's Soccer Honored

For the second consecutive year, UNCW's women's soccer team was named to the Academic All-America list by the National Soccer Coaches Association of America. To be eligible, teams must have a cumulative 3.0 grade point average. UNCW and the College of William and Mary were the only Colonial Athletic Association teams honored.

Center Stage Buffets

The Center Stage lunch buffets, served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Warwick Center, Seahawk Grille, will feature the following menus:

Friday – Chicken and dumplings, mushroom shepherd's pie, macaroni and cheese, black-eyed peas, whole kernel corn, assorted salads, rolls, desserts and beverages.

Tuesday – Sweet and sour pork over rice, baked cheese ravioli, peas and mushrooms, carrots, assorted salads, rolls, desserts and beverages.

Physics Colloquium

Gurudas Ganguli from the Naval Research Laboratory, Washington D.C., will present "Plasma Dynamics in the Earth's Auroral Region" at 8 p.m. Jan. 31 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212.

Movie Makers Lecture

Jeff Godwin, a special effects and makeup artist, will lecture at 2 p.m. Jan. 25 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium, as part of the Movie Makers Lecture Series sponsored by the Film Studies Program. Godwin, the author of Simple Makeup Effects, worked on Blue Velvet and The Last of the Mohicans.

NAACP Heritage Ball

The UNCW chapter of the NAACP will hold its annual Heritage Ball at 7 p.m. Feb. 22 in the University Union Hawk's Nest. The event, which includes a dinner and dance, will feature a talk by Benjamin Ruffin on "Stairway to Heaven: Taking It Step by Step."

Ruffin, chair of the UNC Board of Governors, is a lifetime and Golden Heritage member of the NAACP. In his speech, he will explain how small organizations and groups can make a difference in the community.

Tickets are $10 per person for UNCW students, $15 for all others and are on sale at the University Union information desk. Tickets for couples are $25.

Friends of UNCW Funding Available

The Friends of UNCW are accepting grant proposals through Feb. 22 for departmental projects that do not require substantial funding.

Founded in 1963 to assist in the accreditation of Wilmington College, Friends of UNCW support and promote educational, scientific and charitable projects on behalf of the university. For an application, contact Gennie Beatty at ext. 3751.

Personal Hygiene Donations Needed

The UNCW Fellowship of Christian University Students is collecting personal hygiene items for the Domestic Violence Shelter. Donations will be accepted from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Jan. 30 through Feb. 1 at the University Union. Full-sized products are preferred.

Glimpses of America

Playwright and performance artist Anna Deavere Smith will present "Snapshots: Glimpses of America in Change" at 7 p.m. Feb. 5 in Kenan Auditorium. This performance is part of the Leadership Lecture Series sponsored by the Campus Activities and Involvement Center.

In "Snapshots: Glimpses of America in Change," Smith combines the power of words and theatrical performance to transform herself into the different voices of the many people she has interviewed during racial conflicts. In addition to theatrical work, Smith has appeared in the films Dave, Philadelphia and The American President. She has a reoccurring guest role on the TV series The West Wing.

Smith

Winner of the prestigious MacArthur Foundation "genius" fellowship, Smith founded the Institute on the Arts and Civic Dialogue based at Harvard University in 1998. She is a tenured professor in the Tisch School of the Arts at New York University with an additional affiliation at the NYU School of Law.

Her performance is co-sponsored by the Office of Campus Diversity. Admission to the lecture is free for UNCW students, faculty and staff; $7.50 for all others. For tickets, call the auditorium box office at ext. 3500.

Hall of Fame Tickets

Tickets for the 2002 UNCW Athletic Hall of Fame induction ceremonies are $10 and are on sale at the Trask Coliseum ticket office. This event, scheduled for 12:30 p.m. Feb. 2 in the Warwick Center Ballroom, will honor four former student-athletes: Garry Cooper, Burak Erdem, Heather Fenton and Lou Howard.

Call for Nominations for UNCW Honorary Degrees

Honorary degrees, which are granted by the faculty and trustees of UNCW, are the highest accolade the university can bestow on an individual who is not currently employed as a member of its faculty or staff. It is given to honor an individual who possesses outstanding qualities and talents, who has made exceptional contributions to the field of his or her endeavor and who exemplifies the highest standards of personal integrity and civic responsibility.

Nominations may be made at any time by any member of the university community. Forms are available at the Office of the Provost or the office of any academic dean or department. A single page supporting the candidate's qualifications should accompany the nomination form.

Additional information on the evaluation and approval process is available in the Faculty Handbook which is accessible on the World Wide Web at http://www.uncwil.edu/fac_handbook.

Rankings: When it Comes to National Service America's 'Best Colleges' Are its Worst," by Joshua Green, and supporting data are on the Web at www.washingtonmonthly.com/features/2001/0201.green.html.

In addition to the work-study paid community service, UNC Wilmington students gave 28,089 service hours in the community during the 2000-2001 academic year.

Make a Difference in a Child's Life

Volunteers are needed to tutor third grade students in New Hanover and Pender counties for the state end-of-grade tests. Tutors can select their school and must commit to three hours of training followed by one hour of tutoring per week for 10 weeks from February through April. For more information, contact Denis Carter at ext. 3540 or e-mail carterd.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Barry Wray, information systems and operations management, presented "Incorporating Negative Information into Rule Induction: An Analysis of a Kanban-based JIT Production System" at the National Meeting of the Decision Sciences in San Francisco. The paper was co-authored by Rick Mathieu of St. Louis University and Ina Markham of James Madison University.

Mike Mallin, Scott Ensign, Matt McIver and Chris Shank, CMS, biological sciences and chemistry, had the paper "Demographic, Landscape and Meteorological Factors Controlling the Microbial Pollution of Coastal Waters" published in Hydrobiologia, vol. 460. The paper was co-authored by Patricia Fowler of the North Carolina Division of Environmental Health.

Andrew Dutka, Sherman Hayes and Jerry Parnell, Randall Library, had the article "The Surprise Part of a Librarian's Life - Exhibition Design and Preparation Course" published in the College and Research Libraries News Journal, vol. 63, no. 1.

David White, chemistry, had "Can Semi-empirical Quantum Mechanics Be Used to Predict the Spin State of Transition Metal Complexes? An Application of De Novo Prediction" published in the international journal Inorganic Chemistry. The paper, which was co-written by undergraduate student Aaron Gillespie, resulted from a collaboration with co-authors Thomas Cundari, graduate student Corneliu Buda and undergraduate student David Ball from the University of Memphis.

Porterfield Named Associate Vice Chancellor

Cameron School of Business associate dean Rebecca Porterfield was appointed associate vice chancellor for academic affairs effective July 1. She will succeed Melton McLaurin who is entering phased retirement.

Porterfield

"Dr. Porterfield was selected after an extremely competitive internal search," said John C. Cavanaugh, provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs. "Her broad experience as a faculty member, chair and associate dean has prepared her for the duties and responsibilities of this office, and her efforts in distance education and international programs are excellent background for major initiatives in these areas."

Porterfield said she was "very honored to have been chosen for this position and I am excited about the new opportunities and challenges ahead."

Before assuming duties as associate dean of the business school, Porterfield was chair of the Department of Management and Marketing. In 1998, Porterfield helped develop UNCW's international business program which involves a transatlantic alliance with four European business schools and two other U.S. business schools. Prior to joining the Cameron faculty in 1991, Porterfield was on the faculty at Hofstra University in New York and during a 15-year period held a variety of analyst and management positions with several corporations.

UNCW Documentary Wins CASE Awards

Paving the American Dream: Southern Cities, Shores & Sprawl, UNCW's fourth documentary, received four awards from the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) District III. In addition to the Award of Excellence for Documentary, the film garnered special merit awards for radio spot, invitation and logo. The winning entries will be displayed at the CASE District III Conference in Atlanta Feb. 3-6.

The documentary, narrated by Chancellor James R. Leutze, was written, directed and co-produced by Lou Buttino, communication studies, and filmed and edited by Dustin Miller, UNCW Television. Elaine Penn, university advancement, served as executive producer.

UNCW celebrates Intercultural Week Feb. 11-16. Numerous events are planned to celebrate the cultural diversity represented at UNCW and in the greater Wilmington community. Highlights include "Taking UNCW to the World: A Town Hall Meeting" featuring Newsweek senior editor Jonathan Alter scheduled for 7 p.m. Feb. 13 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. Look for more details in the Feb. 7 edition of Campus Communique.

Betsy Ervin to Head Women's Center

English professor Elizabeth "Betsy" Ervin will serve as the first director of the UNCW Women's Resource Center effective July 1. The center's creation resulted from a campus survey and a proposal by the university's Women's Issues Task Force.

According to Ervin, the center will provide many services for women including job and childcare referrals and information sessions on women's issues. She said that it would also serve as a safe haven for women.

"The center will give students a more global picture of what women's lives are like," said Ervin. "Programs will be incorporated with the women's studies minor to help motivate female students to live the life they want to live."

Ervin

Ervin teaches classes in English and women's studies. She received a bachelor's degree from the University of Arizona and a master's degree from Texas Christian University. Ervin earned a Ph.D. in rhetoric composition and the teaching of English from the University of Nebraska at Kearney.

In appointing Ervin, John C. Cavanaugh, provost and vice chancellor of academic affairs said, "Dr. Ervin will bring a clear and important vision to the center, one that is informed by her academic background, scholarship, active personal involvement in issues related to women and broad knowledge of the campus and community."

'Taking UNCW to the World' Panel Highlights Intercultural Week

World issues and international careers will be the focus of two events Feb. 13. The town hall meeting "Taking UNCW to the World," a panel discussion on how U.S. relations with the world may have changed since Sept. 11, will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Warwick Center Ballroom. "The Young and the Restless," featuring five young practitioners from UNCW who will discuss their international careers, will be held from 12:15 to 2:45 p.m. in Cameron Hall Auditorium. Both events are part of UNCW's ninth annual Intercultural Week Feb. 11-16.

Alter

Featured panelists for the town hall meeting are Jonathan Alter, a senior editor and columnist of Newsweek and contributing correspondent with NBC News; Tom Farer, the dean of the graduate school of international studies at the University of Denver; Allister Sparks, a native of South Africa, author and journalist; and Richard McGraw, the principal deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs. Each person will speak for approximately five minutes about his international experiences followed by questions from the audience. UNCW-TV will broadcast this meeting on the Learning Network of the Cape Fear which airs on Time Warner Cable channel 5. Frances Weller, WECT-TV news anchor, and Adrien Lopez, UNCW SGA president, will serve as moderators.

Panelists for "The Young and the Restless" are UNCW graduates or

UNCW, UNCC Collaborate to Benefit Nurses

Through the combined efforts of nursing programs at UNC Wilmington and UNC Charlotte, registered nurses practicing in North Carolina can now take the first of four core nursing courses leading to a bachelor's degree via online/distance learning. The pilot course now underway – leadership and management – is the first such collaboration between nursing schools in North Carolina. It is believed to be the first in the nation.

The two universities jointly developed the course through a $25,000 grant from the UNC Office of the President designed to spur collaborative program planning. Three other core courses – professional issues, research and health assessment – are planned to be offered in this same collaborative manner, although UNC Wilmington and UNC Charlotte have been offering separate Web-based learning options for RNs with associate degrees since 1998 and 2000, respectively.

This new joint effort maximizes the resources from both institutions to meet the state's need for nurses with baccalaureate degrees. Students receive a computer CD that was developed by Bettie Glenn, associate dean for academic affairs, and Virginia Adams, dean of the School of Nursing at UNCW, and Sonya Hardin, assistant professor at UNCC's College of Nursing and Health Professions. The disc contains instructional materials with visual and audio enhancements. Glenn and Hardin are teaching approximately 22 and 30 students, respectively.

Among the UNCW class are students from Fayetteville and Jacksonville as well as Columbus, Brunswick and Onslow counties. In the Charlotte program, students are enrolled from Asheville and Hendersonville, as well as Guilford and Mecklenburg counties.

Help with FAFSA

On Feb. 9, students planning to enroll in college next year and their families can get professional assistance completing federal financial aid applications.

Financial aid professionals will be on hand at UNCW to assist students and parents in completing the electronic version of the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). Anyone planning to enroll in any college, nationwide, during 2002-2003, can attend.

UNCW's Financial Aid and Veterans Services team, along with local school professionals, will participate in the North Carolina FAFSA Day from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Feb. 9 in Bear Hall.

Families should obtain a paper FAFSA application and complete as much of the form as possible before coming to the university. If possible, families are also asked to bring parents' and student's completed 2001 tax forms, parents' and student's 2001 W-2 forms, the student's Social Security card and driver's license. Other financial information may also be required such as investment assets, child support payment information, etc.

For more information, contact financial aid and veterans services at ext. 3177, by e-mail at finaid@uncwil.edu or on the Web at www.uncwil.edu/finaid/.

FAFSA Day is sponsored by UNCW, the College Foundation of North Carolina and the North Carolina Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators.

Friends Funding

The Friends of UNCW are accepting grant proposals through Feb. 22 for departmental projects that do not require substantial funding. For an application, contact Gennie Beatty at ext. 3626.

Building One World

"Building One World – Together," an Intercultural Week activity for children ages five to 11 will be held from 9:30 a.m. to noon Feb. 16 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. In addition to a variety of activities designed to promote world unity, master storyteller and musician Madafo Lloyd Wilson will perform at 11 a.m. Faculty, staff and students can make reservations for their children to attend by calling the Center for Leadership Education and Service at ext. 3877.

The center is seeking volunteers with foreign language skills or experience with origami to assist with this event. Contact Lauren Douglas, ext. 3877, or Becky Long, ext. 3043. International students, faculty and staff who would like to share information about their culture with children should also contact the center.

Housing Information for New Faculty

Academic departments that are hiring new faculty may request information packets from the Seahawk Perch, UNCW's Commuter and Non-Traditional Student Services Center. The packets contain detailed brochures about Wilmington apartments and real estate, a UNCW shuttle bus system guide, a change of address kit, the UNCW off-campus living guide, a child care directory and a list of Wilmington-related Web sites. For more information, contact the Seahawk Perch at ext. 7371 or visit the Web site www.uncwil.edu/stuaff/doso/comm.

Mad for Stars

Randall Library is hosting the exhibit "Mad for Stars – Cinema Icons" through Feb. 28 at its first-floor art wall. Seventy-five Hollywood stars are featured. Included in the display are items from the Minot West Godwin Photograph/Memorabilia Collection housed in the library's Special Collections.

Both papers were co-authored by Peter J. Wangersky from the School of Earth and Ocean Sciences, University of Victoria, British Columbia.

Robert Cutting, environmental studies, had the article "One Man's Ceilin' is Another Man's Floor – Property Rights as the Double-edged Sword," which is about the evolving law of trespass and modern analytical tools to trans-boundary pollution, published in the December issue of Environmental Law, the oldest law journal devoted exclusively to environmental law.

Carol Chase Thomas, education, is chair of the State Evaluation Committee, a subcommittee of the State Board of Education that is charged with reviewing teacher education programs.

Chris Dumas, economics and finance, presented "Detecting Evidence of Noncompliance in Self-reported Pollution Emissions Data: An Application of Benford's Law" and "Risk Aversion and Hurricane Damage Mitigation: The Case of Wilmington, N.C." at the Southern Economics Association annual meeting. The latter paper was co-authored by Rob Burrus and Ed Graham, economics and finance.

General College Director Applicants Sought

UNC Wilmington is seeking a director of its General College to begin July 2002. The director is responsible for the oversight and daily operations of the General College, including the supervision of a staff of 12, and will focus primarily on issues related to academic advising. The director will interact frequently with deans' offices, academic departments, admissions, registrar, transition programs, Faculty Senate and career services and will report to the associate vice chancellor for academic affairs. This is a 12-month position.

Requirements for the position include an earned doctorate and the rank of associate professor or above with tenure. Candidates must possess strong organizational, leadership, interpersonal and communication skills. Experience in General College advising or other academic administrative experience a plus. Applicants must submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae and a one-page vision statement discussing ways academic advising might best be structured to meet the needs of students in light of UNCW's growth to Stephen Pullum, chair of the search committee, in Bear Hall, Room 109, by Feb. 22 for full consideration.

Dluhy Book Explores Miami Financial Crisis

Milan Dluhy, political science, and co-author Howard Frank of Florida International University connect corrupt management and indifferent public administration of the Latin American culture to the Miami fiscal crisis in their book Miami's Fiscal Insolvency: Can a Poor City Regain Its Prosperity.

Dluhy

The book discusses Miami's unique ethnic composition of Latin American political majority and the role that the Latin majority played in the crisis. It includes analysis of government budgeting and financial practices of the city and the influence Latin leaders played in the city's financial management. Findings were based on both cultural and ethnic factors that contributed to increased spending, an unwillingness to raise taxes and other revenues and poor and corrupt financial procedures.

The book is a case study analysis that compares the financial situation in Miami to earlier fiscal crises in New York City, Philadelphia and Orange County, Calif. It also explains Miami's slow financial recovery from 1996 to 2001.

"By combining our resources, UNC Charlotte and UNC Wilmington are able to offer an online program that further enhances access to education," said Sue Bishop, dean of the College of Nursing and Health Professions at UNC Charlotte. "Our goal is to work together to increase the number of nurses in the state who have bachelor's degrees in nursing."

"There is a critical need for baccalaureate-prepared nurses in North Carolina," said UNCW's Glenn. "Research indicates that nurses who obtain advanced education provide care in a more comprehensive manner. Furthermore, in most nontraditional settings such as home health care, public health departments, secondary schools or community-based practices, a bachelor's degree is preferred."

Data from the North Carolina Center for Nursing indicate that approximately 68 percent of the 70,000 registered nurses working in North Carolina hold associate degrees in nursing, so the potential market for this program is significant. According to Glenn, registered nurses who earn a diploma through hospital-based education or those with an associate degree (ADN) may have the same opportunities as graduates of a baccalaureate program; however, the majority of health-related agencies are looking for nurses with advanced education to fill management positions.

Both market needs as well as students' lifestyles have contributed to the need for online course development. The majority of practicing registered nurses must balance work and family obligations to return to school.

"Increasingly complex clients in the health care system today need nurses with this advanced education," said Pamala Larsen, associate dean for academic affairs and director of distance education for UNC Charlotte's College of Nursing and Health Professions. "Collaborating with the School of Nursing at UNC Wilmington provides a win-win situation for nurses across the state in providing greater access to advanced education."

Percussion Ensemble

The UNCW Percussion Ensemble will perform at 8 p.m. Feb. 23 in Kenan Auditorium. Policy Update

Responsible Use of Electronic Resources (ITS 1.00)

The electronic resources of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington are powerful tools that are shared among all members of the campus community and are designed to support the teaching, learning, instructional, research, administrative, service and other activities of the university and are intended to be used in useful and productive ways. To provide guidelines for the responsible and appropriate use of the university's electronic resources and services, UNCW has adopted a university-wide policy that replaces the previous UNCW Computing Resource Use Policy.

All university employees are encouraged to read the new policy and the accompanying administrative provisions for guidelines concerning activities including, but not limited to, harassment; e-mail abuse; security; confidentiality; privacy; user accounts and authorized access; abusing, damaging or destroying electronic resources; and viruses and hoaxes. This administrative policy (ITS 1.00) is published in the Administrative Policies and Procedures Manual on the Web at www.uncwil.edu/sp/admproc/its100.htm

Seahawk Club Teams Up with Local Restaurants

Four area restaurants, Applebee's, Alleigh's, Buffalo Wild Wings and Sticky Fingers, will televise the Feb. 9 men's basketball game against James Madison University; tip-off is at noon. From 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., these restaurants will donate 10 percent of their proceeds to the Seahawk Club. Diners should bring their Seahawk Club memberships or UNCW IDs.

Final Sale

The bookstore is holding a final sale featuring savings up to 60 percent on clothing, gifts, supplies, books and greeting cards through Feb. 28. All sales are final.

Tax Form Help

Beta Alpha Psi, the accounting honors fraternity, will provide free help to students, faculty and staff in completing 1040 EZ and 1040A federal tax forms. Student volunteers will be available from 2 to 4 p.m. Tuesdays, 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Wednesdays and 9 to 11 a.m. Thursdays, Feb. 19 through April 15, in Cameron Hall, Room 230. Direct questions to Ann Joyner at ext. 3509.

Oversized Copies

The print shop can now make black-and-white copies up to 24 by 36 inches. The copier is not digital and will only reproduce blueprints or other oversized material from hard-copy originals. The cost is $2 per copy. The print shop is also equipped to produce full color posters measuring up to 42 inches wide from digital files, or it can custom-design a poster.

The Real World

"Beyond Graduation: The Real World – Expectations for UNCW Seniors" will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Feb. 22 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. Sponsored by the Division for Student Affairs, Sprint PCS and Kenny Barnes Portrait Studio, this event will feature information on career preparation, resume suggestions and other topics to prepare seniors for entering the job market. To attend, seniors must register online at www.uncwil.edu/stuaff/transitions/seniors/beyondgraduation.html. Attendance is $5 for registrations by Feb. 8. Payment for registrations will be accepted through Feb. 22 at the Transitions Programs Office, University Union, Room 202. For more information, contact Mary Crookes at ext. 7505.

CAMPUS COMMUNIQUE

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

University Relations Vol. XXXI, No. 29 February 21, 2002 Phillip Brown, editor

University's Facilities Office Gearing Up For Construction Season

Spring is traditionally a period characterized by birth and growth. This year, it is especially true at UNCW. With more than $100 million of construction projects underway, the campus is gearing up for the first of many busy building seasons.

"Numerous projects are in the planning and design phase, and successful completion of these projects will expand and modernize our facilities," said Ed Davis, associate vice chancellor for facilities in the Division for Business Affairs.

Davis, who joined UNCW in September after 14 years at Yale University, is currently overseeing campus construction and renovation projects totaling $116.5 million. This figure includes $73.2 million in funding for items supported by the Higher Education Facilities Bond passed in November 2000 and $43.3 million in receipt-funded projects.

"Construction bids for the School of Education are due Feb. 21, and I anticipate work to begin in March or April," said Davis. "This $18 million facility is the first of three new campus buildings that will be built with bond monies."

When completed, the new building will reunite the Watson School of Education faculty in one location. Cathy Barlow, dean of the school, is anxiously awaiting this prospect.

"Currently, we have faculty housed in four different buildings," said Barlow. "The Watson School of Education is growing rapidly at the undergraduate and graduate level, and the licensure-only program, which is designed for people who have already received a degree but who want to obtain a teaching license, has grown more than 1,000 percent in 10 years. Classes must be held all over campus. It will be a welcome change to have everyone under one roof."

Barlow added that another exciting aspect planned for the building is the Teachers' Legacy Hall that will honor educators statewide. The hall, supported by four North Carolina governors, will serve as a tribute to teachers and will encourage students to become educators.

In addition to new construction, the facilities bond will fund expansions for Hoggard Hall, the warehouse and the print shop, said Davis. Significant receipt revenue projects either underway or planned include the addition to Trask Coliseum's Nixon Annex, a 263-bed residence hall, expansion of Westside Hall and the renovation and addition to the University Union.

To meet the challenge of keeping construction on track, Davis is revitalizing how his office plans for major capital projects. "Project planning phases require extensive input from faculty and staff who will use the facility. Our office will assume a leadership role in arranging the planning and design of projects to ensure that we get adequate input from user groups early in the process to avoid design delays," said Davis. "With new projects, prior to retaining an architect we'll have meetings with user groups to determine the general scope of the work. More involvement from the users of the facility from the outset is the key that should ultimately keep the project on track."

For existing buildings that will undergo renovations with bond monies, Davis said he will still rely upon faculty and staff input although funding may not be adequate to improve programmatic capability. The amount funded for renovations was determined prior to the bond's passage.

"Buildings that deteriorated over time will be returned to near their original standard," said Davis. "Funding is in place to modernize infrastructure and correct code deficiencies. The construction of new buildings will address UNCW's programmatic improvements along with expansions to Westside and Hoggard halls, the warehouse and the print shop." Construction on warehouse and print shop expansions is expected to begin this year, Davis said.

Another project slated to start this year is a new 263-bed residence hall that will

Bookstore Changeover

Barnes & Noble will operate the university bookstore effective March 1. The shop's official name will remain the University Bookstore. It will undergo minimal physical changes because a new store location is planned for the University Union expansion. As part of the changeover, the bookstore will be closed for final inventory on March 1 and will reopen March 4.

A Bookstore Advisory Committee consisting of students, faculty and staff will be appointed to advise Barnes & Nobles management on pertinent issues related to the bookstore operation. Information on faculty textbook orders is forthcoming.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Graduate Mentor Award

The Graduate School is seeking nominations for its third annual Graduate Mentor Award. This honor recognizes members of UNCW's graduate faculty who have excelled at teaching at the graduate level and who have an established record of mentoring students who have received master's degrees. The latter includes not only guiding the research activity of students during their tenure at UNCW, but also helping students become established as independent scholars and professionals. To be eligible, faculty members must be full-time, tenured teachers who hold the rank of full or associate professor.

A chair or director of an academic unit, colleague, student or other appropriate person in the university community can nominate a prospective awardee. Send nominations, with accompanying materials, to the Graduate School by March 4. Additional information on this award is available from any dean's office, graduate program coordinators or the Graduate School.

African Dance

The African American Dance Ensemble (AADE) will present a free concert at 7 p.m. March 1 in Kenan Auditorium. The ensemble is in Wilmington as part of the AADE Residency Project organized by the North Carolina Arts Council and funded in part by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Lila Wallace Reader's Digest Fund. The AADE is a three-year regional program to promote African dance, drum and culture.

The Mission & Vision Statement of the Department of Athletics is provided on reverse side.

Mission Statement

The mission of the Department of Athletics, based upon and consistent with the purpose of the university, is to encourage student scholarship and sportsmanship with emphasis placed on helping students make appropriate progress towards completion of their chosen academic degree program. Academic integrity is a basic element of athletic programming decisions, thus ensuring that the educational values, practices and mission of UNCW set the standards for the program. UNCW's athletic program is characterized by its quest for student excellence in competition and in the academic setting. The university is committed to continually improving the program, which is an integral part of campus life and a university focal point for building student and regional involvement and support. The Department of Athletics provides opportunities for students to utilize their athletic skills through competition at the appropriate intercollegiate level and to have the university represented by men and women whose conduct and sportsmanship reflect positively on the institution. It seeks to field disciplined and competitive athletic teams dedicated to observing applicable rules, to provide quality athletic training and medical support to intercollegiate athletes and to support the general welfare of student-athletes. Athletics works to foster a sense of personal responsibility by those who attend athletic events. The program insists upon a high ethical code of honor and respect from each of its athletes and personnel and adheres to the policies, rules and guidelines of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the Colonial Athletic Association and the institution. The Department of Athletics is committed to complying with Title IX regulations and the promotion of affirmative action goals.

Vision Statement

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington strives to provide students with a wholesome environment of athletic competition, high quality coaches, dedicated support staff and the administrative personnel to help them become better athletes, students and citizens.

Tickets will be on sale at the auditorium box office on the night of the concert.

be located near the International House and Honors Residence Hall completing a planned courtyard.

According to Pat Leonard, vice chancellor for student affairs, the project will include such student amenities as "port per pillow" high-speed Ethernet connection and a computer lab. She added that faculty in the humanities are interested in developing a format for learning communities.

Brad Reid, director of housing and residence life, said the new hall has "great potential to create living and learning communities. The building is designed to have two classrooms and one seminar room with state-of-the-art technological features. While the concept is evolving, the faculty deserve the credit for getting the ball rolling to hold classes in this residence hall."

As this historic expansion program starts at the state's 16 campuses, each institution must make minority contractor participation a top priority.

UNCW's facilities and purchasing offices along with the Small Business Technology and Development Center and the state Housing and Urban Development Office in conjunction with Partners for Economic Inclusion held the workshop "Doing Business with UNCW" earlier this month.

"The workshop was designed to break down barriers that might have existed between the university and community businesses," said Mary Forsythe, director of purchasing. "We intend to do a better job of communicating what our needs are with the community. UNCW will look for future opportunities to involve more small and historically under-utilized businesses in construction contracts."

OFFICIAL NOTICES

Open House

Auxiliary services will host an open house from 9 to 11 a.m. March 1 in its Warwick Center offices, which are located in the space formerly occupied by human resources. The entrance faces the athletic fields. Refreshments will be served.

IACUC Proposals

The UNCW Institutional Animal Care and Use Committee will meet at 3 p.m. Feb. 28 in Alderman Hall, Room 211, to review protocols involving vertebrate animals. Faculty, staff and students planning research or teaching classes that involve animals should submit protocols for new or continuing projects to the Office of Sponsored Programs by Feb. 26. Complete the MS Word protocol form, which is available on the Web at www.uncwil.edu/ora/forms, and e-mail it as an attachment to M. J. Carver at carvermj. Direct questions to ext. 3809.

Medical Insurance

North Carolina Teachers' and State Employees' Comprehensive Major Medical Plan has revised its Summary Plan Description for 2002. Employees should receive a new handbook and ID cards at their home addresses by March 1. Employees who do not receive new ID cards by March 31 should contact customer services at 1-800-422-4658. General information is available through the plan's Web site www.statehealthplan.state.nc.us.

As a reminder, the State of North Carolina is self-insured; therefore, the North Carolina Teachers' and State Employees' Comprehensive Major Medical Plan is a state plan and not a Blue Cross Blue Shield plan. Blue Cross Blue Shield is only the claims processor for the state's health plan.

Applications for Honors Program Associate Director

The Honors Scholars Program is seeking applications for the position of associate director to begin July 2002. Administrative duties of the associate director include: reviewing applicants for the honors program; curriculum development, including developing an honors course schedule each semester; representing the program to university and non-university audiences; working with departments and individual faculty in the design of honors courses; development of and participation in co-curricular enrichment activities; advising the Honors Scholars Association; editing the honors newsletter; and special projects.

The associate director is also a general college academic advisor to honors students, and is expected to teach one course in his or her home department each semester as well as the one-hour honors enrichment seminar once a year and the freshman honors seminar as needed.

This is a 12-month position. Requirements for the position include an earned doctorate and the rank of associate professor or above with tenure. Candidates must possess strong organizational, interpersonal and communication skills. Experience in honors teaching and honors project supervision is a plus. Applicants must submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae and a statement describing his or her view of the role of honors at UNCW to Kate Bruce, honors program director, Randall Library, by April 1.

This is recyclable.

Science Writer to Lecture on Big Predators

Acclaimed science/nature writer David Quammen will present "The Improbable Lion: Big Predators in a Crowded World" at 7:30 p.m. March 14 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. The Honors Scholars Program is sponsoring this free, public event.

Quammen

Quammen is a two-time National Magazine Award winner for his science essays and columns in Outside magazine. His work has also appeared in National Geographic, Harper's, Rolling Stone and The New York Times Book Review.

His March 14 presentation at UNCW will focus on large predators such as the lion in Western India. The lion, along with the saltwater crocodile, Romanian brown bear and Siberian tiger are among the predators Quammen explores in a forthcoming non-fiction book. His 1996 Song of the Dodo: Island Biogeography in the Age of Extinctions dealt with the history of evolutionary theory, biodiversity, population dynamics and extinction. Essay collections by Quammen include The Flight of the Iguana, Boilerplate Rhino: Nature in the Eye of the Beholder and Wild Thoughts from Wild Places. He also edited The Best American Science and Nature Writing in 2000.

Born in Cincinnati, Ohio, and educated at Yale and Oxford universities, Quammen resides in Bozeman, Mont. He has received numerous awards and fellowships including an Academy Award in Literature from the American Academy of Arts and Letters, the John Burroughs Medal for nature writing and the New York Public Library's Helen Berstein Book Award.

Senior Biology Major Named Rolex Scholar

Stefanie Wells, a senior marine biology major, was selected as the 2002-03 North American Rolex Scholar by Our World Underwater Scholarship Society.

Wells, from Auburn, N.Y., is the daughter of James and Margret Wells.

The scholarship is open to applicants between the ages of 21 and 25 who are certified divers with no less than 25 dives. They must also be in good academic standing and have not yet received a master's degree. This nationwide scholarship is sponsored and funded in large part by the Rolex Corp. Wells, who will receive a Rolex watch and diving equipment, will travel around the world from May 2002 until April 2003 assisting in research expeditions and visiting various university diving programs around the country.

UNCW and Wilmington Hilton Partner on Scholarships/Internships

The Hilton Wilmington Riverside and UNCW have formed a partnership in which the hotel will provide merit scholarships, joint marketing opportunities, support for UNCW athletic teams, internships and employment listing opportunities.

The Hilton's goal for the scholarship is to create greater opportunities for future leaders, said Rick Guttenberger, general manager of the Hilton Wilmington Riverside.

Mary Charles "Charley" McArthur, daughter of Charles and Brenda McArthur of Chadbourn, N.C., was named the first Hilton Wilmington Riverside Merit Scholar. McArthur, an honors program student, had the highest GPA and most completed hours of all freshmen.

The donors, who have pledged to establish an endowed scholarship, will present a scholarship every semester until it is fully funded. The Wilmington Hilton, which is owned by MHI Hotels, also announced an annual gift of $2,500 to the Seahawk Club to support UNCW athletics. Internship and employment listing opportunity details are still being organized.

Located in historic downtown, the Hilton Wilmington Riverside also unveiled a permanent display case featuring university information, admission publications, photos and biographies of scholarship recipients and

Indian Musician to Perform for Arts in Action Series

K. Sridhar, master of the India sarod, will perform at 8 p.m. March 16 in Kenan Auditorium as part of the Arts in Action Series.

K. Sridhar

Sridhar, who began touring in 1982, has performed throughout the world and has conducted seminars in Indian music with musicians of various disciplines including jazz, flamenco and classical. At the age of 14, he became the youngest member of Ravi Shankar's orchestral group. Shankar is considered India's foremost sitarist. The sitar is an India lute with a long neck and a varying number of strings. Sridhar specializes in the sarod, a North Indian lute.

In India, the two music traditions of Hindustani from Northern India and Carnatic from Southern India co-exist. While both share the same basic systems, they differ in the instruments used. Sridhar has mastered performing in both traditions.

A recording artist for Peter Gabriel's Real World label, Sridhar's latest release Arab Path to India explores the musical connection between Persia and India. In addition to six recordings, Sridhar composed sound tracks for the films Meher Baba, the Awakener and Franco Indian Documentary.

Tickets are $5.50 for UNCW students and children ages 12 and under, $11.50 for UNCW faculty and staff and $17.50 for all others. Contact the Kenan Auditorium box office at ext. 3500.

Graduate Mentor Award

The Graduate School is seeking nominations for its third annual Graduate Mentor Award. This honor recognizes members of UNCW's graduate faculty who have excelled at teaching at the graduate level and who have an established record of mentoring students who have received master's degrees. The latter includes not only guiding the research activity of students during their tenure at UNCW, but also helping students become established as independent scholars and professionals. To be eligible, faculty members must be full-time, tenured teachers who hold the rank of full or associate professor.

A chair or director of an academic unit, colleague, student or other appropriate person in the university community can nominate a prospective awardee. Send nominations, with accompanying materials, to the Graduate School by March 4. Additional information on this award is available from any dean's office, graduate program coordinator or the Graduate School.

John Hubisz, visiting professor of physics at North Carolina State University, will present "Science and Religion: A University Course" at 7 p.m. Feb. 28.

Raffi Nazikian from the Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory, will present "Recent Developments and Future Directions in Fusion Energy Science" at 2 p.m. March 1.

Both talks will be held in DeLoach Hall, Room 212.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Ron Sizemore, biological sciences, had the article "Isolation and Preliminary Characterization of Bacteriocins from Vibrio vulnificus" published in the February issue of the Journal of Applied Microbiology. It was co-authored by Stephaney Shehane '00M, who is working on her Ph.D. at the University of South Florida.

John Whitehead, economics and finance, had the paper "Willingness to Pay for a Saltwater Recreational Fishing License: A Comparison of Angler Groups" published in Marine Resource Economics.

Barbara Frey Waxman, English, had the review article "Revising Our Cultural Stereotypes of Elderly Women and Old Age" published in the University of Wisconsin's Feminist Collections: A Quarterly of Women's Studies Resources.

Marian McPhaul, CMS, received $10,000 grants from New Hanover and Brunswick counties and the City of Wilmington for the Lower Cape Fear River Program, a total of $30,000.

Charles Ward, chemistry, received $81,000 from aaiPharma for the project "Master of Science Degree in Chemistry Pilot Between aaiPharma and UNCW."

Mike Perko, HPER, was quoted in the Feb. 17 Dallas Morning News article "Supplements: Playing with Fire."

Frank Bongiorno, music, was invited to perform as a soloist with the University of North Texas Symphony Orchestra. The March 6 concert is the opening event for the North American Saxophone Alliance biennial conference in Denton, Texas. Bongiorno will also perform a recital as a member of the Ryoanji Duo with guitarist Robert Nathanson.

William Cooper, chemistry, received $150,000 from N.C. Sea Grant for the project "Aquatic Nuisance Species – Control and Mitigation: Ozone Treatment of Ballast Water."

Joanne Nottingham, campus diversity, was appointed to a two-year term on the YWCA Board of Directors.

Nancy Grindlay and Lewis Abrams, earth sciences, received $40,325 from the United States Geological Survey for the project "Integration of New and Existing Marine Geophysical and Geological Data Offshore Western and Southern Puerto Rico into a GIS Database: Implications for Improved Earthquake Hazard Assessment."

Michael Mallin, CMS, received $35,000 from the New Hanover County Engineering Department for water quality analysis of the Mason Inlet Project. Mallin and James Merrit received $60,000 from the department for environmental research of the New Hanover County Tidal Creek System.

Christopher Dumas and Peter Schuhmann, economics and finance, received $56,034 in supplemental funding from Duke University/PEW Charitable Trust for the project "Regulation of Pelagic Longline Fishing."

David Webster, biological sciences, received $50,314 from New Hanover County for "Mason's Inlet Relocation Project – Piping Plover Surveys on Wrightsville Beach and Figure Eight Island."

Leslie Langer, SBTDC, received $94,449 in federal funding from the U.S. Small Business Administration for the 2002 SBTDC program year. She also received $59,906 for the project "SBTDC/DLA Raleigh."

Antonio Puente, psychology, received $3,250 in supplemental funding for an office assistant to assist in editing the scientific journal Neuropsychology Review.

Donation Completes Funding for Nixon Annex Addition

Gayle Van Veslor, regional vice president for CP&L, a Progress Energy Company, and Estell Lee, a former member of CP&L board of directors, presented a check for $250,000 to the UNCW Athletics Program on behalf of the Progress Energy Foundation. Lee was instrumental in securing this gift for UNCW. The check was presented to Chancellor James R. Leutze, Peg Bradley-Doppes, director of athletics, and Chris Delisio, executive director of the Seahawk Club, before the Feb. 23 UNCW-Virginia Commonwealth basketball game.

The gift, along with the monies from the Carl B. and Janice H. Brown family and several other donors, completes funding for the $1.2 million Phase II of Project 2002. This project includes the renovation and addition to the Nixon Annex and the Golden Hawk Room. This is the largest privately funded capital construction effort in the history of UNCW.

Lee, Wilmington College class of 1955, was honored in 1981 by the UNCW Alumni Association as Alumna of the Year and again in 1991 as Citizen of the Year. She is currently serving as a member of the UNCW Foundation Board of Directors and Seahawk Club executive committee.

upcoming events.

"Having UNCW highlighted in the Hilton's lobby will greatly enhance the visibility of the university to its many visitors and guests," said Mimi Cunningham, assistant vice chancellor for university relations. "We appreciate this opportunity to increase the public's knowledge of UNCW and draw attention to our highest academic achievers."

Art Exhibitors Sought

UNCW is seeking visual artists to exhibit their works during the 2002-03 academic year in the University Union and Warwick Center. Artwork of any medium is eligible. Works must be framed, matted and display-ready.

Interested artists should submit no more than 10 35mm slides that are representative of their work along with a current resume and artist statement for consideration by the selection committee. The deadline for submissions is 5 p.m. April 12.

Mail or deliver submission materials to Campus Activities and Involvement Center, University Union, Room 209. Artists should include their names on the slides and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for their return.

University Receives Extraordinary Commendation from SACS

The evaluation team representing the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) accrediting agency wrapped up its four-day visit to UNC Wilmington Feb. 28 with an exit report that featured a rare and extraordinary commendation.

The campus visit culminated two years of self-study and assessment by the university as part of the re-accreditation process that takes place every 10 years. The team, comprised of 14 evaluators from colleges and universities across the South and a staff representative from SACS, reviewed UNCW's documentation and conducted two full days of interviews with faculty, staff and students.

Based on their review, the team reported preliminary findings during the exit report, offering six recommendations and two suggestions for improvement. Donna Wilkinson, SACS staff representative, noted that in her five years with the agency, only one other institution that she helped review had fewer recommendations.

"Twenty-five recommendations is typical," Wilkinson said. "This is the second best experience I have been party to. This is extraordinary."

The exit report began with a rare commendation from the team presented by Gloria W. Raines, vice chancellor for student affairs at Louisiana State University in Shreveport and chair of the reaffirmation committee.

"The committee was very impressed by what we found to be a strong sense of community and mutual support and collaboration that is evident throughout the entire university," she said. "We were also very impressed by your commitment to undergraduate education, the fact that teaching was so important to you and that you value your undergraduate program. We were also very much impressed with your emphasis on regional service and the efforts you are making to lift the economic condition and improve the lives of the people who live in surrounding counties."

She also singled out UNCW's "university-wide concern for students. Your efforts to provide what we have termed 'excellence with a personal touch' is something that each of your students mentioned to us. The fact that you kept high standards and worked so hard to help your students meet those

Project B-GLAD Schedules Inaugural Training

Gay and lesbian students, faculty and staff who need support on campus will soon be able to indentify allies who complete Project B-GLAD workshops scheduled Thursday through Saturday, March 14-16.

Project B-GLAD — which stands for Bisexuals, Gays, Lesbians and Allies for Diversity — was approved by the Executive Cabinet in October 2001 on the recommendation of the Chancellor's Human Relations Advisory Committee.

"Project B-GLAD will become an integral part of the university's on-going commitment to fostering a learning environment that values diversity and respects individuals for talent and ability," said Sam Connally, assistant to the chancellor and director of human resources.

The workshops will be conducted under the joint sponsorship of the Office of Campus Diversity and the Department of Human Resources. Individuals who participate in the three-hour sessions will learn about some of the challenges that confront gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgendered persons as well as how stereotypes prevent the recognition in the value others contribute to the university community and how allies can promote a campus that is open and inclusive.

"Participants can expect to gain an understanding of what it means to be an ally for gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgendered students or colleagues," said Elizabeth Grimes, director of staff development and training. "There are many characteristics of being an ally, but the foremost is believing in the equality and dignity of people regardless of personal demographics and the right of all persons to live and pursue their goals free from intolerance, discrimination or harassment."

"We are pleased to be a co-sponsor of Project B-GLAD," said Joanne Nottingham, director of campus diversity. "Campus diversity is all about fostering an educational climate that promotes the academic and personal development of students from underrepresented groups; so those who complete B-GLAD training demonstrate their commitment to student development. All of our students deserve faculty and staff who understand and respect who they are; and, faculty and staff who are gay, lesbian

tuesday, march 19
7 pm, kenan auditorium

"Talk, Talk and More Talk. But WhatDo We Have to Say?" Quirky. Friendly. Down-to-earth. A great sense of humor. These are only a few descriptions of Susan Stamberg, the award-winning journalist who has been part of National Public Radio since the network began 30 years ago. For years, millions of people ended their workday by listening to her voice on the evening newsmagazine All Things Considered. She was one of the pioneers of National Public Radio, and the first woman to anchor a national nightly news program. She is now Special Correspondent for NPR and her thousands of interviews include conversations with Nancy Reagan, Annie Liebowitz, Rosa Parks, Dave Brubeck, and James Baldwin, to name a few.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Journalist Susan Stamberg to Speak for Leadership Series

Nationally renowned journalist Susan Stamberg will present "Talk, Talk and More Talk. But What Do We Have to Say?" at 7 p.m. March 19 in Kenan Auditorium. This free event is part of the UNCW Leadership Lecture Series and is co-sponsored by the Women's History Month Committee and WHQR 91.3 FM.

Stamberg

Stamberg, a special correspondent for National Public Radio, has received every major award in broadcasting, including induction into the Broadcasting Hall of Fame in 1994 and the Radio Hall of Fame in 1996. Stamberg was also the first woman to anchor a national nightly news program.

Beginning in 1972, Stamberg served as co-host for NPR's award-winning newsmagazine, All Things Considered. From January 1987 to October 1989, she hosted Weekend Edition Sunday, NPR's morning newsmagazine. As guest host of NPR's Morning Edition, Weekend Edition Sunday and Weekly Edition Stamberg reports on cultural issues.

Prior to joining NPR, Stamberg served as a producer, program director and general manager of WAMU-FM/Washington, D.C. She is the author of Talk: NPR's Susan Stamberg Considers All Things and Every Night at Five: Susan Stamberg's All Things Considered Book. She also co-edited The Wedding Cake in the Middle of the Road.

Vagina Monologues Performance

UNCW students will perform The Vagina Monologues at 7:30 p.m. March 13 in Kenan Auditorium. The workshops will begin with a panel discussion by gay or lesbian students and employees describing their experiences on campus followed by small group discussions on the responsibilities of being an ally, including an overview of the university's commitment to equal educational and employment opportunities. Each participant will receive a Project B-GLAD sticker to display in his or her office to denote being an ally. Fourteen UNCW students, faculty and staff have completed special training and will lead the sessions.

Any UNCW community member interested in attending a Project B-GLAD workshop should call ext. 3274. Sessions scheduled for Thursday and Friday will be held from 2 to 5 p.m.; the Saturday session will be from 9 a.m. to noon. Workshops will be conducted in the human resources training room, 5051 New Centre Drive.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

William Cooper, chemistry, received $150,000 from N.C. Sea Grant for the project "Aquatic Nuisance Species – Control and Mitigation: Ozone Treatment of Ballast Water." Cooper also participated in the workshop "Challenges for the Chemical Sciences in the 21st Century: National Security and Homeland Defense" sponsored by the Board on Chemical Sciences and Technology of the National Academy of Sciences in Irvine, Calif. He also presented "Chemical and Biological Terrorism: A Primer" at a luncheon for the Wake County chapter of the United Nations Association meeting held at Meredith College.

Daniel Baden, CMS, received $50,411 from the National Institutes of Environmental Health Sciences for the project "Research Supplement for Underrepresented Minorities."

standards is impressive."

She noted that committees rarely give commendations and that formal commendations are only given under "exceptional circumstances. We have a commendation for this university. We are commending you for your superb self-study document and the entire self-study process. We are very much impressed."

Following this introduction, committee members reported on the six recommendations and two suggestions. The mandatory recommendations primarily involved improved record-keeping of academic credentials; developing, publishing, and implementing policies for fees paid to faculty for consulting and summer salaries paid from externally funded grants and contracts; regularly evaluating procedures for budget planning; and implementing procedures to assure that the Information Technology Systems Division and University Advancement are meeting their goals and improving services.

The suggestions concerned having Randall Library develop a procedure to preserve or replace deteriorating materials. Also suggested was a comprehensive review of student financial aid services particularly from the standpoint of the level of professional staffing and an upgrade of its student information system.

Wilkinson noted that these recommendations were "not major issues, they are putting ribbons on packages." UNCW has five months to provide an institutional response. In December 2002, the full accrediting commission will consider the team's report and UNCW's response and will either reaffirm the university's accreditation or extend the period by 24 months, should more time be needed to demonstrate compliance.

Chancellor Jim Leutze thanked the team for its work and committed to "quickly and effectively address the issues" raised by the team. "We are committed to strengthening the institution," he said. He also publicly thanked self-study director Ken Spackman and all those at UNCW who contributed over the past two years to the self-study process.

Guest Artist Jazz Festival Featuring Brubecks

Chris and Dan Brubeck, sons of renowned jazz pianist Dave Brubeck, will perform during the annual UNCW Guest Artist Jazz Festival scheduled for March 22 and 23 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. The brothers will be featured soloists in a concert with the UNCW Big Band at 8 p.m. Friday and will perform with their Brubeck Brothers Quartet at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Dan and Chris Brubeck

Chris, the third son in the musical Brubeck family, is a composer, lyricist, orchestral arranger, music educator and performer who plays bass, bass trombone, guitar and piano. He enjoys an active and diverse career and is at home playing jazz, rock, folk, funk and classical music. In addition to composing and arranging for the London Symphony Orchestra, Cincinnati Pops Orchestra, the Aspen Wind Quintette and the Manhattan Choral Festival, Chris Brubeck has written three musicals and hundreds of songs. The Boston Pops commissioned him to compose a concerto to open its 2001 season.

Drummer and percussionist Dan Brubeck has toured internationally for more than two decades as the leader of his own group, The Dolphins, as well as a featured soloist with some of the world's top jazz artists. His drumming style, distinctive solos and use of odd time signatures have earned him the respect of critics worldwide. Dan released three CDs with The Dolphins, and was featured on 10 Dave Brubeck albums. He also recorded with Larry Coryell, Livingston Taylor, Michael Franks and Roy Buchanan and toured with The Band, Gerry Mulligan, Jon Hendricks, Paul Butterfield and Warren Bernhardt.

Chris and Dan Brubeck co-lead the Brubeck Brothers Quartet that features Pete Levin on keyboard and Mike DeMicco on guitar.

The annual UNCW Guest Artist Jazz Festival includes high school and college jazz bands from across the state performing in clinics, which will be conducted by the Brubecks. These clinics are scheduled for noon to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Warwick Center Ballroom and are free and open to the public.

General admission for each evening concert is $10, $5 for UNCW faculty and staff. UNCW students with a valid I.D. are admitted free to both concerts. Tickets will be sold at the door starting one hour before show time.

National Public Radio Journalist Susan Stamberg to Lecture

Nationally renowned journalist Susan Stamberg will present "Talk, Talk and more Talk, But What Do We Have to Say?" at 7 p.m. March 19 in Kenan Auditorium. This free event is part of the UNCW Leadership Lecture Series and is co-sponsored by the Women's History Month Committee and WHQR 91.3 FM.

Seahawks Win CAA; Head to California for First-round NCAA Tournament Game

UNCW's CAA champions will meet Southern California at 7:55 p.m. EST March 14 in a first-round game of the NCAA Men's Basketball Tournament at the ARCO Arena in Sacramento, Calif. It will be the first-ever meeting between the Seahawks and the Trojans, who both enter the NCAA tourney with 22-9 records.

The Hawk's Nest will televise the game, which airs on CBS (WILM-TV). There will be free snacks and beverages for students, faculty and staff provided by campus dining. This event is cosponsored by the University Union and the Campus Activities and Involvement Center.

In defeating Virginia Commonwealth University in the Colonial Athletic Association championship game, the Seahawks earned an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament for the second time in three years. Seeded 13th in the tournament's South Region, UNCW had to travel to California as a result of a new policy implemented by the NCAA. The policy, while designed to place teams closer to their homes, required the Seahawk's to travel almost 3,000 miles to compete.

Friday – Corned beef and cabbage, mushroom shepherd's pie, boiled potatoes, green beans, whole kernel corn, Irish soda bread with butter, assorted salads, desserts and beverages.

Tuesday – Teriyaki beef over rice, vegetable stir-fry, steamed squash, carrots, assorted rolls, salads, desserts and beverages.

The cost is $5.25 for these all-you-care-to-eat buffets.

Find a Great Church

Www.findagreatchurch.org is a Web site that links Americans to excellent and innovative churches throughout the country. It's also the electronic home base for UNCW's Pastoral Summit which seeks "to find, create and spread models of church excellence." The Pastoral Summit is sponsored in cooperation with the Institute for Church Life at the University of Notre Dame.

Www.findagreatchurch.org has a user-friendly, state-by-state listing of 600 "excellent" Catholic and Protestant churches throughout America. Included are the churches' names, addresses, phone numbers and Web sites, as well as a summary of their best programs and practices. The Web site is designed for travelers, people new to an area, and all spiritual seekers and is the result of a two-year study of church excellence funded by a Lilly Endowment grant. Paul Wilkes, creative writing professor and Pastoral Summit director, along with a team of researchers found these churches in inner cities, suburbs and rural areas of various sizes and approaches.

The 600 churches listed on the Web are also in two books by Wilkes: Excellent Catholic Parishes: The Guide to Best Places and Practices and Excellent Protestant Congregations: The Guide to Best Places and Practices.

Stepmothers Support

A support group for stepmothers will meet from noon to 1:30 p.m. March 23 in the University Union, Room 210. Direct questions to Linda MacRae at ext. 7435.

Graduate Thesis Defense

Jonathan Harsell, a graduate student in biological sciences, will defend the thesis "Mesoscale Disturbance and Consequences for Benthic Community Structure" at 2 p.m. March 18 in Dobo Hall, Room 202.

Study Participants Can Win $200

Females between the ages of 21 and 30 who drink beer at least once a month may be eligible to participate in a study conducted by the Psychology Department. Participants of this one-hour study will have the chance to win $200. For more information, contact Anna Smith at 763-6641.

CMS Seminar Series

John Sclater, professor of geophysics at Scripps Institution of Oceanography, will present "Andrew Bain Transform, Southwest Indian Ocean: Distributed Extension on the Ocean Floor" at 4 p.m. March 15 in the Center for Marine Science Auditorium as part of the CMS Seminar Series. A reception will follow.

Physics Colloquium

Michael Shaffer and Shane Oakley, philosophy and religion, will present "Superseding Darwin: The Future of Biophysics" at 2 p.m. March 22 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served at 1:45 p.m.

Lincoln Assassination

Historian Bert Wyatt Brown from the University of Richmond will present "Terror in America, 1865: Lincoln's Assassination" at 7:30 p.m. March 21 in the Social and Behavioral Sciences Building, Room 212. This free event is sponsored by the UNCW chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, the History Department and the Honors Scholars Program.

Women in the Media

A panel discussion on how women are portrayed in the media will be held at 6:30 p.m. March 18 in the Warwick Center, Center Stage Café. Panelists include Jennifer Abney and Beth Young from WECT-TV and Judy Kerr from WGNI 102.7. This free program is sponsored by Center for Leadership Education and Service in recognition of Women's History Month. For more information, call Rachel Lipsetts at ext. 3877.

Art Lecture and Reception

Nicholas Kilmer will lecture on the artwork of Frederick Carl Frieseke at 8 p.m. March 21 in Kenan Hall, Room 121. A reception will precede the lecture at 7 p.m. The Department of Art and Theatre is sponsoring this free, public event.

Kilmer, the grandson of Frieseke, served as curator for a major retrospective of his grandfather's work organized by the Telfair Museum in Savannah. The exhibit, consisting of 70 paintings, chronicled Frieseke's artistic career from its early period through impressionism and later realism. This largest, most comprehensive display of Frieske's work traveled to cities nationwide including Memphis and Chicago.

Talking Over Lunch

"Women Talking Over Lunch," a series sponsored by campus diversity, will be held from noon to 1:30 p.m. March 18-22 in honor of Women's History Month.

Respective topics for Monday through Wednesday, which will be held in the University Union, Room 210, are "Abusive Relationships: How to Recognize and Avoid Them," "Self-esteem: How to Develop and Nurture It" and "Sexuality: It's About More Than You May Think." The other two discussions, "Dependency or Independency: Which One Are You Aiming for?" and "Do You Need Marriage and Motherhood to Define Yourself?" will be held in the University Union, Room 201.

Attendees can bring their lunches; beverages will be provided. For more information, call ext. 3832.

Arts in Action

K. Sridhar, master of the Indian sarod, will perform at 8 p.m. March 16 in Kenan Auditorium as part of the Arts in Action Performing Arts Series. For ticket information, call the auditorium box office at ext. 3500.

Sculpting Demonstration

Hanna Jubran will give a stone carving demonstration from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. March 15 at the Art and Theatre Department's scene shop which is located near university police. Following the demonstration, Jubran will deliver a lecture/slide presentation on his work from 1 to 2 p.m. in Kenan Hall, Room 121.

Senior Class Gift

The Class of 2002 is seeking donations for its senior gift. Planned as a memorial to Sept. 11 events, the gift will include a flagpole and statue of a globe at the entrance to Wagoner Hall. It will also fund scholarships for a rising senior, junior and sophomore. Scholarship recipients will be selected based upon an essay contest. Writers would describe how the Sept. 11 events affected them personally as well as their time at UNCW. For more information on contributing to the gift, contact Andrea Dorow or Mary Crookes at ext. 3089.

Inaugural BADD Week

Theta Chi Fraternity, in cooperation with university police, the N.C. Alcohol Law Enforcement Agency, the New Hanover County District Attorney's Office, Coastal Beverage Company and the state chapter of MADD, is sponsoring the inaugural observance of Brothers Against Drunk Driving Week March 19-23.

Activities for the week include:

- Drunk goggles experiment, 10 to 2 p.m. March 18 near the Social and Behavioral Sciences Building.
- "Keys for Life" presentation, 6:30 p.m. March 19 in the Warwick Center Ballroom.
- Candlelight vigil, 7 p.m. March 20 on the Campus Commons.

Theta Chi formed BADD in 1999 after member David Spain was hit by a drunk driver. Spain survived, but his ordeal motivated the fraternity to educate others about the dangers of alcohol abuse. For more information, contact Robbie Pickett at 509-9164 or Eric Gebhardt at 790-9175.

March Events at Randall Library

Exhibit to Highlight Spanish-American War

An exhibit about the Spanish-American War, which will be on display March 28 through June 15 in Special Collections, features items donated by Mary Malone Wootten. It showcases a glimpse into the life of Lt. Bradley Jewett Wootten. From a prominent Wilmington family, Lt. Wootten served in the Philippine Islands and Cuba during the Spanish-American War. In addition to never-published war photos taken by Wootten, the exhibit includes original battle maps and blueprints as well as family photos. The Wootten lineage is intertwined with many other well-known family names including Bellamy, Wright, Empie, Murchison and Sprunt. Local author Anne Russell, who is Wootten's great-niece, refers to him as Uncle Theodore in her play The Porch.

Vanderbilt Professor to Hold Reading, Book Signing

The library is also hosting Sheila McKoy who will read from her book When Whites Riot, Writing Race and Violence in American and South African Cultures at 7 p.m. March 21 in the library's Special Collections. A book signing will follow.

McKoy, a professor of English at Vanderbilt University, has published numerous articles on race relations. Four chapters of her book focus on the Wilmington Race Riot of 1898. This free event is cosponsored by the New Hanover County Public Library.

Military Historian to Lecture

Military historian G. Kurt Piehler will present "Oral History and the Military" at 2 p.m. March 22 in the Randall Library Auditorium. Piehler is assistant professor of history at the University of Tennessee and director of the Center for the Study of War and Society. He wrote Remembering War the American Way and co-edited the Oxford Companion to Military History. This free event is cosponsored by the Cape Fear Museum.

Cleveland Duo and Saxophonist James Umble to Perform

The Cleveland Duo along with saxophonist James Umble are featured performers for the 2002 UNCW Artist Recital Series scheduled for 8 p.m. March 25 in Kenan Auditorium.

Violinist Stephen Warner and pianist Carolyn Gadiel Warner, who perform together as the Cleveland Duo, are members of the Cleveland Orchestra. They have performed over National Public Radio broadcasts in numerous cities nationwide. As artists-in-residence, the two have conducted master classes, workshops and demonstrations at several North American universities including the Mannes College of Music in New York City and the University of Toronto.

James Umble is associate professor of music at Youngstown State University's Dana School. He holds a bachelor's degree in performance from Susquehanna University and a master's degree from Bowling Green State University. He earned a Doctor of Musical Arts degree from the University of Michigan as well as first prize in saxophone performance from the National Conservatory of Music, Bourdeaux, France. Umble studied in France with famed saxophonist Jean-Marie Londeix and authored Jean-Marie Londeix, Master of the Modern Saxophone published in June 2000 by Roncorp Music Publishers.

This trio of performers, who are considered pioneers in chamber music, will also conduct the lecture/demonstration "Unexpected Instrumentation" at 2 p.m. March 26 in Kenan Auditorium.

Tickets to the Monday evening performance are $10, $5 for UNCW faculty and staff. UNCW students admitted free with valid ID. The Tuesday lecture/demonstration is free and open to the public.

Psychology Professors to Study Alcohol/Aggression Link

After a few drinks, some young men tend to think sexual aggression toward women is okay, and a team of UNCW researchers wants to know why.

Armed with a $600,000 five-year grant from the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, Nora E. Noel, James D. Johnson and Lee A. Jackson Jr. are expanding earlier research studying the effects of alcohol consumption on judgments of acquaintance rape.

"We found that young men who were intoxicated were more accepting of sexual coercion than men who were sober and were more likely to believe that if sexual aggression took place the woman was partly responsible," Noel said of the 2000 study.

"The ultimate goals of our current research program (titled "An Alcohol Myopia Explanation of Sexual Aggression") are to develop a comprehensive, theoretically based model of alcohol's involvement in sexual aggression and to use that research-based knowledge to develop effective mechanisms for reducing prevalence of sexual aggression among young adults," she said.

To do that they will bring young males into the lab to view videotaped interactions between a couple on a first date and then make judgments regarding the acceptability of sexual aggression by the man in the scenario. Before viewing the videotape, participants will consume one of four alcohol doses (none, placebo, low or moderate).

"We expect that the stimuli in the videotapes will interact with the participants' alcohol doses to produce a greater or lesser likelihood of acceptance of sexual aggression," Noel said. "Our goal is to discover ways to reduce the likelihood of sexual aggression in a dating situation, even when alcohol is involved."

Noel cited surveys that have shown up to 30 percent of women on college campuses have encountered incidents of sexual coercion, and one that reported about 15 percent of undergraduate males say they threatened to or actually used a weapon to force sexual intercourse. Another study showed that alcohol consumption by one or both parties appears to play an important role in these incidents.

Stephen A. Maisto of Syracuse University is a consultant in the current study.

Philosophy and Religion Professor Explores Logic in New Book

The idea that logic and critical thinking can be useful in dealing with controversial issues like doctor-assisted suicide and the death penalty is explored in a new book by Maurice Stanley, philosophy and religion.

"Logic and Controversy applies logic to whole essays and speeches from magazines, newspapers and the Internet by such notable individuals as Attorney General John Ashcroft, Colin Powell, even Adolph Hitler. It illustrates how to use logic to show whether an argument, by whomever, is any good," explained Stanley.

After teaching his first logic class, Stanley resolved the problem of how to make logic more interesting to students and began to collect newspaper editorials and magazine articles on a variety of controversial topics. The collection of materials inspired him to write a textbook that includes analysis of argumentative material. "After a careful reading of the essay, I state the main conclusion, the main point of the essay, and then I find the reasons given to back it up. Then, I look for fallacies and arguments that can be expressed as syllogisms or deductive proofs. During this process, hidden premises and invalid arguments become clear," remarked Stanley.

UNCW students Melanie Moore, Cate Powell and Jeff Bradley assisted Stanley in analyzing research information on which Logic and Controversy is based. Bradley, who is a junior, also wrote an article that is featured in the book.

Film Screening

The film Contender will be shown at 6 p.m. March 20 in the Social and Behavioral Sciences Building. A discussion on the movie's leadership aspects follows.

Business Affairs Personnel Change

Effective March 1, Kay Ward was promoted to associate vice chancellor for business affairs. In announcing the promotion, Tim Jordan, vice chancellor for business affairs, said Ward had provided "excellent leadership and direction" to the division's finance function since her appointment as assistant vice chancellor-finance in March 2001.

"Her sound financial counsel and advice to all divisions of the university has significantly contributed to the financial stability and fiscal integrity of the university," said Jordan, adding he hoped the university community would join him in congratulating Ward.

Federal Work-study

The Office of Financial Aid and Veterans' Services sent notifications of federal work-study allocations to departments Feb. 28. Departments should follow HR 1.60 to advertise positions on the financial aid Web site.

UNCW's allocation for 2002-03 is a 49 percent reduction in federal funding over the current year. Students currently employed in the work-study program have priority for 2002-03 funding provided they applied as soon as possible after the Jan. 1 deadline.

As of Feb. 28, 732 currently enrolled students have applied for financial aid, while 1,509 prospective freshmen and transfer students have applied. Departments should encourage their work-study students to apply for financial aid as soon as possible for renewal consideration.

Electronic Schedules

Beginning March 7, all course schedule information will be available only through the Web site www.uncwil.edu/scheduleinfo. For faculty, advisers and staff, a printable, dated version of the schedule will be posted at https://tswww.mis.uncwil.edu/afhomepg.htm.

Travel Open House

An open house to meet with and learn about the services of the five travel agents awarded contracts as preferred vendors will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. March 20 in the Warwick Center Ballroom.

Scholarship Workshop

University advancement and financial aid will present a workshop for faculty and staff who determine departmental scholarship recipients at 2 p.m. March 18 in Alderman Hall, Room 215. Topics include federal coordination requirements, university policy and donor agreements. To reserve space, e-mail Kay Pugh, financial aid, at pughk@uncw.edu.

Tax Form Help

Beta Alpha Psi, the accounting honors fraternity, will provide free help to students, faculty and staff in completing 1040 EZ and 1040A tax forms. Student volunteers will be available from 2 to 4 p.m. Tuesdays, 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Wednesdays and 9 to 11 a.m. Thursdays through April 15 in Cameron Hall, Room 230. For more information, contact Ann Joyner at ext. 3509.

Shared Leave

Neilia Abban, budget, and Joseph Jernigan, physical plant, need shared leave donations. Send vacation leave donations to Pam Christie in human resources.

Music on the Commons

Stefan Hajek and Annette Warner will perform from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. March 21 on the Campus Commons.

Talent Show

The inaugural Student-Athlete Talent Show will be held at 7 p.m. March 26 in Kenan Auditorium. Tickets are $5 and are on sale at the athletics office. Proceeds will benefit the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee initiative to purchase display cases to highlight student-athletes' accomplishments.

UNCW

CAMPUS COMMUNIQUE

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

University Relations Vol. XXXI, No. 33 March 21, 2002 Phillip Brown, editor

Former City Manager Named Interim Advancement Vice Chancellor

Former Wilmington City Manager Mary Gornto was named interim vice chancellor for university advancement effective April 1. The appointment was approved by the executive committee of the UNCW Board of Trustees.

Gornto's interim appointment will be forwarded to the UNC Board of Governors for consideration for full appointment at its May meeting. She fills the position vacated by Patton McDowell who resigned to become vice president for institutional advancement at Queens College in Charlotte.

Gornto is a Wilmington native who served as Wilmington city manager from July 1993 to December 2001. She had previously served as deputy county manager for New Hanover County and as executive director of the Downtown Area Revitalization Effort Inc. (DARE).

She received a bachelor's degree in American Studies from Sweet Briar College in 1969 and completed the executive development program and the School of Government (formerly the Institute of Government) at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She also completed the senior executive institute at the Center for Public Policy at the University of Virginia. She is currently a member of the board of directors of the North Carolina City and County Management Association.

Active in community affairs, Gornto served on the board of directors of the J.W. Murchison Company Inc. In 1998, she was named to the UNCW Cameron School of Business Executive Board and she is currently serving as president of the board of visitors of the UNC Lineberger Comprehensive Cancer Center. She has been on the Lineberger Center Board of Visitors since 1994.

Chancellor James R. Leutze noted that Gornto brings vast experience as a manager in the public service and non-profit sector, and she is well known across the state in municipal affairs.

"While she has not had direct experience in a paid role as a fund-raiser," Leutze said, "she has been very successful in leading fund-raising efforts as a volunteer. Her professional experience and network of friends in the community and across the state equip her well for this critical position at UNCW."

Gornto's fund-raising activities include her current work with the Lineberger Center; the board of visitors is a development board. For St. John's Museum of Art in 1991-92, she co-chaired an endowment fund and capital campaign that had a $3 million goal. For her alma mater Sweet Briar College, she has served as alumnae class president (1981-85) and chaired the 20th reunion fund in 1988-89. She has also served as president of the Junior League of Wilmington (1980-81) and currently is president of the Oakdale Cemetery Board of Directors. She is active in St. James Episcopal Church, having served on the vestry from 1984-87 and as senior warden in 1987.

As interim vice chancellor for advancement, Gornto will supervise the university's fund-raising efforts and alumni relations and work with the UNCW Board of Visitors and the UNCW Foundation.

'From Stage to Screen' Series Set for April

The English Department will present "From Stage to Screen," a series of films based upon stage plays, on three consecutive Thursdays in April. Each screening, which will include commentaries by UNCW faculty, will begin at 7 p.m. in Morton Hall's Bryan Auditorium, followed by a reception. The series schedule is listed below.

April 11 – His Girl Friday

This 1940 screwball comedy directed by Howard Hawks stars Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell. Based on the 1928 play The Front Page by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, it is considered to have some of the snappiest dialogue in cinema. Todd Berliner will present.

April 18 – Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf

Starring Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, this 1966 film was based on Edward Albee's 1962 play. The film, directed by Mike Nichols, was nominated for 13 Oscars, winning five. Paula Kamenish will present.

April 25 – Henry V

Kenneth Branaugh's 1989 film was based on William Shakespeare's play about the English king's bloody conquest of France. The film is Branaugh's first and, many believe, best Shakespeare adaptation. Lee Schweninger will present.

Funding for this film series, which is free and open to the public, was provided by Charles Green III. For more information, call ext. 3320.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Staff Advisory Meeting

The Chancellor's Staff Advisory Committee will meet at noon March 25 in Wagoner Hall, Madeline Suite. Members of the committee are: Annie Aldrich, telecommunications; Lisa Allred, payroll; Carolyn Andrews, Randall Library, Margaret Bailey, public service and extended education; Glenda Bowen, Watson School of Education; Phillip Brown, university relations; Susie Goodrum, institutional research; Faith Joyce, physical plant; Lori Leitch, biological sciences; Mike Lloyd, printing services; Steve Mastro, CMS; Charles Mills, physical plant; Annette Richards, nursing; and Karen Thompson, career services.

Staff are encouraged to share comments and suggestions with committee members.

Movie Makers Lecture

Wilmington filmmakers W.C. Huse and Carnelia Rogan will discuss their work experiences at 2 p.m. March 22 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium, as part of the Movie Makers Lecture Series sponsored by the Film Studies Program.

Huse has worked as key or camera grip on such films as A Passage to India, Return of the Jedi and For Your Eyes Only. Rogan served as script supervisor on Diabolique, Devil's Advocate and The Long Kiss Goodnight. Both will show excerpts from their films.

Easter Buffet at Wagoner

Campus dining will host an Easter buffet from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. March 31 at Wagoner Hall. The menu will include made-to-order omelets, sausage links, carved ham with pineapple glaze, Southwestern jerk chicken breast with black bean salsa, baked manicotti, mashed potatoes with sour cream and chives, broccoli spears with lemon, whole kernel corn, green bean casserole, assorted rolls, desserts and beverages. The cost is $6.80 for adults, $3.40 for children age three to 12 and free for children under three.

Hemingway Lecture

James Nagel, Eidson Professor of American Literature at the University of Georgia, will present "Hemingway: The True Story Behind A Farewell to Arms" at 3:30 p.m. March 25 in King Hall Auditorium.

Nagel is the author of several books including The Contemporary Short-Story Cycle: The Ethnic Resonance Genre, Stephen Crane and Literary Impressionism, Ernest Hemingway: The Oak Park Legacy, Ernest Hemingway: The Writer in Context, and Hemingway in Love and War. He will discuss how Hemingway's family influenced his involvement in World War I, when he served as an ambulance driver and in the canteen corps, as well as his romance with a hospital nurse and how these events were used in A Farewell to Arms. Film clips will also be shown.

Hemingway in Love and War was selected by The New York Times as one of the outstanding books of 1989. It was the basis for the movie Love and War starring Sandra Bullock and Chris O'Donnell.

The UNCW English Department is sponsoring this free, public talk as part of the Buckner Lecture Series funded by Charles F. Green III.

Note of Appreciation

Margaret Bailey, public service and continuing studies, would like to "thank everyone for the many cards, flowers and expressions of sympathy in the loss of my dad, Roy Thomas Boykin. Your thoughtful acts of friendship and kindness have helped to lessen my sorrow at this time."

Student Reading

"The Aftermath: Growing Up with Hope," a reading of original poetry and prose by Courtney Cawley, a junior biological sciences major, will be held at 7 p.m. March 25 at the Warwick Center, Center Stage Café. This free event is sponsored by campus diversity in support of PRIDE and Project B-GLAD.

Center Stage Buffets

The Center Stage lunch buffets, served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Warwick Center, Seahawk Grille, will feature the following menus:

Friday – Chicken Francesca, black bean cakes with salsa, parsley boiled potatoes, butter beans, whole kernel corn, assorted salads, rolls, desserts and beverages.

Tuesday – Sliced ham with pineapple glaze, eggplant Parmesan, scalloped potatoes, green bean casserole, steamed yellow squash, assorted salads, rolls, desserts and beverages.

The cost is $5.25 for these all-you-care-to-eat buffets. Due to Easter break, there will not be a buffet lunch March 29.

Let's Talk! UNCW & You

Todd Berliner, English, is the featured guest on the "Celebrate Wilmington" segment of Let's Talk! UNCW & You. Berliner will take over as director of the Film Studies Program effective Aug. 1. The UNCW-TV program, hosted by Betty Ann Sanders, airs at 7 p.m. March 22, 25, 29 and April 1 on the Learning Network, Time Warner Cable Channel 5.

Grand Slam Jam

The UNCW Alumni Association and the Cape Fear Alumni Chapter will host the fourth annual Grand Slam Jam March 27 at Brooks Field.

The men's baseball team plays Duke University at 7 p.m. A pregame cookout begins at 6 p.m. in the left field pavilion area. The menu includes hamburgers, hot dogs and pasta salad. Living Southern Harry Watson, co-editor of Southern Cultures magazine, will present "The 20 Most Influential Southerners of the 20th Century" at 5:30 p.m. March 22 at the New Hanover County Library's Northeast branch. Due to limited seating, tickets are required for this free lecture. They are available at the Cape Fear Museum.

Leadership Grove

A ceremony honoring leaders for whom trees have been purchased for inclusion in the Leadership Grove will be held at 3 p.m. April 24 on the University Commons.

Individuals interested in honoring a student, faculty or staff member or someone from the community for their leadership on behalf of the university have until April 12 to contribute; donations for the grove are $200. Send contributions to advancement services, Alderman Hall, Room 104. Indicate the donation is for the Leadership Grove. A short biography about the honoree will be needed for the rededication ceremony.

For more information, contact Shelly Hoover at ext. 3877.

CTE Lunch Discussions

The Center for Teaching Excellence will offer the following lunchtime discussions:

March 27 - Tips for Teaching Large Classes.

April 4 - Writing to Learn: Using Writing Assignments in "Writing Intensive" Courses.

April 9 - Thrills and Chills: Do's and Don'ts at the End of the Semester.

Discussions on Tuesday or Thursday start at 12:30 p.m., Wednesday talks begin at noon. All discussions will be held in Friday Hall, Room 103. For more information, contact CTE at ext. 3034 or e-mail cte@uncwil.edu.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Moorad Alexanian, physics and physical oceanography, had a letter dealing with the nature of human consciousness published in the March 2002 issue of Perspectives on Science and Christian Faith, which is the journal of the American Scientific Affiliation.

Tom Lamont, alumni relations, along with 12 UNCW Student Ambassadors, attended the CASE District III ASAP conference in Knoxville, Tenn. The ambassadors, Katie Berry, Katie Bruchanski, Jeremy Godwin, P. J. Lucas, Kathy Morrow, Kalen Olson, Katie Senior, Mike Simone, Christie Stokley, Holly Sullivan, Amy Thompson and Stacey Weaver, participated in the conference's traditional roll call and lip-sync competition and presented a professional break-out session on establishing a strong executive board for an organization. They also participated in leadership training opportunities and met student leaders from universities throughout the southeast.

David White, chemistry, had the article "Synthesis of the Ru^{IV} Amido Complex $TpRu(CO)(PPh_3)(NHPh)][OTf]_2$ (Tp = hydridotris(pyrazolyl)borate; OTf = trifluoromethanesulfonate) and Deprotonation to Form an Octahedral and d^4 Imido Complex: Computational Study of Ru^{IV}-imido Bonding," which was co-authored by undergraduate student Aaron Gillespie and North Carolina State University collaborators K. N. Jayaprakash and T. Brent Gunnoe, published in Chemical Communications. White's paper "De Novo Structural Prediction: Computational Design of Organometallic Complexes for the Stereoselective Binding of Prochiral Olefins," also co-authored by Gillespie, was published in Internet Electronic Journal of Molecular Design. White was also elected to the editorial advisory board of the journal.

Stephen Skrabal, chemistry, had the paper "Distributions of Dissolved Titanium in Porewaters of Estuarine and Coastal Marine Sediments" published in Marine Chemistry, vol. 77. It was co-authored by former chemistry graduate student Christopher M. Terry.

CAMPUS COMMUNIQUE

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

University Relations Vol. XXXI, No. 34 March 28, 2002 Phillip Brown, editor

Tuition Hikes Not Enough to Fund University System Growth

'Even with this extra tuition revenue, UNCW will still have about $4.5 million less to operate on during the next fiscal year,' – Provost John C. Cavanaugh University-wide tuition increases approved by the UNC Board of Governors at their March meeting would generate half of the revenue needed to fund anticipated enrollment growth at the state's 16 campuses including UNC Wilmington, according to UNC system officials.

System-wide tuition increases of 8 percent for in-state students and 12 percent for out-of-state students will generate $40 million, according to the UNC Office of the President. Of this amount, $7 million would fund half of the system's Need-based Aid Program (financial aid) and $33 million would support half of enrollment increases for projected new students in the system. In order to fully fund both programs, the state legislature would need to appropriate an additional $40 million, said UNC officials.

The General Assembly reconvenes May 28 for its short session to determine tuition and funding issues. Based upon current projections, UNCW could receive $2.7 million for enrollment growth and $700,000 for need-based aid.

According to Mark Lanier, special assistant to the chancellor, the prospect of the legislative funding is uncertain, yet critical, to UNCW.

"Legislative leaders anticipate a revenue shortfall in excess of $1 billion for the 2002-03 fiscal year," said Lanier. In light of the budget shortfall, the Governor's Office is looking at the possibility of slashing state agency funding by up to 11 percent. In a recent letter to chancellors, Gov. Easley said, "I understand fully that cuts of that magnitude in the university system would hurt the quality of education, and I will not recommend such actions."

Currently, the General Assembly considers funding for enrollment growth at the 16 campuses in relation to other expansion budget priorities. However, this year, legislative leaders are expressing support for adding UNC system enrollment growth funding in the state's continuation budget, starting in 2003-04, said Lanier.

If it happens, it would be "great news," said Lanier. "Enrollment growth in the community college and K-12 systems are already part of the continuation budget. Adding the UNC system would enable us to avoid competing with other funding requests."

During this fiscal year, UNCW's operating and capital budgets were reduced by approximately $7.5 million, as detailed below.

The governor's continuation budget did not include $1,698,848 for inflationary increases in items such as utilities and insurance. The General Assembly permanently reduced the university's annual budget by $1,269,598. In November and again in February, the university was required to revert approximately $1.6 million and $767,000, respectively. Lastly, $2.2 million of capital funding for repairs and renovations was withheld by the state.

Although students will see higher tuitions at all institutions, at UNCW that figure will go up $200 in a campus-initiated increase approved by the BOG. UNCW's Board of Trustees had requested a $400 increase.

Using current projections, the extra $200 will generate approximately $1.8 million in revenue, but in reality only helps the university recoup a portion of its funding cut during the past 13 months, said John C. Cavanaugh, provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs. He said this added revenue is restricted to instructional/academic purposes and financial aid.

"Even with this extra tuition revenue, UNCW will still have about $4.5 million less to operate on during the next fiscal year," said Cavanaugh. "Cost-saving measures implemented last year, such as travel restrictions and reduced funding for student support services, will continue. Also, we will not be able to address as many critical equipment needs in teaching laboratories, library purchases will not keep up with demand, and critical staffing needs in certain areas will be addressed more slowly."

"At UNCW, we have a proven track record of doing more with less, which we might have to continue to do through next year," Lanier said.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MPA Information

The Department of Political Science will host an information session from 6:30 to 8 p.m. April 8 in Lakeside Hall, Room 268, for individuals interested in pursuing the Master of Public Administration.

The Master of Public Administration is an interdisciplinary, professional degree that provides a broad education for individuals who plan to work or are currently employed in governmental or nonprofit sectors. The evening program offers concentrations in coastal and nonprofit management. All undergraduate majors are eligible to enroll. Entrance requirements include satisfactory performance on the Graduate Record Examination and a strong undergraduate grade point average. For more information, contact Tom Barth at ext. 3385 or e-mail bartht.

Discount Movie Tickets

Carmike Theatre increased its discounted movie ticket price from $4.50 to $5 each. Tickets are sold at the University Union Information Center.

Unsolicited E-mail

Unsolicited, commercial e-mail, which can contain objectionable material, is becoming increasingly common. The ITSD Computing Services and Client Services Departments can attempt to identify common sources that send such materials. Employees can forward a copy of unsolicited e-mail with objectionable content to mailabuse@uncwil.edu; include all the original mail headers. Instructions on including these headers are available from the Web site www.uncwil.edu/itsd/help. Enter the keyword "header" in the search box.

Study Participants Needed

Females between the ages of 21 and 30 who drink beer at least once a month may be eligible for a study conducted by the Psychology Department. Participants of this one-hour study will have the chance to win $200. For more information, contact Anna Smith at 763-6641.

WHQR to Celebrate Release of CD Drumscussion

WHQR Public Radio will host a release party for the CD Drumscussion from 7 to 10 p.m. April 5 at its gallery located on North Front Street. The event features live music and a cash bar.

MARTY MOST, Jazz Poet, presents:
DRUMSCUSSION
New Orleans
Brazil
ALFRED "UGANDA" ROBERTS
JORGE ALABE
CHARLES "HONEYBOY" OTIS

The recording, produced by Maurice Martinez, specialty studies, features interviews with Brazilian and New Orleans percussionists along with poetry. Artists included in these "drum-discussions" are Jorge Alabe from Rio de Janiero and Charles "Honeyboy" Otis from New Orleans, specialists associated with drumming styles of their respective regions. Using the name Marty Most, Martinez wrote and performed the CD's accompanying poetry. Martinez first used the pseudonym Marty Most while a "beat poet" in New Orleans during the Civil Rights Movement. He is working to revive poetry as performance art through the annual Poetry Slams sponsored by the Watson School of Education.

Release party tickets are $15. This includes a copy of Drumscussion. Proceeds benefit WHQR public radio. For more information contact Martinez at ext. 4279. For tickets, call 343-1640.

Student Recreation Center Easter Schedule

The Student Recreation Center will be closed March 29 and 30 and open from 5 to 10 p.m. March 31.

City Council to Hold "Town Meeting"

The City of Wilmington will hold its second of five community "Town Meetings" from 6:30 to 8 p.m. March 28 at College Park Elementary School, 5001 Oriole Drive. The mayor and city council are soliciting citizens' input on community needs as they develop the city's 2002-03 budget. For more information, call 341-7800.

Greek Week Celebration

Each year, the 24 fraternities and sororities at UNCW host Greek Week to celebrate their organizations. Events for each day during the week, scheduled for April 8-13, are organized to represent the five main values of fraternity/sorority membership: Greek spirit and pride, philanthropic projects, scholarship, community service and social opportunities. For more information, contact Stacy Cross, Greek affairs coordinator, at ext 3319.

Easter Buffet

Campus dining will host an Easter buffet from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. March 31 at Wagoner Hall. The menu will include made-to-order omelets, sausage links, carved ham with pineapple glaze, Southwestern jerk chicken breast with black bean salsa, baked manicotti, mashed potatoes with sour cream and chives, broccoli spears with lemon, whole kernel corn, green bean casserole, assorted rolls, desserts and beverages. The cost is $6.80 for adults, $3.40 for children age three to 12 and free for children under three.

Free Baby-sitting

The UNCW Panhellenic Council will sponsor free baby-sitting for faculty and staff from 5 to 10 p.m. April 5 in the University Union, Room 100.

Sorority members will provide games and activities for children during the evening. Interested employees should contact Melanie Kessler at ext. 4614 or e-mail mlk0804 by April 4.

Art Exhibit

"Very Large Spirit," an exhibit of oil paintings by Florida artist Alison Spiesman, is on display through April 22 at the Warwick Center Gallery.

Panel Discussion

The discussion "The Primate-Human Connection: Science, Society, Politics" will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 9 in Randall Library Auditorium.

Panelists are Midori Albert, anthropology; Diana Ashe and Donald Bushman, English; Katherine Bruce, psychology; William McCarthy, history; Diane Melroy and David Webster, biological sciences; and Patricia Turrisi, philosophy and religion.

Event sponsors are the science, humanities and society minor, College of Arts and Sciences, Center for Teaching Excellence and the Honors Scholars Program.

Stage to Screen Series

The UNCW English Department will present "From Stage to Screen," a series of films based upon stage plays, on three consecutive Thursdays in April. Each screening, which will include commentaries by UNCW faculty, will begin at 7 p.m. in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium, followed by a reception. The series schedule is listed below.

- April 11 – His Girl Friday

This 1940 screwball comedy directed by Howard Hawks stars Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell. Based on the 1928 play The Front Page by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, it is considered to have some of the snappiest dialogue in cinema. Todd Berliner will present.

- April 18 – Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf

Starring Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, this 1966 film was based on Edward Albee's 1962 play. The film, directed by Mike Nichols, was nominated for 13 Oscars, winning five. Paula Kamenish will present.

- April 25 – Henry V

Kenneth Branaugh's 1989 film was based on William Shakespeare's play about the English king's bloody conquest of France. The film is Branaugh's first and, many believe, best Shakespeare adaptation. Lee Schweninger will present.

Public Service and Continuing Studies Summer Institute

The Division for Public Service and Continuing Studies is offering its first Summer Institute for Lifelong Learners. It features five weeks of academically based, non-credit adult sessions and offers Continuing Education Units (CEUs) as professional development credit.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

David La Vere, history, presented the paper "Indian History without the Indians: A Call for an Ethnohistorical Approach" at the Texas State Historical Association in Corpus Christi.

Michelle Howard-Vital, public service and continuing studies, and Geri Vital, communication studies, co-authored the article "Searching for 'Truth' in an IT World" published in the spring issue of Connexions.

David Berman, computer science, presented "Ranking Whist Players" at the 33rd Southeastern International Conference on Combinatorics, Graph Theory and Computing held at Florida Atlantic University. He reported on joint work with Sandra McLaurin and Douglas Smith, mathematics and statistics.

Richard Veit, English, presented greetings from the faculty of the 16 UNC campuses at the installation of Chancellor William Muse at East Carolina University. Veit is chair of the UNC Faculty Assembly.

Mike Perko, HPER, was one of 40 health education leaders invited to the fifth annual Health Education Advocacy Summit in Washington, D.C. Participants lobbied Congressional leaders and federal agencies for increased funding for comprehensive school health education; school physical education, nutrition and obesity programs; the Center for Disease Control's chronic disease prevention program; and public health info-structure and bioterrorism preparedness training.

Thom Rakes, career services, was one of four North Carolinians designated as a master career counselor by the National Career Development Association.

Patricia Lerch, anthropology, had the chapter "Celebration and Dress: Sources of Native American Identity" published in the book Anthropologists and Indians in the New South edited by R. A. Bonney and J. Anthony Paredes, University of Alabama Press.

Cathy Barlow, education, received $36,000 from the UNC Office of the President for the statewide teacher licensure program NC TEACH.

Alessandro Bocconcelli, CMS, received $11,028 in supplemental funding from Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution for a marine mammal monitoring program in the Bahamas.

Jeffrey Wright, chemistry and CMS, and David Padgett, biological sciences, received $10,000 from North Carolina Sea Grant for the project "The Genetics of Polyketides Production in Marine Fungi from the Salt Marshes of North Carolina." Wright also received $103,580 from the N.C. Department of Health and Human Services for the project "Survey of Raw and Surface Drinking Water Supply for Blue Green Algae and Their Cyanotoxins in North Carolina."

Steven Miller, CMS, received $6,000 in funding from the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration for the project "Techniques Development for the Re-establishment of Populations of the Long-spined Sea Urchin Diadema antillarum on Two Small Patch Reefs in the Upper Florida Keys."

Robert Blundo, social work, had the chapter "Mental Health: A Shift in Perspective" published in the book Resiliency: An Integrated Approach to Practice, Policy and Research.

Milan Dluhy, political science, had the article "Creating a Positive Future for a Minority Community: Transportation and Urban Renewal Politics in Miami" published in the Journal of Urban Affairs, vol. 24, no. 1. His co-authors were Keith Revell and Sideney Wong,

Larry Usilton, history, led 16 students and alumni on a "medieval sampler" during spring break. This seventh annual tour of the British Isles included a visit to monastic ruins, ancient Roman fortifications, castles, cathedrals and other historic sites in England, Wales and Ireland.

Steven Skrabel, Robert Kieber and William Cooper, chemistry, received $55,000 in supplemental federal funding from the Strategic Environmental Research and Development Program for the project "Speciation, Fluxes and Cycling of Dissolved Copper and Zinc in Estuaries: The Roles of Sediment-Water Exchange and Photochemical Effects."

Applications Accepted for Honors Scholars Position

The Honors Scholars Program is seeking applications for the position of associate director to begin July 2002. Administrative duties of the associate director include: reviewing applicants for the honors program; curriculum development, including developing an honors course schedule each semester; representing the program to university and non-university audiences; working with departments and individual faculty in the design of honors courses; development of and participation in co-curricular enrichment activities; advising the Honors Scholars Association; editing the honors newsletter; and special projects.

The associate director is also a general college academic advisor to honors students and is expected to teach one course in his or her home department each semester as well as the one-hour honors enrichment seminar once a year and the freshman honors seminar as needed. This is a 12-month position.

Requirements for the position include an earned doctorate and the rank of associate professor or above with tenure. Candidates must possess strong organizational, interpersonal and communication skills. Experience in honors teaching and honors project supervision is a plus. Applicants must submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae and a statement describing his or her view of the role of honors at UNCW to Kate Bruce, honors program director, Randall Library, by April 1.

Art Exhibitors Sought

UNCW is seeking visual artists to exhibit their works during the 2002-03 academic year in the University Union and Warwick Center. Artwork of any medium is eligible. Works must be framed, matted and display-ready.

Interested artists should submit no more than 10 35mm slides that are representative of their work along with a current resume and artist statement for consideration by the selection committee. The deadline for submissions is 5 p.m. April 12.

Mail or deliver submission materials to Campus Activities and Involvement Center, University Union, Room 209. Artists should include their name on the slides and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for their return.

Tax Form Help

Beta Alpha Psi, the accounting honors fraternity, will provide free help to students, faculty and staff in completing 1040 EZ and 1040A tax forms. Student volunteers will be available from 2 to 4 p.m. Tuesdays, 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Wednesdays and 9 to 11 a.m. Thursdays through April 15 in Cameron Hall, Room 230. For more information, contact Ann Joyner at ext. 3509.

Recycling Reminders

UNCW's Recycling Program will collect the following: aluminum soft drink cans; plastic containers marked one or two; clear, green or brown glass; business paper (letterhead, typing, bond colored tablet or notebook paper, business forms and white and green bar computer paper); newspaper; and corrugated cardboard. The program cannot accept magazines, glossy paper, books with any glossy pages, carbon paper or poster board.

Extraneous items, such as plastic food containers, candy wrappers, plastic bags and food, contaminate the recycled material. Contaminated bags of recyclable materials are discarded. Direct questions to ext. 3621.

Senior Class Gift

The Class of 2002 is seeking donations for its senior gift. Planned as a memorial to Sept. 11 events, the gift will include a flagpole and statue of a globe at the entrance to Wagoner Hall. It will also fund scholarships for a rising senior, junior and sophomore. Scholarship recipients will be selected based upon an essay contest. Writers would describe how the Sept. 11 events affected them personally as well as their time at UNCW.

For more information on contributing to the gift, contact Andrea Dorow or Mary Crookes at ext. 3089.

Exhibit Highlights Spanish-American War

An exhibit about the Spanish-American War, which will be on display through June 15 in the library's Special Collections, features items donated by Mary Malone Wootten. It showcases a glimpse into the life of Lt. Bradley Jewett Wootten.

From a prominent Wilmington family, Lt. Wootten served in the Philippine Islands and Cuba during the Spanish-American War. In addition to never-published war photos taken by Wootten, the exhibit includes original battle maps and blueprints as well as family photos.

The Wootten lineage is intertwined with many other well-known local family names including Bellamy, Wright, Empie, Murchison and Sprunt. Local author Anne Russell, who is Wootten's great-niece, refers to him as Uncle Theodore in her play The Porch.

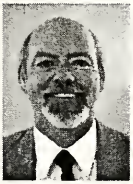
McNamee Named BOG Award Recipient

Sociology professor Stephen McNamee was named a recipient of the Award for Excellence in Teaching by the UNC Board of Governors. He will receive the honor during a recognition luncheon held in conjunction with the board's May meeting.



McNamee

The teaching award is bestowed to a recipient at each of the system's 16 constituent institutions. Honorees, who represent an array of academic disciplines, were nominated by special committees on their home campuses and selected by the Board of Governors Committee on Teaching Awards, chaired by Ruth Dial Woods of Pembroke. UNC President Molly Corbett Broad and Board of Governors chairman Benjamin S. Ruffin of Winston-Salem will present the awards which consist of a commemorative bronze medallion and a $7,500 cash prize.

McNamee, who joined UNCW in 1984, was recognized as a highly effective classroom teacher, with his peer and student evaluations often the highest in the department. He received a Distinguished Teaching Professorship in 2000 and was recognized by the Center for Teaching Excellence for his significant contributions to UNCW's teaching environment.

According to UNC officials, McNamee is "known for getting the best out of his students, working with them one-on-one and providing written guides for succeeding in college. He has directed more than 60 individual study projects and twice co-authored journal articles with undergraduate students."

In 2003, McNamee will direct the Honors Semester Abroad Program in Swansea, Wales.

Established by the Board of Governors in April 1994 to underscore the importance of teaching and to reward good teaching across the UNC system, the awards are given annually to a tenured faculty member from each UNC campus. Winners must have taught at their present institutions at least seven years.

University Theatre Concluding Season with Uncle Vanya

Core Ensemble to Perform Tres Vidas

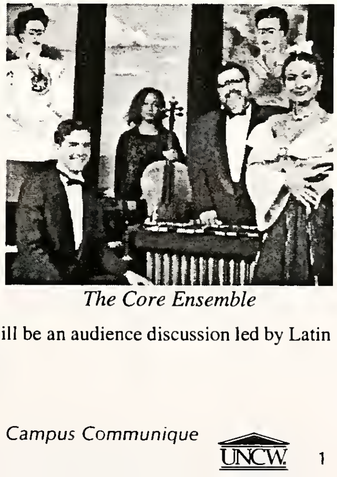
The chamber music theater piece Tres Vidas will be performed by the internationally recognized Core Ensemble at 8 p.m. April 14 in Kenan Auditorium.

Tres Vidas, written by Chilean author and scholar Marjorie Agosin, deals with the lives of three Spanish American women: Mexican painter Frida Kahlo, Argentine poet Alfonsina Storni and Salvadoran peasant-activist Rufina Amaya. Georgina Corbo will portray the three protagonists while a trio of musicians perform a musical score that includes arrangements of traditional Latin American folk songs and tangos as well as new compositions. The text of the play is in English, but the songs are in Spanish.

The Core Ensemble, established in 1993, has gained international recognition. Their performance is possible through a grant from the North Carolina Humanities Council and contributions from the College of Arts and Sciences, Office of Campus Diversity, Departments of Art and Theatre, Creative Writing, English, Foreign Languages and Literatures, History, Music and Philosophy and Religion.



The Core Ensemble

Following this free performance, there will be an audience discussion led by Latin American literature and culture specialists.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Feast of Pirates Display

The exhibit "Pirates, Patriots and Progress," which spotlights Wilmington's pre-Depression festival Feast of Pirates, will open April 6 at 5051 New Centre Drive.

Designed and installed by students in UNCW's History Department, the display features rare artifacts, photographs and documents from local institutions as well as private collections.

Feast of Pirates was a three-day festival held in Wilmington every August from 1927 to 1929. UNCW graduate history students Jeanne Barnes, Dianne Eelman, Michael Jarrell and Clare Kersey created "Pirates, Patriots and Progress" under the supervision of Virginia Stewart, associate professor and director of the Public History Program.

As part of the exhibit, the Music Department recorded the festival's official song "Feast of Pirates." This free, public display is open from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays during April.

Recital Series

Duo Sureno, featuring soprano Nancy King and guitarist Robert Nathanson, will perform at 8 p.m. April 6 in Kenan Auditorium as part of the Music Department's 2002 Artist Recital Series. Tickets are $10 for general admission, $5 for faculty and staff and free to UNCW students and are available from the auditorium box office.

Physics Colloquiums

P.K. Kabir, professor of physics at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, will present "Creators of the Quantum Theory" at 7 p.m. April 11 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. A short induction ceremony for physics majors into the honor society Sigma Pi Sigma will follow.

Kabir will also present "Triumphs and Challenges of Quantum Theory" at 2 p.m. April 12 in the same location. Refreshments will be served at both events.

Earth Sciences Seminar

Reide Corbett from the Department of Geology at East Carolina University will present "Evaluation of Short-term Sediment Dynamics via Naturally Occurring Radioisotopes in the Mississippi River Delta Region" at 2 p.m. April 5 in DeLoach Hall, Room 114.

Movie Makers Lecture

Chip Hackler, a UNCW graduate who has worked as a camera operator in the Wilmington film industry for 18 years, will discuss his career at 2 p.m. April 5 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium, as part of the Movie Makers Lecture Series sponsored by the Film Studies Program.

Hackler, associate director of the program, worked on the feature films Interview with a Vampire, To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday and Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. He will show his film Cathedral based on Raymond Carver's short story.

Stepparent Support

The Stepparent Support Group, formerly the Stepmothers Support Group, will meet from noon to 1:30 p.m. April 18 in the University Union, Room 201. Direct questions to Linda MacRae at ext. 7435.

Bolen to Lecture at Cape Fear Museum

Eric Bolen, biological sciences, and Dave Adams, retired professor from NC State University, will lecture on William Bartram, naturalist and author of Bartram's Travels Through the Carolinas, at 11 a.m. April 5 at Cape Fear Museum as part of the its Bit of History Series. For admission information, call 341-4350.

Student Art Display

Graduate Thesis Defenses

William Struntz and Amy McElhinney, graduate students in biological sciences, will defend their respective theses "Blubber Development in Bottlenose Dolphins" and "Phytogenetic Analysis of the Mischococcales, Tribonematales and Vaucheriales Xanthophyceae) Inferred from 18S RNA Gene Sequences." Struntz' defense is at 2 p.m. April 5 in Dobo Hall, Room 103, and McElhinney's is at 2 p.m. April 8 in Dobo Hall, Room 202.

UNCW Swimmer Dan Gallagher Named All-American

Dan Gallagher, a senior on the men's swimming and diving team, finished fourth in the 50-meter at the NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships to become UNCW's first All-American in the sport since 1982.

Gallagher, from Clemmons, N.C., set a school record of 19.59 seconds in the preliminary races and followed by placing fourth with a time of 19.65 at the University of Georgia's Gabrielsen Natatorium. He finished behind Arizona swimmer Roland Schoeman, Califonia's Anthony Ervin and Stanford's Randall Ball in the 50-meter but ahead of Texas' Ian Crocker, a member of the gold-medal 400-meter relay team at the 2000 Olympic Games.

"Dan has had a fantastic year," said head coach Dave Allen. "What's really been remarkable has been his consistency."

Gallagher led the Seahawks to the 2002 Colonial Athletic Association Men's Swimming Championships where he was named the meet's outstanding swimmer.

obsession, Yelena, is played by junior theatre major Abbey Wade. Set in a disintegrating country estate in the final years of Czarist Russia, Uncle Vanya is a comedy of emotional errors. It is also the final production of the University Theatre season.

Renee Vincent, associate professor in the Department of Art and Theatre, directs the cast of seven students. Vincent and set designer Tom Macie, associate professor of theatre, researched 19th century Russia to discover the popularity of glass-walled conservatories or "winter gardens." This artistic team designed such a multi-purpose room to serve as a backdrop for the entire show. Technical director Scott McElheney, assistant professor of theatre, and his crew of student carpenters created this "winter garden" for the SRO Theatre Stage.

Tickets are $5 for general admission and free to UNCW students with valid ID. Due to limited seating, reservations are recommended. Call the Kenan Auditorium box office at ext. 3500.

LEADERSHIP RECOGNITION MONTH

Honoring outstanding student leaders is the focus of April's designation as Leadership Recognition Month.

This annual event gives us an opportunity to recognize the student leaders who have contributed to the university in a number of ways, said Shelly Hoover, director of the Center for Leadership Education and Service (CLES), formerly the Leadership Center.

"Student leaders and volunteers have enhanced the university through their efforts at the Student Recreation Center, career services and other university offices. They have also displayed their leadership abilities through academic excellence, operating and participating in the many social and Greek organizations on campus and volunteer efforts at more than 100 area agencies," said Hoover.

Since joining the university this past summer, Hoover said her focus is to insure that the center's programming remains on "the cutting edge."

"Even though our name has changed, the mission continues to be offering students the opportunity to develop leadership skills and become involved in service opportunities," said Hoover.

Some of the center's major initiatives include Emerge I, an eight-week introductory leadership program; Emerge II, a seven-week course that explores leadership theories and models and involves the creation of a team project; and UNCW Volunteers, offering students the opportunity to serve with non-profit organizations, mentor students and participate in alternative spring and fall break trips.

A new initiative implemented in the fall was the Senior Leadership Experience. Based upon Leadership Wilmington, Hoover said the program provided graduating seniors greater awareness of societal issues.

"As seniors graduate, enter the work force and move to new surroundings, we want them to be equipped with a foundation of the intricacies and responsibilities of community leadership," said Hoover. The program was funded by a grant from the Landfall Foundation. Twenty seniors met Tuesday afternoons for discussions on diversity, environmental issues, health care, media, public education, technology, politics and the arts.

Prior to UNCW, Hoover was associate director of Park Scholarships at NC State University. She also served as assistant dean of students at Greensboro College and assistant director of student activities and leadership development at Meredith College.

Hoover's arrival at UNCW coincided with the reorganization of the Leadership Center within the Division of Student Affairs. In addition to CLES, the division also created the Activities and Involvement Center.

"Leadership and service learning opportunities are an integral part of the university's overall academic mission," said Terry Curran, dean of students. "In creating the Center for Leadership Education and Service, the division is committed to investing resources to cultivate such opportunities across the campus' academic disciplines."

To further this effort, Hoover organized the Leadership and Service Council, a group of faculty, staff, student and community advisers.

"During the next several months, we will step up our efforts regarding implementing service learning," said Hoover.

Offering students the chance to improve their time management and communication skills as well as to learn how to work with people from diverse backgrounds, CLES better equips our students to succeed while at UNCW and once they graduate, said Hoover.

For more information on the center, call staff members Hoover, Becky Long or Lori Sumpter at ext. 3877.

Honor a Leader, Buy a Tree

April 12 is the deadline for contributions to the Leadership Grove in order to be recognized at the rededication ceremony, scheduled for 3 p.m. April 24. IRB Deadline Is April 22

All UNCW faculty, staff, and students who will conduct research with human subjects during summer months must submit their protocols for approval by the Institutional Review Board by April 22. In addition, continuing research that was approved last summer must be submitted for renewal. Forms to submit new or continuing research protocols are available from the Office of Sponsored Programs (OSP) or its Web site www.uncwil.edu/osp. A hard copy of completed and signed forms should be sent to Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion, by April 22. Researchers will be notified if submission to OSP is required.

Course Packs and Copyrights

Course packs that contain copyrighted materials are due at the copy center by April 22 in order to have them available in the bookstore by the first day of classes for Summer Session I. The deadline for Summer Session II is June 3. Direct questions to ext. 3083.

Course Schedule Update

A printable, PDF version of course schedules for each college or school is available on the Web at www.uncwil.edu/scheduleinfo/printablescheduleinfo.htm.

Electronic Reserves

Faculty who assign articles or book chapters as required reading for courses can place them online through Randall Library's Electronic Reserve System. Submit requests for Summer Session I by April 15 and by May 20 for Summer Session II. Fall semester requests are due by July 22.

E-mail course calendar and complete bibliographic references for each required reading to John Osinski at osinskij. CAMPUS COMMUNIQUE

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

University Relations | Vol. XXXI, No. 36 April 11, 2002 | Kristin Summerford, editor

UNCW Receives $1 Million NSF Grant

UNCW received a $1,066,000 grant from the National Science Foundation to place graduate students in middle school science classrooms in New Hanover County. Grant authors Bill Harris, associate dean of the graduate school and professor of geology, and Karen Shafer, director of the Science and Mathematics Education Center, will serve as principal investigators.

The three-year grant will fund a select group of science graduate students (GK-12 Fellows) to serve as classroom resources for middle school teachers and students.

Fellows will spend 10 hours per week for 36 weeks in classrooms assisting with science lesson selection, setup and demonstration. The Science and Mathematics Education Center will serve as the management hub for the project and the liaison between UNCW and the New Hanover County school system.

Each year, the grant will focus on a different grade level starting with the eighth grade descending to the sixth grade. More than 5,200 middle school students, including approximately 2,000 minorities, will benefit from UNCW's partnership with the public schools.

The program which begins in June, will provide stipends for seven science graduate students for three years. Students will receive $21,500 per year plus a cost-of-education allowance.

Pulitzer Prize Winner Broder to Speak

Pulitzer Prize-winning syndicated columnist and reporter David Broder of The Washington Post is the featured speaker for the 30th anniversary celebration of the Institute of Political Leadership.

This celebration, which includes a reunion of the institute fellows and UNCW political science alumni, will be held April 19 and 20. The event will include seminars on politically related topics which are free and open to the public.

Broder, rated as "Washington's most highly regarded columnist" by Washingtonian magazine, is author or co-author

Jazz Vocalist Melva Houston to Perform Benefit Concert April 19

Vocalist Melva Houston will perform a benefit jazz concert with the UNCW Big Band at 8 p.m. April 19 in Kenan Auditorium. Tickets are $10 for general admission, $5 for UNCW faculty and staff, free to UNCW students with valid ID and will be available at the Kenan Auditorium Box Office the night of the concert. Proceeds benefit scholarships for students in the Music Department Jazz Studies Program.

At the age of 16, Houston became a backup singer for Stax Records where she worked with artists such as Isaac Hayes, Wilson Picket and Sam and Dave. She later toured Europe with The Platters and starred in a "Motown Revue." Houston also enjoyed a successful solo career that included the release of five recordings. One reviewer wrote of her, "The lady has a stage presence and earthy charm that is at once magnetic and endearing."

The UNCW Big Band, under the direction of Frank Bongiorno, will perform various works, including compositions arranged by jazz faculty member Jerald Shynett. The UNCW Lab Band, directed by Steve Morgan, will open the concert.

This performance is made possible with funding from the Cape Fear Jazz Society, a non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation and presentation of jazz.

Houston

Faculty Meeting

The spring faculty meeting is at 4 p.m. April 11 in Cameron Hall Auditorium. All faculty members are encouraged to attend.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Artist Recital Series

The UNCW Department of Music will present its final concert of the 2002 Artist Recital Series at 8 p.m. April 21 in Kenan Auditorium.

Featured musician Frank Bongiorno, saxophonist and chair of the Music Department, will perform along with several music faculty including pianist Ellen Robison, guitarist Robert Nathanson and cellist Richard Thomas. Bongiorno will play well-known pieces for the saxophone such as Sisyphus by William Latham and Prélude, Cadence et Finale by Alfred Desenclos. The recital will also feature new pieces for saxophone and guitar, including the Wilmington premiere of Images of China by Jing Jing Luo-Haven and a transcription of Antonio Vivaldi's oboe Concerto in d minor for soprano saxophone, piano and cello.

Tickets are $10 for general admission, $5 for UNCW faculty and staff, free for UNCW students with a valid ID and will be on sale the night of the concert. Proceeds will benefit scholarships offered by Department of Music.

Moviemakers Lecture

Jordan Rhodes, a 30-year veteran of the film and television industry, will discuss his career at 2 p.m. April 12 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium. This free, public presentation is part of the Moviemakers Lecture Series sponsored by the university's Film Studies Program.

An actor, writer, director and producer, Rhodes worked with Sean Penn, Charles Bronson and Gregory Peck in the films The Indian Runner, Mr. Majestyk and Marooned. He appeared on numerous television series including Barnaby Jones, The Streets of San Francisco, Rockford Files and Law and Order and directed episodes of As the World Turns. Rhodes also wrote, directed and produced the award-winning documentary The American Cowboy with Chuck Connors.

E-Commerce Lecture

E-commerce expert Alfred C. Weaver, professor of computer science at the University of Virginia, will present "Distributed Computing at the Internet's Edge" at 3 p.m. April 12 in Cameron Hall, Room 133.

Weaver, who is also director of Internet Commerce Group at UVA, designs advanced e-commerce software systems. He is founder of Virginia's Internet Technology Innovation Center, which provides technical and business strategy for e-business and develops e-commerce software for corporate and government clients. Weaver and his research team created the Xpress Transport Protocol for the U.S. Navy and a digital ultrasound system for the Department of Radiology at UVA.

The College of Arts and Sciences and Cameron School of Business are sponsors of this free, public lecture.

End-of-Life Town Meeting

UNCW-TV will air the live broadcast "Isn't It Time We Talked?" from 7 to 8:30 p.m. April 11 on The Learning Network, Time Warner Cable Channel 5.

This forum, sponsored by the Lower Cape Fear Hospice, UNCW and New Hanover Health Network, will deal with end-of-life concerns. A special call-in phone line will be available for questions or comments of experts participating in the forum. To submit a question prior to the meeting, call 815-3961 or e-mail webmaster@hospicelowercapefear.org.

Note of Appreciation

Carol Sgambati, fixed assets, and Kevin Ulmer, business applications, would like to thank everyone for the support and prayers they received following the death of Russ Offredo.

"So many people were thoughtful and caring toward me and my entire family," said Sgambati.

Offredo was her father and his father-in-law.

AAUW Meeting

The Wilmington branch of the American Association of University Women will meet at 7:30 p.m. April 17 in the Warwick Center. Chancellor James R. Leutze will be the guest speaker.

Music on the Commons

Acoustic duo Mostly John, featuring Nashville singer/songwriters John Gregory and John Griffin '94, will perform from 11:30 to 1 p.m. April 25 on the Campus Commons.

Graduate Defenses

Sarah Kelly and Kim-Laura Boyle, graduate students in biological sciences, will defend their respective theses "Influence of Secondary Metabolites from Caribbean Sponges on Bacterial Surface Colonization" and "Functional and Metabolic Consequences of Giant Cells in Swimming Muscles of the Blue Crab, Callinecetes sapidus." Kelly's defense is at 3 p.m. April 11 in the Center for Marine Science Auditorium. Boyle's defense is at 2 p.m. April 12 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Learn to Swim

UNCW's Learn to Swim Program for children ages three to 12 will be held June 3-14 and 17-28 and July 8-19. Faculty and staff can register their children April 15-18 at the Trask Coliseum ticket office. The cost is $90 per child. Public registration begins April 20. For more information, call ext. 7536.

Springfest 2002

The Association for Campus Entertainment (ACE) is sponsoring Springfest 2002 April 15-20. Special-themed events will featured each day.

The festival concludes with the Edwin McCain concert at 6 p.m. April 20 in Trask Colliseum. Tickets are $2 for UNCW students (one per ID) and $10 for all others and can be purchased at the University Union information desk or at the Kenan Auditorium box office. Buddhist Wisdom: Shantideva's Guide to the Bodhisattva Way of Life

Dr. Joe Wilson, associate professor of philosophy and religion, discusses an early eighth century, little known Buddhist monk in India, who composed one of the most influential and well loved spiritual works of Mahayana Buddhis. The class will read and discuss selected passages from Shatideva's Guide to the Bodhisattva Way of Life, an epic poem taking the reader from the beginning of the Buddhist path to its end. The study includes a modern commentary on Shantideva's verses by the 14th Dalai Lama. Recommended reading: Shantideva, A Guide to the Bodhisattva Way of Life, translated by Vesna and B. Alan Wallace (Snow Lion Publications 1997, approx. $13).

10:30 a.m. - 12:20 p.m. Monday - Friday

Hebrew Wisdom: Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Sirach

Dr. Walter Harrelson, retired professor of religion, explains "wisdom" is a type of biblical literature that has come into prominence in recent years. Wisdom in both Hebrew and Greek is a feminine noun and offers another way by which the biblical world affirmed feminine dimensions of religious thought. The course explores this theme in several biblical books, especially the books of Proverbs and Sirach (also called Ecclesiasticus). Wisdom comes to be associated very closely with God the Creator, and it is also identified as the reality that is at the heart of God's Law or Teaching (in Hebrew, TORAH).

Independent Director to Lecture April 19

Up-and-coming director Patrick Stettner will discuss his career as an independent filmmaker at 2 p.m. April 19 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium. The university's Film Studies Program is sponsoring this free, public lecture as part of its Moviemakers Lecture Series.

Stettner wrote and directed The Business of Strangers, which received favorable reviews at the Sundance Film Festival. Starring Stockard Channing and Julia Stiles, the movie was shown as part of Thalian Hall's Cinematique Series.

Computer Science Talk

Sridhar Narayan will present "Genetic Algorithms" at 3 p.m. April 18 in Bear Hall, Room 102.

Feast of Pirates Display

The exhibit "Pirates, Patriots and Progress," which spotlights Wilmington's pre-Depression festival Feast of Pirates, is on display from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays during April at 5051 New Centre Drive.

Designed and installed by students in UNCW's History Department, the exhibit features rare artifacts, photographs and documents from local institutions as well as private collections about the Feast of Pirates festival held in Wilmington every August from 1927 to 1929.

Center Stage Buffets

The Center Stage lunch buffets, served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Warwick Center, Seahawk Grille, will feature the following menus:

Friday – spaghetti with meatballs or marinara sauce, steamed mixed vegetables, corn, butter beans, assorted salads, rolls, desserts, and beverages.

Tuesday – BBQ pork chops, vegetarian stuffed peppers, scalloped potatoes, corn souffle, green beans, assorted salads, rolls, desserts, and beverages.

The cost is $5.25 for these all-you-care-to-eat buffets.

Physics Colloquium

P. K. Kabir, professor of physics at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, will present "Creators of the Quantum Theory" at 7 p.m. April 11 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212.

Stepparent Support Group

The Stepparent Support Group, formerly the Stepmothers Support Group, will meet from noon to 1:30 p.m. April 18 in the University Union, Room 201. Direct questions to Linda MacRae at ext. 7435.

Student Art Display

Stage to Screen Series

The UNCW English Department will present "From Stage to Screen," a series of films based upon stage plays, on three consecutive Thursdays in April. Each screening, which will include commentaries by UNCW faculty, will begin at 7 p.m. in Morton Hall's Bryan Auditorium, followed by a reception. The series schedule is listed below.

April 11 – His Girl Friday

April 18 – Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf

April 25 – Henry V

Cruise Fund-raiser

The Seahawk Club's second annual Big Boat Cruise and Floating Auction will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. May 11. The event, which will be aboard the Henrietta III, will feature heavy hors d'oeuvres, beverages, a silent auction and remarks from Jerry Wainwright, head coach of the men's basketball team. Tickets are $55 per person, $100 per couple and are on sale through April 30. Availability is limited. Proceeds benefit student-athlete scholarships. For more information, call the Seahawk Club at ext. 7737.

Relay for Life

The American Cancer Society's Relay for Life will start at 4 p.m. April 26 at Hoggard High School Stadium. This annual 24-hour walk is a fund-raiser for cancer research. Registration is $10 per person. For more information, contact Wanda Bass at 343-1711.

of seven books, including his latest Democracy Derailed. He will lecture on "American Politics: Perspective and Trends," at 7 p.m. April 19 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium.

The mission of IOPL is to improve democracy through knowledgeable, ethical leadership. The institute prepares candidates for public office, and many of the 624 graduates have held elected offices at the state and local level.

The two-day IOPL celebration also includes the political seminars or panel discussions listed below. They are scheduled for April 20 in Bryan Auditorium.

Phil Noble, founder and CEO of PoliticsOnline, the first international firm for fund-raising and Internet tools for politics, will speak on "Politics on the Internet: Campaigns and Government," at 8:30 a.m.

The panel "Campaigning and Governing: Some Perceptions and Advice," moderated by IOPL fellow Rep. Gene Arnold, N.C. House (R-Rocky Mount), will feature Linda Coleman, chair of the Wake County Board of Commissioners (D-Raleigh); Fred McClure, Davidson County commissioner (R-Lexington); Mia Harris, N.C. House (R-Fayetteville); and John Tabor, a member of the Charlotte City Council (R-Charlotte), will begin at 10 a.m.

Ralph Mitchell, president of the Mitchell Group and former program associate and trainer at the Center for Creative Leadership, will discuss "Political Leadership: Vision and Goals" at 1:15 p.m. April 20.

Milan Dluhy, political science, will discuss "Training Activities and Seminars for the Fellows of the Institute" at 3:15 p.m. April 20.

Focus on Faculty and Staff

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Wade Watanabe, CMS, had the article "Sustained, Natural Spawning of Southern Flounder Paralichthys lethostigma Under an Extended Photothermal Regime" published in the Journal of the World Aquaculture Society, vol. 32. It was co-authored by graduate student Patrick Carroll and Harry Daniels from NC State University. Watanabe presented "Effects of Light Intensity on Embryos, Prolarvae and First-feeding Stage Larvae of the Summer Flounder Paralichthys dentatus" at the Aqua America 2002 meeting in San Diego. At the same meeting graduate student Kimberly Copeland presented "Growth and Feed Utilization of Wild-caught Subadult Black Sea Bass Centropristis striata Fed a Practical Diet in a Recirculating Tank System Under Different Stocking Densities" with Watanabe, Carroll and Kerr Wheatley and Thomas Losordo (NCSU). Carroll presented "Pilot-scale Growout of Hatchery-reared Summer Flounder Fingerlings Fed a Commercial Diet in a Marine Recirculating Tank System" with Watanabe and Losordo.

Tom Barth, political science, had the paper "A Life of Quiet Service" published in the January issue of Public Voices. He also presented the papers "Ad Hoc Regional Alliances: A Search for Historical Roots" and "Online Education: Reflections of a Skeptic" at the national conference of the American Society for Public Administration in Phoenix.

James Johnson, psychology, gave the invited address "Media Influences on Racial Perceptions" at the 2002 meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association. In addition, Johnson was selected as a consulting editor for the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology.

Robert Argenbright, earth sciences, had the article "Marking NEP's Slippery Path: The Krasnoshchekov Show Trial" published in The Russian Review, vol. 61.

Ned Martin, chemistry, presented "Integrating Molecular Modeling into the Chemistry Curriculum at UNCW" as one of eight invited speakers at the Computational Modeling in Science and Engineering Education workshop sponsored by the UNC Office of the President, the North Carolina Supercomputing Center and NCREN.

Otis Graham, history and business, presented the paper "Ronald Reagan and the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986" at the Conference on the Reagan Presidency at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

Martin Posey and Troy Alphin, biological sciences, received $49,878 from the U.S. Army Engineer District-Wilmington for the project "Biogeochemistry and Benthic Infauna in Swamps and Marshes Along the Cape Fear River and Northeast Cape Fear River."

Carolyn Farley, university union, presented "From Vision to Reality: Designing and Building College Unions to Meet the Needs of the 21st Century," "Auxiliary Services Board Concept: Understanding Auxiliary Service's Role in Higher Education Institutions" and "Building a Dream on a Realistic Budget" at the Association of College Unions international conference in Albuquerque, N.M.

Denise DiPuccio, foreign languages and literatures, received $5,000 from the North Carolina Humanities Council to underwrite the Coral Ensemble performance Tres Vidas.

Mark Imperial, political science, presented the paper "Collaboration as a Governance Strategy: Lessons from Six Watershed Management Programs" at the 63rd national conference of the American Society for Public Administration Phoenix, Ariz.

ITSD to Begin Phase Two of Outlook Conversion

By November the entire campus will use the state-of-the-art features provided by Microsoft Outlook to work faster and more productively, said Robert Tyndall, vice chancellor for Information Technology Systems Division.

Outlook, which provides advanced e-mail, calendar and scheduling capabilities, is part of the division's Collaborative Computing Environment. It was introduced during a pilot phase last October.

The voluntary pilot phase converted approximately 750 employees to Outlook, said Kim Kelly, program coordinator for ITSD. Starting May 12, technology division personnel will begin the final switchover.

"All administrative offices should be finished by mid-July," said Kelly. "Faculty migrations are scheduled for September through November." A complete migration schedule is on the Web at www.uncwil.edu/dcs/exchange/deploy_schedulell.html.

Phase Two participants will also be offered training and workshop sessions. During the pilot stage, ITSD client services conducted more than 50 workshops at which each participant received a free training book.

"Outlook consolidates e-mail, a calendar and task list in one central location and viewers can see their week at a glance which improves communication," said Bev Vagnerini, director of client services. "We're receiving many favorable comments from users about Outlook's ease of use."

Beth Roberts, administrative secretary in Randall Library, is pleased with the software.

"Outlook has helped me become more organized," said Roberts. "While I initially found the contacts section difficult to use, I've become more comfortable with it. With the calendar function, I can review library staff calendars to make or switch appointments and schedule meetings at a time convenient for every one. Overall, I give it a thumbs up."

IRB Deadline Is April 22

All UNCW faculty, staff, and students who plan to conduct research with human subjects during summer months must submit their protocols for approval by the Institutional Review Board by April 22. Continuing research approved last summer must be submitted for renewal. Forms for new or continuing research protocols are available from the Office of Sponsored Programs (OSP) or through its Web site www.uncwil.edu/osp. Send a hard copy of completed and signed forms to Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion, by April 22. Researchers will be notified if submission to OSP is required.

Electronic Reserves

Faculty-assigned articles or book chapters that are required reading for courses can be made available online through Randall Library's Electronic Reserve System.

For Summer Session I, submit requests by April 15 and for Summer Session II by May 20. Fall semester requests are due July 22.

E-mail course calendars and complete bibliographic references for each required reading to John Osinski at osinskij. For materials unavailable in the library's collection, provide clean copies plus full bibliographic references.

For more information, call ext. 7312 or visit the Web page library.uncwil.edu/faqresfac.htm.

Sam's Club Discounts

Faculty, staff and students are eligible for discounted memberships to Sam's Club. The cost is $25 for two cards. This is a $10 savings off the regular price. A four-month free trial membership with a $35 renewal rate is also available. Enrollment applications will be accepted from noon to 6 p.m. April 14 and 3 to 8:30 p.m. April 15 at the store on South College Road. Enrollees should bring their university ID to the UNCW hospitality table. Cash or checks will be accepted. For more information, call ext. 3274.

Course Packs

Course packs that contain copyrighted materials are due at the Copy Center by April 22 in order to have them available in the bookstore by the first day of Summer Session I classes. The deadline is June 3 for Summer Session II. Direct questions to ext. 3083.

Discount Coupons

Discount coupons for admission to Carowinds theme park are available in HR, Suite 200, 5051 New Centre Drive. Valid dates are March 29 through May 27. The park is offering a "buy one and get one free" special on weekend admissions through May.

Be a Part of Commencement

Commencement ceremonies will be held at 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. May 18 in Trask Coliseum.

Volunteers will be needed during the student assembly in Hanover Hall and for the coliseum ceremonies. Volunteers for the morning ceremony, which will feature the Cameron School of Business, Watson School of Education and the School of Nursing, should report for duty at 8 a.m. The ceremony for the College of Arts and Sciences will be in the afternoon; volunteers should report for duty at noon. Volunteers should attend the entire ceremony.

Anyone interested in volunteering should contact Mary Crookes, university events coordinator at ext. 7505 or e-mail crookesm.

Shared Leave

Neila Abban, budget office, and Joseph Jernigan, physical plant, need shared leave donations. Send vacation leave donations to Pam Christie in human resources.

To donate leave, submit an application for leave form (HR2.10L), check the "donated leave" space, and include the recipient's name and department. Indicate the number of vacation hours being donated, and sign and date the form. A supervisor's signature is also required.

Welcome

Please welcome the following new employee: Cynthia Grant, financial aid and veterans services.

Staff Training

Creating Newsletters and Brochures on PageMaker, 10 a.m. to noon May 7.

University Theatre

The University Theatre production of Uncle Vanya opens at 8 p.m. April 17 in Kenan Hall, SRO Theatre. Additional performances will be held at 8 p.m. April 18-20 with a 2 p.m. matinee April 21.

Written by Anton Chekhov, Uncle Vanya is the story of ordinary people whose lives are disrupted by beauty and love. Senior Robert Bapst portrays the title character. The object of Vanya's obsession, Yelena, is played by junior theatre major Abbey Wade. Set in a disintegrating country estate in the final years of Czarist Russia, Uncle Vanya is a comedy of emotional errors. It is also the final production of the University Theatre season.

BOT Meetings

The UNCW Board of Trustees will meet April 18 and 19. The following subcommittees will convene April 18: educational planning and programs, 11 a.m. Wagoner Hall, Madeline Suite; business affairs, 2 p.m. Alderman Hall, Room 215; and external affairs, 2 p.m. Alderman Hall, Room 211. The full board will meet at 8:30 a.m. April 19 in the UNCW Executive Development Center.

Parking Decal Costs

Parking fees could increase by $75 based upon proposals under consideration by senior administrators.

"A recent statewide court decision requiring that all fine and forfeitures be paid to the public school systems will cost the university around $450,000 annually," said Tim Jordan, vice chancellor for business affairs. "At recent meetings, cabinet officials have looked at how to deal with lost revenue and respond to the university's parking crunch."

One proposal, which could be considered at the April 18 trustees' business affairs subcommittee meeting, would request an across-the-board increase in the cost of the decal from $105 to $180.

This revenue would enable the university to continue to offer its current level of campus security as well as pay the debt service to construct 350 new spaces, said Jordan.

"We will also initiate an intra-campus shuttle to reduce the need of driving from one side of campus to the other," said Jordan, adding the new lots and shuttle would cost about $240,000 to implement and maintain annually.

Retirement Reception

The English Department will host a retirement reception for Carol Ellis from 3 to 5 p.m. April 26 in the Warwick Center, Center Stage Café. Ellis is retiring after 36 years of service.

HR Advisory Meeting

The Chancellor's Human Relations Advisory Committee will meet at noon April 16 in the Warwick Center, Room 138.

Faculty and staff should submit suggestions or concerns to any of the following committee members: Kathleen Benzaquin, specialty studies; Denis Carter, academic affairs; Yaw Chang, mathematics and statistics; Leslie Langer, SBTDC; Linda MacRae; general college; Robert Miller, sociology and criminal justice; Stephanie Richardson, English; Tom Schmid, philosophy and religion; Robert Smith, specialty studies; Doretha Stone, nursing; Dorothy Taylor, physical plant; Matt Tenhuisen, mathematics and statistics; Anping Wu, Randall Library; Bo Dean, honors program; Jammie Price, sociology and criminal justice; Earl Sheridan, political science; Joanne Nottingham, campus diversity; Daniel Berkow, counseling; Kate Temoney, dean of students office; Cloe Torres, housing and residence life; Adrien Lopez, SGA; Liz Grimes and Sam Connally, human resources.

Retirement Vendor Visits

Representatives of vendors offering supplemental retirement plans will be available for individual counseling sessions in human resources, 5051 New Centre Drive, Suite 201.

Approximately one-third of UNCW employees participate in a tax-deferred plan. New tax laws allow deferment of more money.

The schedule of vendor visits is listed below. To schedule an appointment, contact the representative directly.

April 24 - Tamara Langham, Lincoln Financial Services, 1-800-434-5507

May 1 - Al Gonzalez, TIAA-CREF, 1-800-842-2003 ext. 3522

May 15 - David Haden, VALIC, 791-4659

Children's Story Adventures

Children's Story Adventures is open to children, three to 12, of faculty, staff and students. This program, sponsored by the Seahawk Perch, is offered from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. Wednesdays in the children's literature section of Randall Library. Volunteers are also needed to read stories. For more information, call ext. 7371 or e-mail seaperchstu.

Open Hanging

Faculty, staff and students are invited to participate in an "open hanging" sponsored by the University Union Exhibit Series. Bring ready-to-hang artwork to the Warwick Center from noon to 4 p.m. May 2. Pieces will be displayed on a first-come, first-served basis. The exhibit will run through Aug. 29. For more information, contact Shannon Hooker at ext. 7600.

Wireless Workshops

The Information Technology Systems Division will hold workshops on using wireless personal digital assistants/ handheld computers from 9 a.m. to noon April 16, and noon to 3 p.m. April 17 and 23. All workshops contain the same information and will be held in the University Union, Room 105. In addition to product demonstrations, there will be faculty presentations on how these devices can be utilized in the classroom. E-mail questions to Beverly Vagnerini at vagnerinib.

Shuttle Trial

A pilot program for an eight-passenger intra-campus shuttle will run April 15 through May 9. There will be two routes with one originating in Lot K near the tennis courts and the other starting from Lots S and T near Dobo Hall. Both routes will circle approximately four times an hour to transport students and employees to inner campus areas. Direct questions to auxiliary services at ext. 3178.

This is recyclable.

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

University Relations Vol. XXXI, No. 37 April 18, 2002 Phillip Brown, editor

UNCW Receives High Marks from New Hanover County Voters

UNC Wilmington received high marks for serving New Hanover citizens in a survey conducted by the Institute of Political Leadership.

Eighty-one percent of respondents said UNCW is doing a good or excellent job serving the county. Virtually the same percentage (38 percent excellent, 42 percent fair) lauded the university's efforts at providing educational opportunities for residents. In addition, the majority of those surveyed rated UNCW favorably as a source for cultural/entertainment opportunities and in helping with the county's economic development. UNCW Seahawk sports earned top marks with 85 percent ranking them good or excellent.

This random poll, conducted April 5 with 292 registered, active New Hanover County voters by IOPL's spring class of fellows, also asked about major issues facing the county.

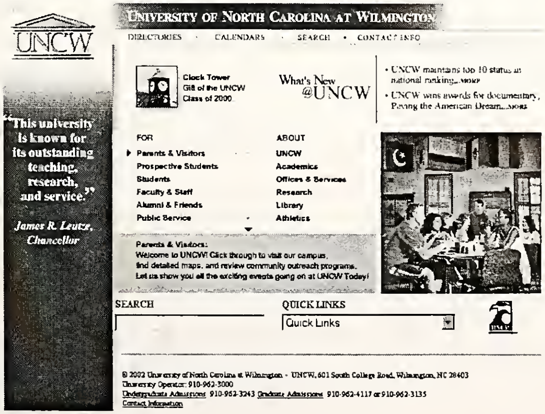
According to Walter De Vries, IOPL director, 34 percent of the voters cited issues related to growth and the environment.

Traffic/road problems were cited by 18.9 percent, followed by growth and planning at 11.6 percent and environment/land use at 4 percent, said De Vries. These results are almost identical to fall 2001 when 33 percent of the respondents named the same problems. In addition, 10.9 percent of those surveyed said taxes were too high, and more than 6 percent said the county faced too many problems to narrow to one.

The survey also solicited opinions regarding local politics. Although 46 percent of respondents approved Wilmington Mayor Harper Peterson's job performance; they were almost evenly divided in their opinion of the city council. Thirty-two percent approved of the council's functioning, 29 percent disapproved. Voter support for county commissioners was higher - 39 percent of respondents endorsed the board's operation, 20 percent were critical.

Redesigned Home Page Debuts Friday

UNCW's redesigned home page debuts Friday. This new look resulted from efforts by the World Wide Web Committee that includes representatives from offices and departments campuswide. Cathi Phillips, public service and continuing studies, served as lead designer.



"This university is known for its outstanding teaching, research, and service."

SACS Celebration Set for April 30

UNCW will host a campuswide picnic from 5 to 7 p.m. April 30 on the Campus Commons for faculty, staff and their families to celebrate the successful reaffirmation of accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

A variety of entertainment is planned. Invitees are welcome to bring lawn chairs or blankets.

Rotary Scholarships

Applications for 2003-04 Rotary Foundation Ambassadorial Scholarships are available from the Rotary Club of Wilmington.

For information and an application, contact Mimi Cunningham, university relations, at ext. 3171 or e-mail cunninghamm. Scholarship applications are due to Cunningham by May 1.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Physics Colloquium

Dmitri Khveshchenko, professor of physics, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, will present "Dirac Fermions in Layered Graphite and Elsewhere" at 2 p.m. April 19 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served at 1:45 p.m.

History Lecture

Karl Schleunes, professor of history at UNC Greensboro, will lecture on "The Holocaust and the Problem of Explaining Evil" at 7:30 p.m. April 25 in Dobo Hall, Room 134. The History Department at B'Nai Israel Synagogue are sponsors of this free, public lecture.

Induction Ceremony

The UNCW chapter of Phi Kappa Phi will induct new members at 4 p.m. April 18 in Cameron Hall Auditorium. There are 45 student inductees along with faculty inductee Patricia Turrisi, CTE. Phi Kappa Phi, the junior-seniors honor society, is open to students in all academic disciplines.

Chemistry/Biology Seminar

Michael Depledge, director of the Plymouth Environmental Research Centre, University of Plymouth, England, will speak on "Endocrine Disruption in Marine Organisms" at 3 p.m. April 18 in Dobo Hall, Room 132.

Note of Appreciation

Annie Aldrich, telecommunications, would like to thank "the campus community, SEANC District 62 and my friends for their cards, phone calls, flowers, visits, prayers and many acts of kindness during my illness and long recovery period. They all gave me encouragement during a difficult time."

Poetry and Music

Maurice Martinez, specialty studies, will host "Tomorrow Night – An Evening of Poetry and Music" at 9 p.m. April 18 at Water Street Restaurant. The event will feature Poets of Wilmington with live music by Painted Man.

Center Stage Buffets

The Center Stage lunch buffets, served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Warwick Center, Seahawk Grille, will feature the following menus:

Friday – Honey baked chicken, vegetable lasagna, rice with gravy, buttered corn, green peas, assorted salads, rolls, desserts and beverages.

Tuesday - Mexican fiesta with beef or chicken tacos, refried beans, Mexican rice, black bean salad, tossed salad and assorted desserts and beverages.

The cost is $5.25 for these all-you-care-to-eat buffets.

Cameron Museum Opening

The Louise Cameron Wells Art Museum grand opening will be held from noon to 5 p.m. April 21. This free celebration will include food and live music. The museum is located at the corner of Independence Boulevard and South 17th Street.

As part of the festivities, Chris Fonvielle, history, will sign copies of his book The Wilmington Campaign: Last Days of Departing Hope from 2 to 3 p.m. in the museum gift shop.

Fonvielle and graduate students from the History Department restored Civil War defensive mounds located on the museum site. For more information about the museum, call 395-5999.

Appreciation Nights

The April 23 softball and April 30 and May 15 baseball games are designated faculty/staff appreciation nights. These games, which are free to university employees with a valid ID, will feature special promotions between innings. The softball contest against Campbell University is at 4 p.m. The April 30 baseball game versus NC State University starts at 7 p.m. The May 15 contest against East Carolina University begins at 6 p.m.

Graduate Defense

Werner Lippert, a graduate student in history, will defend "Hometowns and German Nationalism: A Case Study" at 2 p.m. April 18 in Randall Library, Special Collections.

Senior Receives Fulbright

Mark Kelly, a senior marine biology and psychology major, received a Fulbright Scholarship to the University of Bergen in Norway.

Kelly

Kelly, who is the son of Tom and Vickie Kelly, of Pineville, La., will study farm-raised Atlantic salmon at the Institute of Marine Research.

"I hope to use the Fulbright Scholarship to explore the various components of both my undergraduate degrees," said Kelly. "Norway provides the best availability of university course work and research opportunities. Few countries have placed a greater emphasis on ocean research and resources."

Kelly anticipates graduating with honors in May 2002. After his nine-month trip to Norway, which begins in August, he plans to pursue his Ph.D.

Randall Library Exhibits

Randall Library is hosting the exhibit "UNCW Student Creations 2002" through Aug. 4 at the library's first-floor art wall and entrance. The display features artwork by students in Ann Conner's advanced painting and drawing classes and Aaron Wilcox's advanced sculpture class. There will be a Meet-the-Artist reception from 4 to 5 p.m. April 22 at the art wall.

Capitol Steps Performance

The Capitol Steps will perform at 4 and 8 p.m. April 27 at Thalian Hall as part of the UNCW Arts in Action Series.

Based in Washington, D.C., this political satire musical comedy troupe has made numerous appearances on television and National Public Radio. The group has recorded 20 albums featuring political parodies such as "Son of a Bush," "Livin' Libido Loco" and "I Enjoy Being Al Gore."

For tickets, call 343-3664. UNCW students receive a 10 percent discount. This performance is co-sponsored by WHQR Radio.

Regulation in the Wake of September 11th

Many things have changed since September 11, 2001, particularly in federal and state government. These regulations fall into two broad categories:

- implementation of funds and grants to aid in homeland security efforts
- enabling law enforcement agencies to more easily share and obtain information through electronic and telephone sources.

Although a great deal of legislation has been promulgated since 9/11, EH&S and the university environment are affected by only a few.

The most comprehensive is the USA PATRIOT ACT (Uniting and Strengthening America by Providing Appropriate Tools Required to Intercept and Obstruct Terrorism Act).

The complete text of the act and summary are located at the links provided at the end of the article. In general the act provides law enforcement greater latitude in obtaining information from electronic and phone sources. It provides access to confidential educational records under certain conditions.

Section 817 of the USA PATRIOT act has great implications on UNCW's researchers and EH&S professionals. It requires registration of "select biological agents." These 36 agents consist of bacteria, viruses and toxins that are listed at http://www.cdc.gov/od/ohs/lrsat/42cfr72.htm - Appendix A They include infamous agents such as: Ebola, Smallpox, Yellow Fever, Botulism, Anthrax and Saxitoxin. Once identified, they must then be registered with the North Carolina Division of Health and Human Service, as well as, the federal Centers for Disease Control. Many universities have expanded this list or have developed an internal registration of all biological agents. Once these agents are registered, most are requiring detailed inventory control procedures, detailed transfer procedures, training and disposal protocols. Along with the paucity of biological safety regulations, this has prompted many universities to develop biological safety programs that consist of a biological safety officer and/or committee. A memo will be circulated shortly to all principle investigators at UNCW to identify their inventory of biological agents and particularly those on the select agent list. Once this is determined, a meeting will be scheduled with stakeholders to discuss the best course of action for UNCW.

Another component of this legislation is the restriction of certain persons from having access to these agents specifically, "non-permanent residents" from Cuba, Iran, Iraq, Libya, North Korea, Sudan or Syria.

Additionally, the legislation restricts the following persons from working with these agents:

- A person under indictment/convicted of a crime punishable by imprisonment for one year or more
- A fugitive from justice
- A user of illegal drugs
- An alien illegally in the United States
- A person who is a mentally defective or has been committed to a mental institution
- A person who has been dishonorably discharged from the US Military

The exact scope and methods of this restriction are under debate at various institutions. Some are simply requiring laboratory workers, using these agents, to fill out a questionnaire. Others interpret these measures to include maintenance, housekeeping and other staff who access research areas. Some are requiring criminal record checks on researchers and others are changing the security protocols for these laboratories.

What the implications of the USA PATRIOT Act are on UNCW, and how we will achieve compliance, is uncertain. What is certain is that EH&S will be partnering with the stakeholders in a method that complies with the regulations, meets the spirit and intent of the regulation and provides the least burden possible.

PILOT LABORATORIES

Lead The Way To Safety Excellence!

EH&S is partnering with Dr. Pamela Seaton, Chemistry, Dr. Stephen Kinsey, Biological Sciences and Dr. Andrea Bourdelais, CMS to develop an exemplary chemical hygiene program that others can follow.

The plan is to implement a program that meets the OSHA laboratory compliance standards using the Chemical Hygiene Plan recently developed by the Laboratory Safety Committee. EH&S will assist in this process, will gain a better understanding of the steps required to achieve compliance and will provide a model for other laboratories. Often in regulatory areas, persons can identify what is wrong but not adequately paint a picture of what is right. These labs will be an example of what right is and help dispel the myth that compliance is unattainable.

EH&S is so enthused with this "pilot" concept that we are moving toward utilizing this approach in other high-regulatory risk areas such as bloodborne pathogens and hazard communication.

POISON Help™
1-800-222-1222

Nationwide Poison Control Number

Millions of Americans are poisoned each year. Many are under the age of six. In an effort to simplify emergency response, the American Association of Poison Control Centers (AAPCC) has established a single number to reach local poison control centers.

1-800-222-1222

When you call this number the computer identifies the area code you are calling from and forwards you to the local poison control center. Keep this number handy to respond to poisonings. For information, contact AAPCC at http://www.aapcc.org/. To learn how to respond to poisoning and other emergencies, sign up for a CPR/AED/First Aid course by calling EH&S at 3057.

CHEMICALS IN THE WORKPLACE

http://www.uncwil.edu/safety/workplace.htm

At UNCW exposures to and records kept for chemicals in the workplace are outlined in the Hazard Communication procedure. If you work in a laboratory the procedure is outlined in the Chemical Hygiene Plan (CHP). Listed below is a abbreviated summary of the requirements of these programs.

Hazard Communication

The OSHA Hazard Communication Standard (29 CFR 1910.1200) requires departments to provide employees with information about the chemical hazards in their workplace to include:

- a written hazard communication program
- container labels
- area warning signs
- material safety data sheets (MSDS)
- formal chemical safety training

For departments using hazardous chemicals, the department head or designee, is responsible to ensure:

- Hazardous materials used are properly labeled with hazard information.
- An up-to-date master list of material safety data sheets, and employees know where they are.
- Training is provided to new employees on chemicals that they use before working with them. Refresher training must be provided at least once a year.

Employees are responsible for:

- Acquiring training before working with a hazardous chemical.
- Reading labels on chemicals used, determining what procedure applies, what personal protective equipment should be worn and obtaining and wearing the personal protective equipment.
- Informing supervisors of spills or leaks that may cause exposure to hazardous chemicals.

The Lab Standard

The Chemical Hygiene Plan (CHP) is required by OSHA Occupational Exposure to Hazardous Chemicals in Laboratories (29 CFR 1910.1450). The CHP requirements apply to all UNCW employees using hazardous chemicals in the laboratory. The CHP ensures that chemical hazards and ways to protect themselves from these hazards are made known to users. Communication is the key to the success of this program.

To meet the regulatory requirements of the CHP, EH&S along with the Principal Investigator are responsible for ensuring:

- Entrance to labs are posted with hazard signs
- Containers properly closed and labeled
- A lab chemical inventory maintained
- Access to material safety data sheets (MSDS)
- An annual laboratory self-inspection
- General and lab-specific safety training
- Standard Operating Procedures for chemical use are developed
- Personal protective equipment is accessible and worn
- Opportunity to receive medical attention in exposure incidents is provided
- The CHP is reviewed annually

Employees are responsible for:

- Wearing appropriate personal protective equipment
- Ensuring hazards are minimized and controlled
- Adhering to prescribed safety rules and regulations
- Following Standard Operating Procedures

Fire Trucks On UNCW Campus?

No, there has not been a recent rash of fires. The increased activity is due to policy changes that have the Wilmington Fire Department (WFD) respond to all fire alarms on the campus.

Why was the change made?
To ensure that UNCW is a safe community, EH&S partnered with University Police, senior management, Housing & Residence Life and the WFD to bring our policy in line with that of other universities in the UNC system. The new policy replaces the 1980's decision to have the University Police respond first to alarms. Under the new policy the WFD will respond immediately.

But why so many fire trucks, from different directions?
It is an operational decision of WFD to have several units respond at once, so an adequate number of fire fighters and apparatus are on scene as quickly as possible.

When an alarm sounds, the University Police notify the WFD, who in turn dispatches units from two or three fire stations. If all units were dispatched from one station there would be no units available to respond to other calls from that station. Second, because Wilmington traffic situations vary, it is possible for units from different stations to arrive on campus first.

What stations typically respond?
Units from the Fire Stations near Municipal Golf Course, on Eastwood Road and Princess Place Drive respond most often. If more units are needed, or the primary stations are unavailable, units from Landfall, Seagate or Pine Valley stations may respond.

Why have fire trucks been on campus when not responding to alarms?
UNCW is working closer with the actual firefighters. They are now here to flow fire hydrants, prepare pre-fire plans for larger buildings and learn their way around the campus.

Should I do anything?
If a fire alarm sounds in your building, please exit the building as quickly as possible, closing doors behind you. Assemble at an area well away from the building (500 feet) and begin to account for everyone. It is imperative that persons assemble out of roadways and away from the entrances to the building. The WFD is responding with large trucks that are difficult to stop.

We hope we have answered your questions, if not give us a call at extension 4287.

BATTERY RECYCLING

EH&S in its continuing effort to ensure UNCW's proactive environmental practices keep going… and going… and going… has implemented a battery recycling program.

The following types of batteries are acceptable under the recycling program:

Alkaline
Lithium
Nickel-cadmium

Battery recycling bins are located in:

Center for Marine Science
DeLoach Hall
Dobo Hall
Friday Hall
Graham-Hewlett Hall
Physical Plant (craft buildings)
Telecommunications
Trask Coliseum
University Police
University Union

The recycling bins are attached to the blue recycling centers located at central positions in these buildings. Additional sites for recycling bins will be selected based upon need.

For disposal of all other batteries, call ext. 7017.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Take Back the Night

UNCW will conduct its third annual "Take Back the Night" march and rally at 6:30 p.m. April 23 on the University Commons.

The march, which will be followed by a candlelight vigil, is designed to educate the university and greater Wilmington community about the realities of violence committed against women, according to Kate Temoney, assistant dean of students.

The rally will include speeches, readings and music by local band Bellafea as well as free food provided by Domino's Pizza and The Bagel Basket. In addition, the Clothesline Project and Silent Witness exhibits will be displayed. The Clothesline Project is a collection of T-shirts with messages written by rape survivors. Silent Witness is a traveling memorial featuring life-sized red figures honoring women and children across the state who were victims of domestic violence.

The university's A-Team, a peer-education group dedicated to ending sexual violence, is sponsoring the events. In case of rain, events will be held in King Hall Auditorium.

Filmmaker to Lecture

Up-and-coming director Patrick Stettner will discuss his career as an independent filmmaker at 2 p.m. April 19 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium.

The university's Film Studies Program is sponsoring this free, public lecture as part of its Moviemakers Lecture Series.

Stettner

Stettner wrote and directed The Business of Strangers, which received favorable reviews at the Sundance Film Festival. The movie starred Stockard Channing and Julia Stiles.

Retirement Reception

The English Department will host a retirement reception for Carol Ellis from 3 to 5 p.m. April 26 in the Warwick Center, Center Stage Café. Ellis is retiring after 36 years of service.

Business School Creates Executive Network

The Cameron School of Business is mobilizing area business leaders to benefit students through the CSB Executive Network.

These executives or "fellows" will participate in 10 or more activities per academic year ranging from guest lecturing in a class to serving as a mentor to two or three students depending upon their schedules.

At its inaugural gathering earlier this month, 18 volunteer fellows and 52 students selected to participate in this innovative program met. Lucian "Skip" Jones and Richard Verrone, CSB executives-in-residence, developed the network.

According to Larry Clark, dean of the business school, "our belief is that students and fellows with common interests may establish lifelong relationships. As students leave the university and begin their corporate careers, they can continue to gain solid career and personal advice from those who have served in the corporate trenches."

Raffle Tickets

The student service organization Global Serve is selling raffle tickets to fund its Habitat for Humanity trip to Mission, S.D. Tickets for the April 24 drawing are $1 each or six for $5. There are three prize packages featuring various combinations of hotel accommodations, golf packages and gift certificates. For more information, call ext. 3877.

Artist Recital Series

The UNCW Department of Music will present its final concert of the 2002 Artist Recital Series at 8 p.m. April 21 in Kenan Auditorium.

General admission is $10, $5 for UNCW faculty and staff. UNCW students admitted free with a valid ID. Proceeds will fund student scholarships offered by Department of Music.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Joseph Pawlik, biological sciences, present "Redwoods of the Reef? Demography of the Caribbean Barrel Sponge, Xestospongia muta" at the Benthic Ecology meetings held in Orlando, Fla. UNCW students Will O'Neal, Kristen Whalen, Tim Henkel, Sarah Kelly, Shobu Odate and Kyle Walters gave presentations. O'Neal presented "Where's my Sea Whip? Are Defenses in Caribbean Gorgonians Physical or Chemical?"; Whalen, "Localization of Ecologically Active Secondary Metabolites in Two Caribbean Sponges"; Henkel, "Star- crossed Sponges: The Sponge-Brittlestar Association Between Callyspongia vaginalis and Ophiothrix lineata"; Kelly, "Influence of Secondary Metabolites from Caribbean Sponges on Bacterial Surface Colonization"; Odate, "Vanadium in Sea Squirts: Is Heavy Metal in Bad Taste?"; and Walters, "Rhizocephalan Recognition: Are the Larvae of Parasitic Barnacles Attracted to Chemical Cues?" Former postdoctorate student Julia Kubanek presented "More Bang for Your Buck: Multiple Defensive Roles of Sponge Triterpene Glycosides."

Yoko Kano, foreign languages and literatures, had a paper published by Mie University on how on-line discussion and videoconferencing at the Japan Forum affected student learning. It was co-authored by Mitsuaki Hayase. Kano was one of six teachers from the United States chosen to write sample curricula and lesson plans on teaching Japanese language and culture for the Japan Forum in Tokyo. The forum is a non-profit organization that was established by Kodansha International, Japan's leading publisher, to create and distribute teaching materials worldwide.

Len Lecci, psychology, had the paper "Personal Goals as Predictors of College Student Drinking Motives, Alcohol Use and Related Problems" accepted for publication in the Journal of Studies on Alcohol. It was co-authored by Michael MacLean and former graduate student Nicole Croteau.

Adina Lack, Andrew Dutka and Sherman Hayes, Randall Library, had the article "Faculty Scholarship Collections: Identifying, Capturing, Archiving and Accessing History," published in Collection Management Journal, vol. 26.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

Organizational Change

The Office of Financial Aid and Veterans Services now reports to the associate vice chancellor for finance in the Division of Business Affairs.

According to Kay Ward, this organizational change will enhance communication between the financial aid office and student accounts resulting in a more streamlined coordination of students' financial aid receipts with payments and refunds.

Financial aid and veterans services was housed in the Division for Academic Affairs.

Flower Project

The Division of Student Affairs will sponsor its second annual flower project from 4 to 8 p.m. April 26 at College Park Elementary. Faculty and staff interested in helping this effort to beautify one of the local schools should contact the Dean of Students Office at ext. 3119. Gardening implements such as rakes, shovels, wheel barrows are needed. Participants should inform the deans' office of items they can provide.

Retirement Reception

The Computer Science Department will host a retirement reception for Fletcher Norris from 3 to 5 p.m. April 26 in the University Union, Living Room. Norris is retiring after 32 years of service.

IRB Deadline Is April 22

All UNCW faculty, staff, and students who plan to conduct research with human subjects during summer months must submit their protocols for approval by the Institutional Review Board by April 22. Any continuing research approved last summer also must be submitted for renewal. Forms for submission of new or continuing research protocols can be obtained from the Office of Sponsored Programs (OSP) or its Web site www.uncwil.edu/osp. A hard copy of completed and signed forms should be sent to Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion, by April 22. Researchers will be notified if submission to OSP is required.

Shared Leave

Neila Abban, budget office, and David Crouch and Joseph Jernigan, physical plant, need shared leave donations. Send vacation leave donations to Pam Christie in human resources.

Staff Vacancies

	Deadline
22142 Office Assistant III	April 19
22143 Irrigation/Spray Specialist	April 19
22144 Grounds Worker	April 19

Call the Jobline at ext. 3791 or visit HR's World Wide Web site for additional information or to download the state application.

Computer Security Measures

ITSD computing services will implement a Cisco firewall next month to protect the campus' network from hackers and intruders. In conjunction with its implementation, ITSD will add virtual private networking (VPN) which will allow secure, authenticated access from off campus.

VPN will give authenticated users the ability to read, write and update files on campus servers, such as SAMMY and the Web server, from a Windows 98/NT/2000/XP computer via the Internet. User authentication will be based on the directory services provided by UNCW's Collaborative Computing Initiative Exchange 2000 server. To utilize VPN, migration to the Exchange server is required. VPN is an alternative to software such as PC Anywhere; however, files that require remote access will have to reside on campus servers rather than individual desktops.

To minimize interruptions, employees who currently access or manage any campus computing resource from off campus (other than the campus e-mail servers or the Web server via a browser) should complete the "Access to Campus Computing Resources from Off Campus" form at www.uncwil.edu/compserv/nss/firewall_feedback_form.doc. Return forms to Jeff Hunnicutt, Hoggard Hall, Room 203A, by April 23. Faculty and staff who require VPN access should also complete the form.

The final implementation date will follow a review of submitted forms. ITSD will notify the campus two weeks prior to the change.

Welcome

Please welcome the following new employees: James Howell, SBTDC; George Kent, client services; and Robert Kidd, physical plant.

Discount Coupons

Discount coupons for admission to Carowinds theme park are available in HR, Suite 200, 5051 New Centre Drive. Valid dates are through May 27.

UNCW Center to Help Local Non-profit Groups Write Grants

Using a $115,000 grant from the Cape Fear Memorial Foundation, UNCW will provide grant writing and program evaluation assistance to non-profit organizations in New Hanover County. The grant will provide initial two-year funding for the Grant Support Program (GPS) Center in the Department of Social Work.

The GPS Center will help the non-profit organizations in the community to overcome two major challenges – initial funding and sustainability. Many of the non-profit agencies in New Hanover County do not have access to professional grant writers to help augment their budgets, and because of this, many are at risk of financial insolvency.

The GPS Center will allow organizations the ability to find sources for grant opportunities as well as offer intensive, side-by-side, grant writing support to the agencies. The GPS center will also provide program evaluation design and implementation to help non-profits document the effectiveness of their work.

Frankel

Program evaluation is a critical component for grants to be successful, said Art Frankel, distinguished visiting professor of social work at UNCW and author of the Cape Fear Foundation grant. "Building in program evaluation methods helps the grantor and grantee know if the program is working as proposed," he said.

A number of UNCW faculty are expected to be involved in the activities of the GPS Center, offering their expertise to evaluate grant-supported programs in their disciplines.

"For example, as part of a grant request dealing with delinquency and alcohol and drug abuse, we've included a faculty member with expertise in juvenile justice to design and be a part of the program evaluation process," said Frankel. "Applying this special expertise in such areas as nursing, marine science, criminal justice and psychology will make local grants more competitive on a national level. It also provides a tremendous resource to the local non-profits.

"There has been a tremendous support from the faculty, members of the university, and staff from non-profit organizations," he said. "Along with the wonderful grant from the Cape Fear Memorial Foundation, Jo Ann Seiple, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and Nelson Reid, chair of the Department of Social Work, have also been particularly helpful, committing some university resources to help establish this collaborative UNCW-community support project."

UNCW will not charge for grant writing support. By building in funding within new grant requests to support program design and evaluation, the GPS Center is expected to be self-supporting after two years. The goal is to submit 50 grants a year with non-profit organizations in New Hanover County. The center will also work with the non-profit community to develop ongoing workshops in grant writing and program evaluation.

Moore Selected to Direct General College

Kemille Moore, chair of the Department of Art and Theatre, will take over as director of the General College, effective July 1. She succeeds Yousry Sayed who is retiring after almost 26 years of service to UNCW.

Moore

"Dr. Moore brings considerable experience as a department chair and student adviser to her new role," said John C. Cavanaugh, provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs, in announcing the appointment. "She will build upon the successful program we have in the advising center and will focus her initial efforts on raising the quality and recognition of faculty academic advising."

Moore, who joined UNCW in 1991, earned bachelor's and master's degrees from Arizona State University and a doctorate from the University of Washington. She was named department chair in 1998.

Picnic to Celebrate Great SACS Review

UNCW will host a campuswide picnic from 5 to 7 p.m. April 30 on the Campus Commons for faculty, staff and their families to celebrate the successful reaffirmation of accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

A variety of entertainment is planned. Invitees are welcome to bring lawn chairs or blankets.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Student Films

Students from the Film Studies Program will show their work in two screenings. These free, public events will be at 4 p.m. April 26 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium, and 8 p.m. April 30 at the Reel Café, 100 South Front Street.

Both events will showcase eight films – five short pieces by students in the "Introduction to Film Production" class and three movies from the capstone course "Senior Seminar in Film Production."

Physics Colloquium

Daniel Gauthier, associate professor of physics and biomedical engineering at Duke University, will present "'Fast' and 'Slow' Light" at 2 p.m. April 26 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served at 1:45 p.m.

Greek Organizations Help with Campus Planting

More than 100 fraternity and sorority members helped plant 2,000 English ivy plugs in the Heritage Garden as part of Greek Week activities.

"On behalf of landscape services, I want to thank all the men and women of the participating Greek organizations for their great support and assistance," said Robert Warren, superintendent of landscape services. "We look forward to future projects which can involve so many of our students and help improve the beauty of the campus.

Earth Sciences Seminar

Lincoln Pratson from the School of Environment and Earth Sciences at Duke University will present "Internal Tidal Waves and the Slope of the Continental Slope" at 2 p.m. April 26 in DeLoach Hall, Room 114.

Mercer Tribute

"Blues in the Night: A Tribute to Johnny Mercer" will be presented at 8 p.m. May 4 in Kenan Auditorium. This tribute, written by Philip Furia, creative writing, will also include performances of Mercer works. Tickets are $15, free to UNCW students with ID, and are on sale at the auditorium box office. Proceeds benefit WHQR Public Radio.

Graduate Defenses

Stephanie Hequembourg and Suzanne Sexton, graduate students in biological sciences, will defend their respective theses "Early Patterns of Calcium and Protein Deposition in the Blue Crab" and "Carbon Remineralization Rates in Coastal Wetland Sediments Under Sulfate Reducing Methanogenic Conditions: Implications for Sea-level Rise." Hequembourg's defense will be at 11 a.m. April 25 and Sexton's will be at 2 p.m. April 29. Both are scheduled in Dobo Hall, Room 202.

Moviemakers Lecture

Stanley Colbert will screen and discuss the landmark film Private Property at 2 p.m. April 26 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium. This free, public program is part of the Moviemakers Lecture Series sponsored by the Film Studies Program.

Colbert produced the low-budget movie Private Property in the 1950s. The film was hailed by Time magazine as the start of the American New Wave, and The New York Times credited it with opening the door to independent filmmaking in an industry long-dominated by Hollywood studios. The British Film Institute is providing a copy of the film for this special screening.

Biological Sciences Seminar

Peter Hoyt from the University of Tennessee Genome Science and Technology Program and Oak Ridge National Laboratory, will present "DNA Microarrays and Strain Variance in Mice Exposed to Low Doses of X-ray Irradiation" at 2 p.m. April 26 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Landfall Foundation Grants

The Landfall Foundation is accepting applications for grants that range from $500 to $3,000. Application forms and guidelines are on the Web at www.seafunders.org or can be requested by writing the Landfall Foundation, 1838 Gleneagles Lane, Wilmington, N.C. 28405. The deadline to submit four copies of the application is July 12.

Center Stage Buffets

The Center Stage lunch buffets, served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Warwick Center, Seahawk Grille, will feature the following menus:

Friday – Chicken or vegetable stir-fry over rice, whole kernel corn, green beans, assorted rolls, salads, desserts and beverages.

Tuesday – London broil, baked ziti, oven roasted potatoes, steamed broccoli, squash casserole, assorted rolls, salads, desserts and beverages.

The cost is $5.25 for these all-you-care-to-eat buffets. These are the last luncheons of the semester. Buffets will resume in the fall.

Retirement Receptions

The English and Computer Science Departments are hosting receptions for retiring faculty Carol Ellis and Fletcher Norris. Both receptions are from 3 to 5 p.m. April 26. The reception for Ellis, English, will be in the Warwick Center, Center Stage Café. Norris' will be in the University Union Living Room.

Child Abuse Awareness

UNCW student Ashley Scott, Miss Wilmington 2002, is hosting a fundraising event and candlelight vigil from 5 to 8 p.m. April 26 at Rippy Automotive, 4951 New Centre Drive, in recognition of Child Abuse Awareness Month.

University Union Shuffles Administrative/Student Offices

The University Union is a major hub of activity for students, faculty and staff. During this semester, some of the commotion revolved around trading spaces.

"Moving and, in some cases, creating new offices, are all part of our efforts to better serve our constituents and reflect organizational changes within student affairs," said Carolyn Farley, director of the University Union.

The major outcome of these moves is the creation of the Campus Activities and Involvement Center in Room 205. Farley said the center serves as a clearinghouse for student organizations and other types of involvement on campus.

"We have plans for an involvement center in the new union facility tentatively scheduled to open in spring 2005, but the demand is already upon us. So, we seized the opportunity," said Farley.

The offices for the Student Government Association, the Association for Campus Entertainment and Greek Life occupy individual spaces in the center. They share a central area that provides student organizations with access to computers, a telephone and mailboxes. Staff offices for campus activities are located nearby in Room 209.

Additional office relocations included shifting the Dean of Students Office and transition programs to Rooms 200 and 214 and moving reservations and events/facilities management and the union business manager to Room 202.

Offices for student media, formerly housed on the union's second floor, are located in Burney Student Support Center in space vacated by auxiliary services.

Farley said the moves resulted from information gathered during planning for the proposed union expansion and renovation project. She added that the interim moves "will get us through until the new facility and renovations are completed."

Last fall, student leaders passed a resolution to increase fees effective with the 2002-03 academic year to fund the project. The UNCW Board of Trustees approved the increase in January.

"We are confident these changes will make for a more user-friendly environment for not only the students and employees but those in the greater Wilmington community who visit and use our facilities," Farley said.

The Division of Student Affairs is hosting an open house and tour of the new offices from 2 to 5 p.m. April 30. Tour participants will receive a map of new locations; people who visit every office will be eligible for a prize. Each location will host refreshments. Menu and food locations are: cheese and crackers at campus activities, hot dips at the involvement center, snack mixes at the dean of students, fruit tray at the Center for Leadership Education and Service, vegetable tray at reservations and desserts at student media.

Progress Energy, Seven Others Receive Razor Walker Awards

Progress Energy received a corporate Razor Walker Award from the Watson School of Education in recognition of the company's educational service to the state. The school also honored seven individuals at ceremonies Monday.

The school recognized the utility company for "investing in a better future for the youth of North Carolina. Each year, the company funds scholarships at every level, and employees donate time helping children through its Communities in Schools program."

The Razor Walker Award, established in 1993, is presented annually to a select group of individuals and/or corporations who have, through commitment and tenacity, made a significant impact on the lives and the education of children in North Carolina.

The individual 2002 Razor Walker Award honorees were:

Bellamy

Carter

de Peralta

Norris

Smith

Sosne

Spearman

- Heyward Bellamy of Wilmington. As a retired superintendent of the New Hanover County Public School System from 1969 to 1982, Bellamy worked with many diverse ethnic groups at a critical time in the system's history. He created the first alternative school and gave students representation on the New Hanover County Board of Education.

- Denis Carter of Wilmington. Carter, associate vice chancellor for planning and academic outreach at UNCW, co-established the College Opportunity Program, which encourages minority students to plan for a college career. He also created a network of transfer agreements between UNCW and state community colleges to make it possible for more students to obtain a four-year college degree.

- Jo Ann Norris of Raleigh. Norris, associate executive director of the Public School Forum of North Carolina, received recognition for her lifelong dedication to education reform. During the 1960s, Norris helped foster the future integration of school faculty in the system.

- Jose Grave de Peralta of Henderson. A refugee from Cuba, de Peralta worked as an educator and community volunteer throughout his professional life. He taught thousands of young, rural North Carolinians not only the Spanish language, but appreciation of other cultures and the value of freedom.

- Gordon Smith III of Raleigh. Smith created the Raleigh museum Exploris. As the state's first "global learning center," the museum educates North Carolina students and citizens about other cultures.

- Marc Sosne of Hampstead. As Pender County School superintendent, Sosne secured almost $4.5 million to help meet the educational needs of the school system, increased student achievement and reduced dropout rates.

- Robert Spearman of Raleigh. As an attorney, Spearman worked on litigation that culminated in the decision to hold the state responsible to see that every child has the opportunity to a basic sound education.

Brad Brownell Takes Over Hoops Program

Brownell

Associate men's basketball coach Brad Brownell was named Seahawk head coach following the resignation of Jerry Wainwright.

Brownell, 34, came to UNCW with Wainwright and has played a key role in helping the Seahawks rack up four post-season berths in the last five years.

"We certainly believe Brad is one of the top coaches in the country and will make an outstanding head coach," said athletics director Peg Bradley-Doppes. "He has worked hand-in-hand with Jerry to elevate the program. From recruiting to scheduling to courtside coaching, he has proven he is ready to direct our program."

A native of Evansville, Ind., Brownell came to UNCW in 1994 and worked with Wainwright to bring the program into the

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Myers Named Honors Associate Director

Myers

John Myers, associate professor of art history, will become associate director of the Honors Scholars Program effective July 1.

"Dr. Myers brings a host of experiences to give academically talented students challenging and exciting experiences both in and out of the classroom. His engagement with students, his professional work with faculty and staff and his appreciation for and involvement in the Wilmington community make for a winning combination for the Honors Scholars Program," said Kate Bruce, program director, in announcing the appointment.

Myers said he looked forward to "contact with the exceptional students of the program and involvement in the continued enrichment of the honors experience at UNCW."

During his 21-year university career, Myers served as chair of the Department of Art and Theatre for six years as well as a member of the Faculty Senate and the Art Conservancy Committee.

Basketball Summer Clinics

The UNCW Men's Basketball Program will sponsor summer camps from June 10-14 for participants age eight through high school seniors and July 15-19 for ages eight through eighth grade. For more information, contact Carol Stevens at ext. 3045.

Alumni Golf Classic

The ninth annual Cape Fear Alumni Golf Classic will be held May 13 at Beau Rivage Resort and Golf Club. Check-in begins at noon with a shotgun start at 1 p.m. The cost is $70 per person and includes range balls, cart and green fees, catered meal, door prizes and course beverages. Proceeds will benefit scholarships and outreach programs of the UNCW Cape Fear Alumni chapter. To play, contact Tom Lamont at ext. 2684 or e-mail lamontt as soon as possible.

Campus Dining Exam Hours

Starting May 2, the Hawk's Nest will be open from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. during exams.

The Union Station coffee bar will be open from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 5 to 10 p.m. May 2, 3 and 6-8 and 7:30 a.m to 3 p.m. May 9.

Wagoner Hall will be open from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 5 to 7 p.m. May 2 and regular hours afterward through May 9.

Blues in the Night

"Blues in the Night: A Tribute to Johnny Mercer" is scheduled for 8 p.m. May 4 in Kenan Auditorium.

This concert, a benefit for WHQR Public Radio, will include jazz vocal and musical performances of classic Mercer works such as Moon River, The Days of Wine and Roses and Jeepers Creepers. Guest artists include Stephanie Nakasian, Prince Taylor and Frank Bongiorno, saxophonist and chair of the Music Department.

Philip Furia, creative writing, wrote and will narrate the tribute to the Savannah-born songwriter. Furia is working on the first biography of Mercer.

Tickets to the tribute are $15, free for UNCW students with ID, and are on sale at the auditorium box office. The Cape Fear Jazz Appreciation and Creative Writing Department are concert sponsors.

Note of Appreciation

Debbie Price, payroll, would like to express her appreciation for the "many cards, flowers and food that my family and I received following my husband's death. Everyone's thoughts and prayers were very comforting during this time."

Graduate Thesis Defense

Genevieve Haviland, a graduate student in biological sciences, will defend "Recreational Boating Traffic and Total Environmental Noise in the Wilmington, N.C., Intracoastal Waterway: A Unique Habitat for Bottlenose Dolphins" at 2:30 p.m. May 2 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Retirement Reception

The Division of Academic Affairs will host a retirement reception for Yousry Sayed, director of general college, from 3 to 5 p.m. May 2 in the University Union Living Room. Sayed is retiring June 30 after almost 26 years of service to UNCW.

UNC Wilmington Creates Endowed Lecture Series

UNCW has established the Sherman Emerging Scholars Lecture Series.

Named in honor of Virginia and Derrick Sherman, the series will provide a forum for up-and-coming intellectuals to present their perspectives on modern issues related to history, politics or international studies. It will include public lectures, faculty seminars and classroom presentations by an annual Sherman Scholar.

This endowed lecture series was created through a gift by the Sherman's son and daughter-in-law Phillip and Birgitta and their daughter and son-in-law Ann and Gunther Skiba.

A selection committee led by the chair of the History Department will select each Sherman Scholar.

Virginia and Derrick Sherman

Honors Program Students Win Awards

Casey Jo Stacy and Michael Simone, undergraduate students in the Honors Scholars Program, received Derieux Awards for research presentations at the annual meeting of the N.C. Academy of Sciences. Stacy, a marine biology major under the supervision of David Webster, biological sciences, won first place for "Patterns of Rabies Infestation in North Carolina Bats." Simone, an English and biological sciences major, won honorable mention for "Sexual and Aggressive Social Interactions Base on Male Size in Mosquitofish." He also received a Yarborough research grant from the academy for this work. Kate Bruce, psychology, was his faculty supervisor.

Psychology graduate student Darcy McMullin won first place in the minority issues category of the Student Research Awards at the annual meeting of the Southeastern Psychological Association. Her presentation "Black and White College Students' Attitudes Toward Homosexuals" was supported by a UNCW Graduate School Summer Research Award. Bruce also served as her faculty supervisor.

Applications Available for Rotary Scholarships

Applications for 2003-04 Rotary Foundation Ambassadorial Scholarships are available from the Rotary Club of Wilmington.

The scholarships provide for study abroad in more than 160 countries where Rotary clubs are located and some non-Rotary countries such as China and Vietnam. Some 1,200 scholarships of various types will be available from clubs worldwide.

Academic-Year Ambassadorial Scholarships are for one academic year abroad. Funding covers round-trip transportation, tuition and fees, room, board, some educational supplies, and language training (if necessary) up to a maximum award of $25,000.

Multi-Year Ambassadorial Scholarships are flat grants of $12,000 per year for two years toward the cost of a degree program in another country. Also available are Cultural Ambassadorial Scholarships which provide funding for three or six months of intensive language study and cultural immersion in another country, including transportation, tuition, and homestay expenses, up to a maximum of $12,000 and $19,000 respectively.

For more information and an application, contact Mimi Cunningham, university relations, at ext. 3171 or e-mail cunninghamm. Return applications to Cunningham by May 1.

The Office of International Programs (OIP) is seeking faculty interested in the position of resident faculty director for the UNCW/University of Swansea (USW) study abroad program in spring 2004.

Responsibilities include: meeting with OIP staff during the 2002 and 2003 academic years to receive information on the program; promoting and recruiting students for the program, teaching one honors enrichment course at UWS; teaching one discipline-specific course relevant to the needs of the Department of American Studies at UWS; reviewing program applications; advising study abroad participants; assisting OIP and future resident directors with orientation, promotion and planning the program; managing program funds; and maintaining regular contact with all participants through regular office hours and program activities.

Applicants should be tenured or tenure-track faculty who have previous experience living, working or studying in an overseas setting. In addition, applicants should have a demonstrated ability to generate and implement an effective, energetic recruiting plan for student participants during spring and fall 2003, a willingness to serve as an adviser and mentor to students' academic and personal adjustment in a cross-cultural setting and ability to teach a course in the arts and sciences area at UWS as well as an honors enrichment course.

To apply, send a curriculum vitae, along with a cover letter and names of two references to University of Wales Swansea Search Committee, International Programs, University Union, Room 103A. Review of applications will begin May 24. A selection decision will take place in summer 2002.

For more information, contact Elizabeth Adams or Jim McNab at ext. 3685.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Mark Williams, financial aid and veterans services, presented a session on UNCW's electronic document imaging pilot project at the Financial Records Systems Users Conference in Charlotte. He spoke about how the system, which contains more than 279,000 documents, is helping improve student service and meet document retention requirements.

Sandra Harris, Kathy McDaniel, and C. W. "Woody" Sutton, public service and continuing studies, and Elaine Penn, chancellor's office, are members of the board of directors of the Harbor Foundation, a non-profit and certified community housing development organization that received $270,000 from the City of Wilmington Community Block Grant to build three energy efficient houses for low to moderate income families. McDaniel is the foundation's founder and executive director; Harris is president and Woody Sutton, vice president.

Steven Emslie, biological sciences, presented "Penguin Colonies and Environmental Change in the Antarctic Peninsula Region" at the National Science Foundation-funded conference "Antarctic Peninsula Climate Variability: A Historical and Paleo-environmental Perspective" held at Hamilton College in Clinton, N.Y.

C.W. "Woody" Sutton, public service and continuing studies, was re-elected treasurer of the N.C. Distance Learning Association at the southeastern regional technology and teaching conference's 2002 Distance Learning Institute held at East Carolina University.

Cathi Phillips, public service and continuing studies, and Mahnaz Moallem, specialty studies, presented "An Interactive Online Course: A Collaborative Design Model" at the UNC Teaching and Learning with Technology conference in Greensboro.

W. Thomas Schmid, philosophy and religion, had the article "Socratic Dialectic in the Charmides" published in Does Socrates Have a Method? edited by Gary Scott, Penn State University Press.

William Cooper, chemistry and CMS, presented the paper "Water and Wastewater Treatment" during an environmental medicine short course held in conjunction with the 2002 American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine conference's Millennium Series on Environmental Medicine in Chicago.

Robert George, biological sciences and CMS, presented the paper "Conservation of Coral Reefs off Southeastern United States as Marine Reserves" at the 63rd annual meeting of the Association of Southeastern Biologists (ASB) held at Appalachian State University in Boone. George and student Eric Caison presented the paper "Impact of Golf Course on Juvenile and Adult Mud Fiddler Crab Uca minax in Cape Fear River Delta" at the wetland and marine ecology session. Student Joshua Cumbee and George presented the paper "Impact of Golf Course on Adult Blue Crab Callinectes sapidus in the Cape Fear Delta." In addition, George was elected chair of a committee to organize the national symposium Conservation Biology of Land and Marine Ecosystems in the Southeastern United States sponsored by the ASB conservation committee. It is scheduled for April 2003 at Howard University in Washington, D.C.

Stanley Edwards and Kevin Ulmer, business applications, June Gutknecht, accounting, Diana Rivenbark, purchasing, and Sondra Roark and Carol Strickland, financial systems, attended the 2002 FRS Users Conference in Charlotte where Gutknecht and Edwards presented "Automated Travel System"; Rivenbark presented "The Purchasing Card"; Strickland and Ulmer presented "Web Cashier and Invoicing System"; and Roark presented "Fixed Assets Roundtable."

Thompson

H. E. "Hunter" Thompson, public service and continuing studies, received the Distinguished Service Award for University/four-year Colleges from the N.C. Distance Learning Association at the annual southeastern regional technology and teaching conference's Distance Learning Institute at ECU.

Lavonne Adams, creative writing, had the poem "The Math of Marriage" published in We Used to be Wives: Divorce Unveiled Through Poetry, edited by Jane Butkin Roth, Fithian Press.

James Megivern, philosophy and religion, presented "Capital Punishment: The Curious History of its Privileged Place in 'Christendom'" at the symposium Capital Punishment and the Administration of Justice sponsored by the American Philosophical Society in Philadelphia.

P. J. Lapaire, foreign languages and literatures, attended the Blue Ridge International Conference on the Humanities and the Arts where he chaired a session on French and francophone studies and gave a presentation on modern French poetry and a view of the 19th century as the cradle of the modern era and of our society.

Robert Toplin, history, presented "Hollywood and History" during the plenary session of the World Congress of Television and Film Producers in Boston. Toplin is also co-editing a special issue on film for the Organization of American Historian's Magazine of History. It will feature articles by Jason Eudy and Vince Lowery, UNCW graduate students in history.

Mike Mallin, CMS and biological sciences, was elected president of the Southeastern Estuarine Research Society.

Public Service and HR Collaborate on Employee Training Initiative

UNCW employees will have access to professional training either as online courses or as a mix of online and face-to face training through a new initiative between WebU@UNCW and the Department of Human Resources.

This new program brings customized training opportunities to the desktop through easy-to-use Web access provided by WebU, an online portal for professional and personal development housed in the Division for Public Service and Continuing Studies, and traditional face-to face training through human resources.

Liz Grimes, director of staff training and development, said, "For employees who may not be able to devote time to classroom courses, this (initiative) provides a greater degree of flexibility and opens new avenues for participation in professional development activities directly on their desktop."

Human Resources director Sam Connally added, "Finding the time to attend training classes is a major challenge for many of our employees. Desktop learning offers a high degree of flexibility and enables staff and faculty to participate in professional development activities without ever leaving their offices."

WebU@UNCW will allow employees to interact with instructors via e-mail — anytime, anyplace, said Woody Sutton, its director.

"A unique feature of this collaboration is that employees can customize their training experience by combining face-to-face instruction with online instruction. Online instruction will give them immediate access to training programs, on their terms," he explained. "I am pleased that the university has embraced instructor-led, online learning as a new direction for staff development."

Training opportunities will be greatly enhanced by this collaboration, said Michelle Howard-Vital, vice chancellor for public service and continuing studies.

"This type of partnership benefits employees because it increases learning opportunities at the click of a mouse," said Howard-Vital. "From desktop applications to certificate programs, employees can customize their training experience, targeting specific skills."

Information about the collaborative program will be forwarded to all UNCW employees this summer.

Direct questions regarding WebU@UNCW to Sutton at ext. 7074 or go to the Web site www.uncwil.edu/dpscs/webu.

Arts in Action Announces 2002-03 Schedule

The Oct. 7 performance by Cuba's Chucho Valdes Quintet will kick off the 2002-03 UNCW Arts in Action Performance Series. The concert, scheduled for 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium, features Chucho Valdes, a Grammy Award-winning musician described by Time magazine as "one of the greatest pianists in the world."

The remaining lineup for this annual series is listed below.

- Keb' Mo', 8 p.m. Oct. 14 in Kenan Auditorium

  Keb' Mo'– the stage moniker of Kevin Moore – is known for his soulful renderings of Delta-derived acoustic blues, propelled by syncopated, percussive national-steel guitar.

- Koresh Dance Company, 8 p.m. Nov. 9 in Kenan Auditorium

  Philadelphia's Koresh Dance Company is recognized for its story telling strength and ardent interpretations of significant social motifs.

- Bolcom and Morris, 8 p.m. Jan. 18 in Kenan Auditorium

  Husband-and-wife duo William Bolcom, a composer and pianist, and Joan Morris, a mezzo-soprano, are acclaimed for their interpretations of American popular songs from the late 19th century through the 1930s.

- N.C. Jazz Festival Preview, 8 p.m. Jan. 30 in Kenan Auditorium

  One of the nation's premiere weekend jazz parties kicks off its 22nd year with this Dixieland-flavored concert preview.

- Eileen Ivers, 8 p.m. March 18 in Kenan Auditorium

  Seven-time all-Ireland fiddle champion Ivers has established herself as the world's preeminent exponent of the Irish fiddle.

- David Sedaris, 8 p.m. April 11 in Kenan Auditorium

  Author of Me Talk Pretty One Day and Naked, Sedaris made his comic debut recounting his sad-but-unfortunately-true experiences as a Macy's Christmas Elf on National Public Radio's Morning Edition.

- Dianne Reeves, 8 p.m. April 12 at Thalian Hall

  Grammy-Award winner Dianne Reeves is considered the modern voice of jazz.

national spotlight.

"Obviously, I'm very excited and deeply honored to have the opportunity to lead this program," said Brownell. "I'm very grateful to Coach Wainwright for bringing me here eight years ago and for helping me grow as an assistant coach. I'd also like to thank Chancellor Leutze and Peg Bradley-Doppes for having confidence in my ability to lead this program."

Brownell, who earned a bachelor's degree from DePauw University and a master's degree from the University of Indianapolis, is the sixth head coach in the 51-year history of the basketball program. His five-year contract with a $160,000 annual base salary received approval from the executive committee of the Board of Trustees Monday.

UNCW, Columbus County Partners Break Ground for Health Center

UNCW and Columbus County residents broke ground for the Bolton Health and Wellness Center May 2.

The center is a partnership among the Towns of Bolton and Sandyfield, the Waccamaw-Siouan Tribal Council and the UNCW School of Nursing to improve the quality of life of residents in this rural area.

"There is a lot of illness in our communities, not only among the elderly, but the young people," said Frank Wilson, mayor of Bolton. "This clinic will be important in providing primary and immediate care for residents who otherwise would have to travel great distances."

U.S. Rep. Mike McIntyre (7th District, N.C.) requested the $167,000 grant for center construction in the 2000 federal budget.

The Town of Bolton, which is donating land and utility connections for the center, will own the facility. UNCW's School of Nursing will lease and operate the center in collaboration with a 15-member advisory board that includes representatives from the four partners. Construction is expected to be completed this fall.

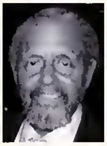
According to Perri Bomar, associate dean for research and community partnerships for the School of Nursing the center will operate in conjunction with other university departments to improve Columbus County residents' access to health care as well as promote wellness behaviors.

"Faculty and students from the nursing school as well as the Cameron School of Business, Watson School of Education, Departments of Sociology, Social Work and HPER and the Gerontology Program will be involved in a variety of service-learning projects," said Bomar.

Commencement Ceremonies Set for May 18; Wilmingtonian to Receive Honorary Degree

In its 63rd commencement ceremony, UNC Wilmington will award 1,176 baccalaureate degrees and 135 graduate degrees in two ceremonies May 18 in Trask Coliseum.

The first ceremony, at 9:30 a.m., will be for 474 undergraduates and 77 master's degree candidates of the Cameron School of Business, Watson School of Education and the School of Nursing. The 1:30 p.m. ceremony will be for 702 undergraduates and 58 master's degree candidates in the College of Arts and Sciences.



Heath

During the afternoon ceremony, Wilmington native and jazz legend Percy Heath will receive an honorary Doctor of Fine Arts Degree. The day before, at 4 p.m., Heath will be recognized with a star at the Celebrate Wilmington! Walk of Fame Plaza at the Cotton Exchange. Following his induction, there will be a public reception for Heath hosted by the Williston Alumni Association at 5 p.m. in the Williston Auditorium at Cape Fear Museum.

Responding to student wishes to walk across the stage and personally receive diplomas from a top university official, there will be no keynote graduation speaker this year.

Graduation Volunteers

Volunteers are still needed to assist with both commencement ceremonies. Those working during the morning ceremony will be needed from 8 a.m. to noon. Afternoon volunteers will be needed from noon to 4 p.m.

A meeting for volunteers will be held at 8 a.m. May 15 in the Warwick Center, Center Stage Cafe. Duties and procedures will be outlined, and danish and coffee will be served. RSVP for this meeting to Mary Crookes at ext. 7505 or by e-mail to crookesm by May 14.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Physics Colloquium

Scott Watson from Brown University will present "Stabilization of Extra Dimensions: A Brane Gas Approach" at 4 p.m. May 20 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served at 3:45 p.m.

Farewell Reception

The Division of Student Affairs will host a farewell reception for Diane Billings, executive assistant to the vice chancellor, from 3:30 to 5 p.m. May 21 in the University Union Living Room. Billings is moving to Raleigh after 14 years of service.

Women's Hoops Camps

The UNCW Women's Basketball Program will sponsor summer day camps June 24-27 and July 29 through Aug. 1 for students ages eight to 15. For more information, contact Elizabeth Lee at ext. 3418.

Retirement Reception

The Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation will host a retirement reception for Charles Lewis and David Miller from 2 to 4 p.m. May 17 in Wagoner Hall, Madeline Suite. Lewis and Miller are retiring after 21 and 37 years of service, respectively.

Fulbright Deadline

August 1 is the deadline to submit applications for 2003-04 Fulbright Program grants. The program offers awards in 140 countries in 37 different disciplines and subdisciplines including gender studies and peace studies. Awards are from two months to an academic year. The majority of the grants are for lecturing, but research awards are available. Foreign language skills are needed in some countries, but most assignments are in English. For more information, call 202-686-7877. Applications are available from the Web site www.cies.org.

Women of Achievement

The annual YWCA Cape Fear Women of Achievement banquet will be held at 6 p.m. May 16 at Wagoner Hall. Tickets are $35 and are on sale through May 10 at the YWCA. For more information, call 799-6820.

Graham Presentation

Nan Graham, English, will present "Cud'n Lizzie Borden" at 10 a.m. May 28 at the CP&L Center in Southport. She will sign copies of her book Turn South at the Next Magnolia from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Southport Community Center.

Men's Basketball Summer Clinics

The UNCW Men's Basketball Program will sponsor summer camps from June 10-14 for participants age eight through high school seniors and July 15-19 for ages eight through eighth grade. For more information, contact Carol Stevens at ext. 3045.

Stepparent Support Group

The Stepparent Support Group will meet from noon to 1:30 p.m. May 16 in the University Union, Room 206. Direct questions to Linda MacRae at ext. 7435.

Landfall Foundation

Applications are available for grants from the Landfall Foundation. Grants range from $500 to $3,000. Application forms and guidelines are on the Web at www.seafunders.org or can be requested in writing to the Landfall Foundation, 1838 Gleneagles Lane, Wilmington, N.C. 28405. The deadline to submit four copies of the application is July 12.

Randall Library Exhibits

Fashion Show Benefit

The 10th annual fashion show and auction to benefit the Domestic Violence Shelter will be held May 17 at the Coastline Convention Center. Tickets are $25 for the luncheon show and silent auction and $35 for the evening show, dinner and live auction. Contact Dianne Matthews at ext. 3065.

Smart Growth Web Site

An educational Web site that is a supplement to the television documentary Paving the American Dream: Southern Cities Shores & Sprawl is now online at www.uncwil.edu/smartgrowth.

The site was designed and developed as a resource tool to engage students in hands-on activities that enhance their understanding of the environmental impact issues and human values that will drive smart growth throughout the Southeast in the next 10 to 25 years.

Paving the American Dream: Southern Cities Shores & Sprawl, a production of UNCW, aired on public television stations in North and South Carolina last year. The film, narrated by Chancellor James R. Leutze, explored issues and possible solutions to traffic congestion, water quality, air pollution, green space depletion, urban sprawl and diminishing quality of life in the Southeastern United States from Maryland to Florida.

The site has learning activities geared for students in grades six through 12. It engages students in hands-on exploration and activities that further their understanding of both the natural systems and human history of the industrialization and development of southern cities, suburbs, industrial centers and coastal areas.

The Web site was designed for UNCW by Michelle Conger, education coordinator, and Kathy O'Rourke, designer, with assistance from educational professionals, Suzanne Micallef, Hoggard High School English teacher, and Kristen Miller, North Carolina special educator.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Political Science Department Initiating Eight-County Quality of Life Conference for Southeastern N.C.

The Political Science Department is hosting a conference for community leaders, policy makers, media and political science scholars and researchers from eight Southeastern North Carolina counties to define and benchmark "quality of life" indicators for the region.

The conference is scheduled for 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. May 17 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. A luncheon starting at 12:30 p.m. is available at no cost; reservations are required by calling Ruth Lawrence ext. 3220. The public is invited to the conference and lunch.

This conference will accomplish two broad purposes, said Milan Dluhy, chair of political science and organizer of the event.

"First, UNCW in conjunction with other local governments and non-profit agencies will assemble a wide range of data describing and detailing the region and its people," said Dluhy. "Eventually, UNCW and others will develop quality of life indicators that will be published annually to measure the progress of the region modeled after the very successful Oregon Benchmarking Project developed over 20 years ago."

He said the conference will also use the data to help identify additional regional problems for agenda setting purposes as well as to pick the most critical indicators for tracking progress.

Summer Ads

Starting with the May 23 issue, the Campus Communique will publish personal ads while the university observes summer hours. Employees can submit ads via e-mail to communique@uncw.edu, fax to ext. 3847 or campus mail to Westside Hall, Room 130. Include contact information. A popular feature each summer, ads will be printed on a space-available basis. Direct questions to ext. 7223

Position Announcement

The Office of International Programs is seeking faculty interested in the position of resident faculty director for the UNCW/University of Swansea study abroad program in spring 2004. Review of applications will begin May 24. For more information, contact Elizabeth Adams or Jim McNab at ext. 3685.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Clayton Ferner, computer science, presented "The Paraguin Compiler – Message-passing Code Generation Using SUIF" at the 2002 IEEE Southeast Conference in Columbia, S.C.

Warren Gulko, information science and operations management, presented the keynote address "Pursuing Excellence in Business and in Life" for UNC Pembroke's Business Visions 2002.

Lawrence Cahoon, biological sciences, received $66,000 in supplemental funding from South Brunswick Water and Sewer Authority for water quality monitoring.

Nelson Reid, social work, received $6,500 from Family and Youth Inc. to develop and implement consumer satisfaction measurements of its programming.

Wei Feng and Xin Lu, mathematics and statistics, received $12,000 from the National Science Foundation to support the fourth International Conference on Dynamical Systems and Differential Equations.

James Reeves, chemistry, received $53,295 in supplemental funding from the University of Colorado at Denver for the project "Anytime, Anywhere Chemistry Experience."

Bettie Glenn and Nancy McLemore, nursing, received $23,393 from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services/Resources and Services Administration for the project "Traineeship: Rural and Urban Family Nurse Practitioner."

Michael Durako, biological sciences and CMS, received $127,825 from the U.S. Department of the Interior and U.S. Geological Survey from the Florida Bay Fish Habitat Assessment Program.

John Whitchead, economics and finance, received $52,274 from Ohio State University for the project "Assessing the Stability of Marine Recreational Resource Values Across Space and Time."

James Leutze, chancellor, participated in the U.S. Department of Defense Joint Civilian Orientation Conference. During the week-long program, conference invitees learned about U.S. military personnel and equipment and national defense strategies.

Evgeny Dafner, CMS, co-wrote the oral presentation "Total Organic Carbon Distribution and Bacterial Cycling Across a Geostrophic Front in the Mediterranean Sea: Implications for the Western Basin Carbon Cycle" given at the XXVII General Assembly of European Geophysical Society in Nice, France. His co-authors were Richard Sempere, France Van Wambeke and Micheline Bianchi from Laboratoire de Microbiologie Marine, Université de la Mediterranée - Campus de Luminy, Marseille; Dominique Lefevre from Laboratoire d'Océanologie Biologique, Centre d'Océanologie de Marseille, Université de la Mediterranée; and François Bruyant and Louis Prieur from Laboratoire d'Océanographie de Villefranche, Observatoire Océanologique, Villefranche-sur-Mer, France. Dafner also co-presented the poster "Fluxes of CO_2 Between the Atmosphere and the Ocean during POMME Project in the North-East Atlantic Ocean." His co-authors were Magdalena Santana-Casiano and Melchor González Dávila from Universidad de Las Palmas and Liliane Merlivat from the Université Paris.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

Firewall Update

Last month, the Department of Computing Services in the Information Technology Systems Division announced plans to implement a firewall as an additional layer of security to protect the campus data network against hackers and intruders. This implementation is scheduled for the weekend of May 24-27 starting at 6 p.m. Friday. During installation, there will be periods of instability and interruptions when accessing the Internet as well as campus resources such as e-mail or the VMScluster.

Faculty and staff who administer a computing resource that requires access from off campus or who use PCAnywhere must complete the Access to Campus Computing Resources from Off Campus Form (www.uncwil.edu/compserv/nss/firewall_feedback_form.doc). Return forms to Jeff Hunnicut by May 13. Faculty and staff who have concerns regarding restrictions that the firewall could have on their ability to perform their jobs should contact computing services at ext. 3648.

Retirement Receptions

The School of Nursing will host a retirement reception for Doretha Stone from 4 to 6 p.m. May 13 in the Hoggard Hall Lobby. Stone is retiring after 26 years of service.

The Offices of the Vice Chancellor of Academic Affairs and Summer School will host a retirement reception for David Miller, director of summer school, from 3 to 5 p.m. May 30 in the University Union Living Room. Miller is retiring after 37 years of service.

Central Stores

Central stores will continue to process orders for university offices and departments under the provisions outlined by the chancellor's budget notice. Purchases through June 30 using general funds will be charged to next year's fiscal budget.

Randall Library Intersession and Summer Hours

Randall Library will observe the following intersession schedule:

May 10	8 a.m. to 5 p.m.
May 11-12	Closed
May 13-16	8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

During summer hours, the library will be open:

Monday – Thursday	7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.
Friday	7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Saturday	10 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Sunday	1 to 10 p.m.

Electronic Reserves

Faculty who assign articles or book chapters as required reading for courses can make them available online through Randall Library's Electronic Reserve System. Submit requests now for Summer I courses and by June 7 for Summer Session II. Fall semester requests are due by July 19.

E-mail the course calendar and complete bibliographic reference for each required reading to John Osinski at osinskij. For materials that are unavailable through the library's collection, provide a clean copy along with the bibliographic reference. Direct questions to ext. 7312 or visit the Web site library.uncwil.edu/faqresfac.htm.

Discount Coupons

Coupons for $7 off the admission price to King's Dominion are available in human resources, 5051 New Centre Drive. There are also coupons to purchase four admissions tickets to Carowinds for $79.99. To request coupons, call ext. 3160.

Work Assistant Positions

Departments hiring students for the summer should list work assistant positions with career services. E-mail announcements to Frances Carr at carrf or submit via the Web at www.uncwil.edu/stuaff/career. Direct questions to ext. 3174.

Rec Center Summer Hours

The Student Recreation Center will observe the following schedule during summer hours:

Monday – Thursday	8 a.m. to 8 p.m.
Friday	8 a.m. to 2 p.m.
Saturday	noon to 4 p.m.
Sunday	4 to 8 p.m.

Recreational Swim

Due to installation of air conditioning in the Trask Natatorium, the pool will be closed through June 2.

Shared Leave

David Crouch and Joseph Jernigan, physical plant; Keri Franklin, auxiliary services; and Lori Smith, university police, need shared leave donations. Send vacation leave donations to Pam Christie in human resources.

Prescription Drugs

The prescription drug portion of the State Health Plan is handled by AdvancePCS, not the claim processing contractor Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina. Direct questions concerning prescription drugs to 888-693-7750.

For general information such as the preferred drug list, claims forms and mail order pharmacy, check the Web site http://statehealthplan.state.nc.us/.

Welcome

Please welcome the following new employees: Chris Fegela, registrar's office; Jamie Mathews and Dotty McKenna, admissions; and Justin Varella, university police.

CAMPUS COMMUNIQUE

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

University Relations Vol. XXXI, No. 41 May 16, 2002 Phillip Brown, editor

UNCW Granted Authorization to Offer Inaugural Doctorate

At its meeting in Chapel Hill May 10, the UNC Board of Governors authorized the University of North Carolina at Wilmington to grant the Ph.D. in Marine Biology, the only such degree in the state and one of only two on the East Coast.

This is the first doctorate to be authorized for UNC Wilmington, although a cooperative Ph.D. in Marine Science has been offered with N.C. State University since 1990. The program is expected to accept students for fall semester 2002.

"Approval of the doctoral program in marine biology is the crowning achievement and ultimate recognition for the long and dedicated efforts by the faculty," said John Cavanaugh, provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs. "This action is evidence that UNCW's, the president's, the board of governors', and the state's investments in our marine programs here have paid off. The world class faculty and facilities will enable UNCW to build a top-ranked doctoral program that is competitive with the finest programs in the country."

The major emphasis of this new degree program will be doctoral training in the four major areas that encompass modern marine biology: coastal and estuarine biology, crustacean biology, marine mammalogy and molecular genetics and systematics of marine organisms. In essence, it will be a doctoral program in biology as applies to organisms that live in estuarine and marine environments.

With its immediate access to marine environments, UNCW is uniquely positioned to provide doctoral training in marine biology. Its undergraduate marine biology program, offered through the Department of Biological Sciences, is ranked fifth in the nation by The Gourman Report. The department also has extensive experience in marine biology graduate education, having graduated 169 Master of Science in Marine Biology students since 1982 and six doctoral students in the cooperative Ph.D. program with NCSU.

Since its inclusion in the UNC system in 1969, UNCW's mission has been focused on strengthening and enhancing the state's leadership in marine studies. The establishment of a Ph.D. program in marine biology will do that as well as provide a basis for increased cooperation among those institutions engaged in marine science research.

This is UNCW's first doctoral program; however, the university's primary mission will continue to focus on undergraduate and master's level education. Having this Ph.D. program will allow UNCW to expand its ability to recruit and retain high quality faculty and will benefit all the programs within the Department of Biological Sciences.

Aquarius Helping Train NASA Astronauts

During a nine-day mission which started May 13, four NASA astronauts will live underwater using Aquarius as a space analog for working and training under environmental and operational conditions that are similar to many of the challenges faced in outer space.

"The innerspace station (Aquarius) provides a remarkably similar environment to that of the International Space Station (ISS)," said Steven Miller, NURC/UNCW director. "Aquarius is similar in size to modules of the ISS, and like NASA astronauts, Aquarius aquanauts coordinate operations and conduct experiments with guidance from a distant mission control center. Also like astronauts, aquanauts remain isolated from the outside world for the duration of their mission because saturation diving techniques require a lengthy decompression before surfacing is allowed."

Aquarius, an underwater laboratory where scientists live and work on the seafloor for extended periods using a special technique called saturation diving, is operated by UNCW. The 12 x 43-foot lab, owned by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, is located in the Florida Keys National Marine Sanctuary, 60 feet underwater and 3.5 miles offshore.

According to Miller, the isolation, surrounded by an extreme environment, is important for studies related to behavior and physiology. In particular, the NASA Aquarius experience will be used to help build crew and mission control communication techniques and will provide leadership and interpersonal skills training to

Wicklund to Receive Honorary Degree

Robert Wicklund, director of federal programs, will receive an honorary doctorate from Lebanon College, Lebanon, N.H., at the institution's June 1 commencement. The degree recognizes his lifetime of work in marine science and environmental issues. Wicklund, who will deliver the address "A Healthy Environment is Good for Business," was also elected to the college's board of directors.

Note of Appreciation

John and MaLou Stokes, English and athletics, express their appreciation for the "calls, e-mails, flowers, cards and especially the prayers" during their two-month stay in Houston while John received a stem cell transplant.

"Friends really helped during a tough time," said MaLou Stokes. "We're back home, and John's doing great."

Acknowledgment

The Division of Student Affairs would like to acknowledge that Stanley L. Colbert, distinguished visiting professor, creative writing, was inadvertently left out of the Contributions to Student Life insert that was included in the May 2 edition of the Campus Communique.

Fulbright Deadline

August 1 is the deadline to submit applications for 2003-04 Fulbright Program grants. The program offers awards in 140 countries in 37 different disciplines and sub-disciplines including gender studies and peace studies. Awards are from two months to an academic year. The majority of the grants are for lecturing, but research awards are available. Foreign language skills are needed in some countries, but most assignments are in English. For more information, call 202-686-7877. Applications are available from the Web site www.cies.org.

Girl's Soccer Camps

The UNCW Women's Soccer Program will hold a junior day camp for girls ages six to 14. This camp, which will operate from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. June 24-28, costs $220. The program will also sponsor a senior camp for ages 10 to 18 from 9 a.m. to 7:45 p.m. July 20-24. The cost is $415 for residential campers and $315 for commuters.

Daughters of UNCW employees will receive a $25 discount. Team discounts are also available. For a brochure, call Paul Cairney at ext. 3932.

Four Graduate Leadership Wilmington Program

Jane Bailey, facilities; Cathy Barlow, dean, Watson School of Education; Milan Dluhy, chair, political science; and Kathy McDaniel, public service and continuing studies; were among the 25 graduates of the Class of 2002 of the Leadership Wilmington Program.

Sponsored by the Division for Public Service and Continuing Studies and the Greater Wilmington Chamber Foundation, Leadership Wilmington was developed to provide creative leaders for the community by educating participants about the region. They are also encouraged to get involved with the community.

This year's class assisted with the relocation of Good Shepherd Ministries and created a marketing plan for Wilmington's faith communities.

Physics Colloquium

Scott Watson from Brown University will present "Stabilization of Extra Dimensions: A Brane Gas Approach" at 4 p.m. May 20 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served at 3:45 p.m.

Farewell Reception

The Division of Student Affairs will host a farewell reception for Diane Billings, executive assistant to the vice chancellor, from 3:30 to 5 p.m. May 21 in the University Union Living Room.

Student Affairs Awards

Employees in the Division of Student Affairs were recognized for their service during the division's annual awards program May 15. James Coston, Terry Curran, Jim Dragna, Judy Gale, Peggy Hendrix and Tina Strickland were honored for five years of outstanding service. Lee Pridgen, Phillip Sharp and Heather Smith were recognized for 10 years of service and Judy Bowers for 15 years.

The Office of Career Services was named Outstanding Team, and "The Naked Truth: Body Image Exposed" by Nicole Hinson and Kayj Nash Okine received the Innovative Program Award. Andrea Dorow, transition programs, won the Outstanding Service Award, and Kayj Nash Okine, student development services, was named Outstanding Achiever. Computing consultant Marvin Jones received the Gold Brick Award for outstanding service to peers.

Note of Appreciation

Landscape services would like to thank Courtney Hackney, biological sciences, and E. Caroline Wicks, UNCW ECO Club, for their assistance in the planting project on the Campus Commons.

Hackney, Wicks and landscape services set 1,000 semi-aquatic plants along the northeast section of the commons pond waterline. These plants continue the natural or native plant theme for the commons and will provide both educational and aesthetic additions to the area. Karen Tobiassen, horticultural supervisor, selected the plants with guidance from Hackney.

Robert Warren, grounds superintendent, said landscape services "looks forward to continued student and faculty involvement with the campus landscape."

Women's Basketball Camps

The UNCW Women's Basketball Program will sponsor summer day camps June 24-27 and July 29 through Aug. 1 for students ages eight to 15. For more information, contact Elizabeth Lee at ext. 3418.

everyone involved.

NASA will monitor the progress of the astronaut crew from the Johnson Space Center in real-time. Underwater communications equipment and cameras will provide interactive capability between the aquanauts and NASA staff in Houston. A number of tasks performed inside Aquarius are designed to simulate similar functions to be performed in space.

Position Announcement

The Office of International Programs is seeking faculty interested in the position of resident faculty director for the UNCW/University of Swansea study abroad program in spring 2004.

To apply, send a curriculum vitae, along with a cover letter and names of two references to University of Wales Swansea Search Committee, International Programs, University Union, Room 103A. Review of applications will begin May 24.

For more information, contact Elizabeth Adams or Jim McNab at ext. 3685.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Richard Huber, curricular studies, received $3,500 from N.C. Sea Grant for the Ocean View Project.

Lavonne Adams, creative writing, had the poem "The Way Nature Works" published in the current issue of The Briar Cliff Review.

Mike Bradley, SBTDC, was quoted in an article "Wind at Your Back" published in this month's North Carolina Magazine. The article focuses on the assistance available to N.C. businesses and provides examples in the marine industry.

Martin Posey and Troy Alphin, biological sciences and CMS, received $47,244 from N.C. Sea Grant for the project "Oyster Reefs as Fisheries Habitat: The Influence of Edge Characteristics and Vertical Complexity."

Robert Kieber, Joan Willey and Stephen Skrabal, chemistry, received $61,360 from N.C. Sea Grant for the project "Increasing Ammonium Concentrations in the Cape Fear River Estuary: Where Is It Coming From?"

Steven Miller, NURC, received $290,000 in supplemental funding from Emerson Associates for the project "Coral Reef Research, Monitoring and Education in the Florida Keys National Marine Sanctuary.

Steven Dworkin, psychology, received $7,420 from the California Pacific Medical Center Research Institute for the project "Non-Opioid Dyna: Molecular/Cellular/Physiological Studies."

OFFICIAL NOTICES

Inventory Reminder

Verified and approved fixed asset inventory printouts are due to Carol Sgambati by May 31.

Corrections

Graduates will receive individual acknowledgments from senior university administrators during commencement May 18. Diplomas will be presented at departmental receptions following the formal ceremonies.

Jamie Matthews should have been welcomed as a new employee in the Information Technology Systems Division in the May 9 Campus Communique.

Summer Shipping

During summer hours, departments sending packages by UPS or Federal Express should call warehouse services by 9 a.m. for pickup and shipment on Fridays. For Monday through Thursday, the time remains 2:30 p.m. Shipments after these times should be delivered to warehouse receiving. Direct questions to ext. 3181.

Weight Watchers

The UNCW Weight Watchers at Work Program will begin a new 15-week session May 22. The fee is $159 for the session, and it can be paid in three installments. The group meets at noon Wednesdays in the James Hall conference room.

Directory Update

The telephone extensions for Bonnie Clements and Pat Kline, physical plant, have changed. Clements' extension is 3105; Kline is at ext. 3100.

UNCW Alumni Association Establishes Award to Honor Faculty

To recognize faculty who have made a difference in the lives of their students, the UNCW Alumni Association Past Chairs' Council has established the Distinguished Faculty Award.

"We all have had professors along the way who had a positive influence in our lives," said Judge Becky Blackmore '75, who heads up the council. "They are not being recognized anywhere else, and this is a way we could honor them that would be unique to our group."

The council is seeking nominations for the award that will be presented at convocation in August. The deadline for nominations, which may be submitted by UNCW faculty or staff, alumni, students or community members, is July 15.

Nominees must be/or have been a full-time faculty member with a minimum of seven years of service to Wilmington College and/or UNCW. The award may be given posthumously. Recipients will receive a $500 cash award and a medallion.

Nominators must describe ways the faculty member supported students beyond the walls of the classroom such as adviser, reference, mentor or coach in regard to scholarship, leadership or other significant ways. They must describe examples of the individual's research and creativity, contributions to the field of study/academia, committee service, Faculty Senate or other leadership roles.

Nominators must give examples of the faculty member's time, talent and resources given back to the region and beyond. Initiatives that were created or expanded should be listed and described. Other relevant supporting documentation to accurately depict the significance of the nominee for this award can be included with the nomination.

Nomination forms can be downloaded in pdf format from the alumni association Web site, www.uncwil.edu/alumni. Letters, limited to two pages in length, must indicate how the nominee meets the criteria set forth. Send nominations to Patricia Smith, executive director, UNCW Alumni Association, Wise Alumni House.

International Math Conference at UNCW

The Department of Mathematics and Statistics is hosting the fourth International Conference on Dynamical Systems and Differential Equations May 24-27.

Chancellor James R. Leutze will welcome the 450 attendees who represent more than 40 countries during the conference's opening ceremony at 9:30 a.m. Friday in Cameron Hall Auditorium. More information on the conference is available on the Web at www.uncwil.edu/mathconf/.

Claude Howell to Get Star on Walk of Fame

Claude Howell, UNCW Art Department founder, will receive a star on the Celebrate Wilmington! Walk of Fame at 2 p.m. June 2 at the walk plaza located near the Cotton Exchange.

Howell's posthumous induction coincides with the 5 p.m. premiere of a 20-minute documentary about his life and artwork created by the Louise Cameron Art Museum.

A Wilmington native who was born in 1915, Howell observed, painted and wrote about the coastal lifestyle. His almost 3,000 numbered paintings and drawings exhibit his deep interest in the North Carolina coast and the activities that take place here. Howell's work is characterized by his use of faded azalea pinks, ocean blues and atmospheric grays and greens.

A graduate of New Hanover High School, Howell began a 24-year career as a stenographer with Atlantic Coast Railroad during the Depression. Working by day and painting by night, Howell entered his first juried North Carolina Artists show in 1937. Three years later, at the same show, his "Winter Landscape" won a purchase award from IBM, and one of his paintings was displayed at the New York World's Fair. More than 60 of Howell's paintings are part of public collections at museums such as Atlanta's High Museum, the Weatherspoon Art Gallery in Greensboro, the Fayetteville Museum of Art, Cape Fear Museum and Cameron Art Museum.

While working for the railroad, Howell began teaching night classes at Wilmington College (now University of North Carolina at Wilmington) in 1953. Classes expanded, and two years later he founded and chaired the Art Department for 25 years until his retirement.

Throughout his career, Howell received numerous awards including an honorary Doctor of Humanities Degree from Wake Forest University in 1975. UNCW also awarded him an honorary degree in 1983, and in 1985 Howell received the N.C. Award in the Arts for his contributions as a painter and educator.

Young Writer's Workshop

The Creative Writing Department will hold its inaugural Young Writers' Workshop for high school students June 25-28.

This four-day workshop will provide intensive writing study and interaction with faculty and graduate students in the department. Designed to meet the needs of young writers of varying abilities and experience levels, the program is geared toward students in grades 10 to 12. Registration is on a first-come, first-served basis.

The workshop fee is $250 and covers tuition, on-campus housing and three meals daily. For commuters, the cost is $175 and includes tuition and three meals daily. The registration deadline is May 31.

Workshop participants will attend lectures on the craft of writing presented by Mark Cox, Philip Gerard, Dave Monahan and Sarah Messer. There will also be writing workshops and exercise sessions where students will receive individual attention and advice on writing. For more information, call ext. 7063.

Hawk's Nest Buffet

The Hawk's Nest food court will be open from 7:15 to 10:30 a.m. for regular service May 24. From 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., a buffet will be offered in the Glassroom. The cost will be $5.88.

This schedule is to accommodate attendees of the International Math Conference.

Fulbright Deadline

August 1 is the deadline to submit applications for 2003-04 Fulbright Program grants. The program offers awards in 140 countries in 37 different disciplines and sub-disciplines including gender studies and peace studies. Awards range from two months to an academic year. The majority of the grants are for lecturing, but research awards are available. Foreign language skills are needed in some countries, but most assignments are in English. For more information, call 202-686-7877. Applications are available from the Web site www.cies.org.

Fantail Film Festival

Philip Furia, film studies and creative writing, will host the screening of four Hollywood musicals as part of the Fabulous 50 Cents Fantail Film Festival aboard the USS North Carolina Battleship Memorial.

The festival will run Fridays June 7-28 and will feature films starring Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. All screenings will start at 8:30 p.m. Films will be shown on an outdoor screen on the ship's deck. In case of rain, movies will be shown in the visitor center auditorium. Tickets are 50 cents per person per film. The schedule of movies is listed below.

- June 7 – Top Hat

This 1935 musical revolving around mistaken identity was nominated for a Best Picture Academy Award. It features Irving Berlin's Cheek to Cheek, which was nominated for Best Song.

- June 14 – Swing Time

- June 21 – Shall We Dance

In this 1937 film, the dance team of Astaire and Rogers are not who they say they are. Astaire is posing as a Russian ballet dancer, and Rogers is "an equally phony broad" who wants to marry into society. It features the Gershwin works Let's Call the Whole Thing Off and They Can't Take That Away from Me, which was nominated for Best Song.

- June 28 – Follow the Fleet

This 1936 musical has sailors Fred Astaire and Randolph Scott romancing sisters Ginger Rogers and Harriet Hilliard. Directed by Mark Sandrich, the film features Berlin's Let's Face the Music and Dance and We Saw the Sea.

Nursing Grad Wins Award

Martin Camacho received an Advanced Nurse Traineeship Award from the University of Pennsylvania School of Nursing.

Camacho, who was selected from a pool of 25 applicants for this $15,000 federal grant, plans to pursue his master's degree in Pennsylvania's Adult Acute Care Nurse Practitioner Program.

Camacho

According to Denise Coulter, associate director of financial aid at the University of Pennsylvania, Camacho's selection was based upon his essay that "reflected his compassion for working with and reaching out to underserved populations."

Camacho credited UNCW's nursing faculty for helping enhance his community involvement.

"Prior to coming to UNCW, I had a high level of volunteer experience. Every opportunity that I undertook, from serving as the (nursing) school's student government representative to conducting food drives for Good Shepherd House, I knew the school supported me," said Camacho.

Prior to his enrollment at UNCW, Camacho served as a hospital corpsman in the U.S. Navy. During his undergraduate career, he received numerous scholarships and awards including the UNCW Alumni Association and Ministering Circle Scholarships, UNCW Leadership Excellence Award, Senior Medallion, UNCW School of Nursing Outstanding Minority Student Leader Award and the Outstanding Research Award from Sigma Theta Tau, the international nursing honor society.

Pennsylvania's School of Nursing is among the best in the country. It tied for second place in the U.S. News & World Report survey of graduate schools for 2001.

Information Technology Systems Planning to Update Administrative Software

The Information Technology Systems Division is in the initial stages of updating computer software applications that control the university's financial, student, alumni and employee records.

"ITSD is identifying hardware, software, personnel, training and consulting requirements to migrate the university from SCT Plus2000 to SCT Banner," said Liz Hosier, director of application services. "We are working with business affairs, academic affairs, university advancement and human resources to develop a realistic migration strategy for this endeavor."

Hosier said switching to Banner's suite of applications for finance, financial aid, student records, HR and alumni is a four- to five-year effort, but the current SCT Plus2000 systems no longer provide the flexibility and expansion capabilities required of a growing university. SCT is a company that specializes in e-business and enterprise software and information technology services to clients in education, the energy and utility industry and process manufacturing and distribution.

"With the Web, there is the expectation that services will be available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Banner will provide this capability," said Hosier.

Students currently are limited to SEAWEB from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. With SEAWEB, which is part of Plus2000, students can log on and register for courses as well as complete other academic-related tasks, said Hosier adding faculty and advisers are also able to access student information.

"Students are on the Web all hours of the day and night. They expect the same 24-hour access from SEAWEB," said Hosier.

The university's migration to Banner will touch virtually everyone on campus, said Hosier. Banner Student will enable faculty to enter grades and check course information from anywhere at anytime. Physical plant personnel as with all employees will be able to access and change personal information using Banner HR software.

UNCW's move to Banner software is in conjunction with the majority of constituent institutions in the UNC system.

ITSD Vice Chancellor Robert Tyndall is chair of the UNC Office of the President Shared Services Alliance Board. He drafted a "statement of strategic intent" for all UNC institutions to migrate to Banner. This statement, which was endorsed by nearly all 16 schools, has enabled the UNC system to save $1.4 million in migration costs. Tyndall said this system-wide approach to purchasing will benefit all institutions but for UNCW it will save hundreds of thousands of dollars in the future.

Hosier along with more than 30 representatives from UNCW joined colleagues from other UNC institutions for the SCT Banner presentations in Greensboro in February. ITSD also sponsored a demonstration of Banner Finance at UNCW for 50 representatives from Elizabeth City State University, UNC Pembroke and East Carolina University.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Laela Sayigh, Ann Pabst, William McLellan, Shelly Etnier, Erin Meagher and Alessandro Bocconcelli, biological sciences and CMS, attended the SEAMAMMS conference with the following graduate or undergraduate students: Michelle Barbieri, Julie Johnson, Genevieve Haviland, Kim Hoover, Debi Koster, Michele Lamping, Carter Morrissette, Gretchen Newman, D. J. Struntz, Mary Tress, Kim Urian and Nikki Vollmer. At the conference, Etnier, Haviland, Koster, Struntz and Urian gave oral presentations, and Barbieri and Newman gave poster presentations. Former undergraduates Lynne Williams and Jessica Maher gave oral presentations on honors work from last year. Haviland won Best Student Oral Presentation, and Barbieri won honorable mention in the undergraduate poster presentation category.

Nancy Grindlay, Jack Hall, Bill Harris, Patricia Kelley, Lynn Leonard, earth sciences, and Stephen Skrabal, chemistry, attended the annual Southeastern/North-central section meeting of the Geological Society of America in Lexington, Ky., where Grindlay, Leonard and graduate student Matthew Head presented "Using High-Resolution Sidescan Sonar to Map and Monitor Sedimentary Features at 23-Mile Site, Onslow Bay, N.C." At the same meeting, Hall, Kelley and Thor Hansen from Western Washington University presented "Middle School Teacher Training to Enhance Science Curricula and Develop a National Research Database: A Win-Win Situation." Kelley also presented "Controversy in the Classroom: Teaching Paleontology in a Culture that Views Evolution and Religion as Incompatible" and "Paleoecology of the Waccamaw Formation (Plio-Pleistocene) near Old Dock, Columbus County, N.C." with graduate students Michael Crump, John Huntley, Heyward Key, Kimberley Nelson and Jessica Pierson. Harris, Skrabal and graduate student Tina Roberts presented "Characterization of Nutrients and Trace Metals in the Pee Dee Sand and Castle Hayne Limestone Aquifers: New Hanover County, Southeastern N.C." Other student presentations included Crump's "The Relation Between a Daily Climatic Water Budget and Water Levels on San Salvador Island, Bahamas" and "Quantitative Shoreline Change Analysis of the Georgia Coast from Aerial photography" by David Bush, Clark Alexander, Anthony Foyle, Susan Langley, Vernon Henry and Chester Jackson.

Provost Cavanaugh Named President of University of West Florida

John C. Cavanaugh, provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs, was named president of the University of West Florida (UWF) May 24.

"While UNC Wilmington will be sorry to see him go and we will miss his visionary leadership, we are all very pleased for John that he has been picked for the presidency of the University of West Florida," said Chancellor James R. Leutze. "His selection for this prestigious position validates the attributes that we saw in him when we named him provost. The university wishes him and (his wife) Patrice the very best in their new endeavor."

Cavanaugh said he was privileged to have had the opportunity to be at UNCW for the past three years.

"UNCW is an excellent university, and I have been very fortunate to have worked with the many individuals who shaped and created it," said Cavanaugh. "The faculty and staff are world class, and the university will certainly remain in fine hands with so many wonderful people. I will keep a close eye on future developments as UNCW continues to lead other southern comprehensive universities."

The Florida Board of Education must authorize Cavanaugh's selection, which was approved by the UWF Board of Trustees. Cavanaugh, who expects to assume his new duties July 1, will continue as provost until an interim successor is named. UNCW plans to conduct a nationwide search to hire a permanent replacement.

Alina Szmant, biological sciences and CMS, received $95,932 in supplemental federal funding from the University of Miami and the Environmental Protection Agency for research on nutrient cycling and coral reefs.

Thomas Shafer, biological sciences, and Jeffrey Wright, chemistry and CMS, received $150,000 from the UNC Office of the President for genomic research on the blue crab Callinectes sapidus.

Lynn Leonard, earth sciences and CMS, received $70,000 from Florida International University for the project "The Influence of Flow Dynamics and Particle Dispersion on the Everglades Landscape."

William Cleary, earth sciences and CMS, received $9,960 from N.C. Sea Grant for field monitoring of the Mason Inlet relocation.

Nelson Reid, social work, received $12,500 from Eastern North Carolina Poverty Committee to develop and implement a poverty information project.

Alumni to Honor Faculty; Award Nominees Sought

To recognize faculty who have made a difference in the lives of their students, the UNCW Alumni Association Past Chairs' Council has established the Distinguished Faculty Award.

The council is seeking nominations for the award that will be presented at convocation in August. The deadline for nominations, which may be submitted by UNCW faculty or staff, alumni, students or community members, is July 15.

Nominees must be/or have been a full-time faculty member with a minimum of seven years of service to Wilmington College and/or UNCW. The award may be given posthumously. The recipient will receive a $500 cash award and a medallion.

Nominators must describe ways the faculty member supported students beyond the walls of the classroom such as advisor, reference, mentor, or coach in regard to scholarship, leadership or other significant ways. They must describe examples of the individual's research and creativity, contributions to the field of study/academia, committee service, Faculty Senate or other leadership roles.

Nominators must give examples of the faculty member's time, talent and resources given back to the region and beyond. Initiatives that were created or expanded should be listed and described. Other relevant supporting documentation to accurately depict the significance of the nominee for this award can be included with the nomination.

Nomination forms can be downloaded in PDF format from the alumni association Web site, www.uncwil.edu/alumni. Letters, limited to two pages in length, must indicate how the nominee meets the criteria set forth. Send nominations to Patricia Smith, Wise Alumni House, by fax at ext. 2685 or e-mail smithpc@uncw.edu.

UNC Wilmington Launches Film South Project Partnership

Work is underway on the first film of an innovative community/university partnership and economic development collaboration, the Film South Project.

"Film South Project will consist of extraordinary student participation in the production of quality films based on the literary works of celebrated regional writers," said Chancellor James R. Leutze in announcing the partnership. The films will be directed by renowned veteran directors who will be brought to the university as distinguished visiting professors for the purposes of the program.

This first movie, based on the prize-winning novella Poachers by southern Alabama mystery writer Tom Franklin, will be directed by Lamont Johnson. His work includes Last American Hero, "The Junior Johnson Story" with Jeff Bridges, Valerie Perrine and Ned Beatty; Execution of Private Slovik with Martin Sheen and Gary Busey; and the television specials Wallenburg – A Hero's Story and Gore Vidal's Lincoln.

Film South is the brainchild of documentary filmmaker, feature film writer and director Fleming B. "Tex" Fuller who brought the idea to UNCW's Film Studies and Creative Writing programs, EUE Screen Gems Studios, the Wilmington Film Commission and other investors. Fuller is a native North Carolinian and 1967 graduate of UNC Chapel Hill.

Designed to promote the "Southern experience through film," the project will create a unique educational experience for UNCW students, said Fuller.

According to Leutze, public universities can no longer count on the General Assembly to fund innovative new educational programs.

"This collaboration is indicative of the type of creative partnerships UNCW will be forming to continue to enhance the education we offer our students and to help stimulate the economy of the region we serve," Leutze said.

UNCW Graduate Wins Fulbright to France

Emily Burnett, daughter of Hank and Allison Burnett of Raleigh and spring 2002 UNCW graduate, won a Fulbright French Government Teaching Assistantship to spend 2002-03 teaching in a French school.

Burnett

These Fulbright grants allow students to spend 10 months in France, where they become fully integrated into the life of a French school and community. Assistants may teach at the elementary, middle or high school level. A double major in international business and French, Burnett spent the summer of 2001 studying both subjects at CESEM-Mediterrannée in Marseille, France. She will teach elementary school in the Aix Marseille Academy.

Burnett received the 2001-02 Most Outstanding Student in International Business Award from the Cameron School of Business. She said her interest in French was sparked by her eighth grade French teacher, Maria Bonito, who set up an exchange program for the class with a school outside of Paris. Burnett also thanked UNCW professor Alison Murray, "who has been wonderful in helping me fulfill my dream of returning to France."

"Emily has done excellent work at UNCW," said Murray, assistant professor of French. "With her mastery of the language, along with her strong spirit, personal initiative, and sense of adventure, she will be an asset to the program wherever she is placed. I think the year will be a wonderful experience for her."

Race Unity Day to Feature Concert by Doc Holladay

Baritone saxophonist Marvin "Doc" Holladay is among the featured performers for the 32nd annual Race Unity Day Festival scheduled for noon to 4 p.m. June 8 on the Campus Commons. This free, non-alcohol event is open to the public; it is cosponsored by The Bahá'í of Wilmington, YWCA and the UNCW Office of Campus Diversity.

The festival, which will feature live music and performing arts, is held each June to focus attention on what members of the Bahá'í faith believe is the most challenging moral issue facing this country - racial prejudice. In addition to Holladay, other performances include the Community Boys and Girls Drum and Drill Team, 5678 Dance, the Love

Stepparent Support

The stepparent support group will meet at noon June 20 in the University Union, Room103B. Direct questions to Linda MacRae at ext. 7435 or e-mail macrael.

Ed Lab Tutoring

Does your child need help with reading and writing? The Education Lab in the Watson School of Education is offering tutoring in reading/language arts to children in grades K-6.

College students from the Ed Lab will work one-on-one with children for 75-minute sessions Monday through Thursday, July 1 through July 25. The fee is $112.50, which includes free diagnostic testing.

For more information, call ext. 3633.

Wise House Seeking Books

The Office of Alumni Relations is seeking donation of hardbound books of any size to display in the eight bookcases of the Grand Room in the Wise Alumni House. Faculty and staff interested in supporting this effort to enhance the house's décor should contact Pat Smith at ext. 2681.

Artwork on Display

"CommonVisions: Photographic Explorations of Unity in Diversity" will be on display through Aug. 5 in the University Union Living Room.

Based in Asheboro, the CommonVisions Project involved members of various racial and ethnic backgrounds who took photographs for the display using disposable 35mm cameras.

There will be an opening reception for the exhibit from 1 to 3 p.m. June 8 in conjunction with the Race Unity Day observance.

Student artworks of various mediums are on display in the Warwick Center Lobby. A closing reception to honor the artists is scheduled for 5 to 7 p.m. Aug. 29.

Public Service to Assist Local Arts Promotion

With the closing of the Arts Council of the Lower Cape Fear May 31, UNC Wilmington will assist regional artists with promoting their events and programs through an electronic community calendar and E-Media, both housed on the SpinNC.org's Web site www.spinnc.org/emedia.

"This is an excellent example of how the university can work with area non-profits during these difficult times," said H. E. "Hunter" Thompson Jr., director of community outreach services in the Division for Public Service and Continuing Studies. "The Arts Council, as a development partner, worked with SpinNC.org since 1996 and fostered the development of the arts community in southeastern North Carolina. SpinNC.org aided in these efforts by promoting arts events through the electronic community calendar."

SpinNC.org is a community network for southeastern North Carolina funded through grants and public/private partnerships. Through the calendar and E-Media, artists can promote their exhibits, gallery openings, programs and events. A free service, E-Media distributes electronic press releases to more than 29 local and regional media outlets, including the Wilmington Star News, The News and Observer, the Daily News in Jacksonville and the Fayetteville News and Observer. Area arts events and community arts programs also will be added to SpinNC.org's Community Calendar.

Supercomputer Seminar

The Information Technology Systems Division hosted a supercomputer seminar May 24 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. Thom Dunning, director of the N.C. Supercomputing Center, and Robert Tyndall, ITSD vice chancellor, led discussions on how high performance computing enabled scientific discovery.

UNC system faculty and students have access to the supercomputing center through the N.C. Research and Education Network. Chemistry professor Ned Martin is a primary user of these resources from UNCW. He conducts similation modeling of NMR Spectra.

Piano Sale Set for June 16

The Music Department will host a piano sale from noon to 6 p.m. June 16 in Kenan Hall, Room 114. Instruments for sale are part of an institutional loan program whereby the department uses pianos for instructional purposes. The sale will include grand pianos, baby grand pianos, consoles, spinets and high-level digital pianos. For more information, call 395-6873.

Common Reading Program

The Campus Activities and Involvement Center encourages faculty and staff to utilize the Common Reading Program's selection of The Sunflower by Simon Wiesenthal in appropriate classes, seminars and activities. NPR commentator Bruce Feiler will present "Jews, Christians and Muslims: Unity and Discord Among the Children of Abraham" at 7 p.m. Sept. 30 as part of the Leadership Lecture Series and the Common Reading Program. For more information, call ext. 7600. An insert on the program is available in PDF format to download from the Web at www.uncwil.edu/news/communique/common_reading_program.pdf.

Landfall Foundation

The Landfall Foundation is accepting applications for grants that range from $500 to $3,000. Application forms and guidelines are on the Web at www.seafunders.org or can be requested in writing to the Landfall Foundation, 1838 Gleneagles Lane, Wilmington, N.C. 28405. The deadline to submit four copies of the application is July 12.

Fantail Film Festival

Philip Furia, film studies and creative writing, will host the screening of four Hollywood musicals as part of the Fabulous 50 Cents Fantail Film Festival aboard the USS North Carolina Battleship Memorial.

The festival will run Fridays June 7-28 and will feature films starring Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. All screenings will start at 8:30 p.m. Films will be shown on an outdoor screen on the ship's deck. In case of rain, movies will be shown in the visitor center auditorium. Tickets are 50 cents per person per film. The schedule of movies is listed below.

June 7 – Top Hat

This 1935 musical revolving around mistaken identity was nominated for a Best Picture Academy Award. It features Irving Berlin's Cheek to Cheek, also nominated for Best Song.

June 14 – Swing Time

Directed by George Stevens, this 1936 musical comedy features choreography by Hermes Pan and dance direction by Bo Jangles. Musical numbers include A Fine Romance and Best Song winner The Way You Look Tonight.

June 21 – Shall We Dance

In this 1937 film, the dance team of Astaire and Rogers are not who they say they are. Astaire is posing as a Russian ballet dancer, and Rogers is "an equally phony broad" who wants to marry into society. It features the Gershwin works Let's Call the Whole Thing Off, and They Can't Take That Away from Me which was nominated for Best Song.

June 28 – Follow the Fleet

This 1936 musical has sailors Fred Astaire and Randolph Scott romancing sisters Ginger Rogers and Harriet Hilliard. Directed by Mark Sandrich, the film features Berlin's Let's Face the Music and Dance and We Saw the Sea.

Girl's Soccer Camps

The UNCW Women's Soccer Program will hold a junior day camp for girls ages six to 14 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. June 24-28. The cost is $220. The program will also sponsor a senior camp for ages 10 to 18 from 9 a.m. to 7:45 p.m. July 20-24. The cost is $415 for residential campers and $315 for commuters.

Daughters of UNCW employees receive a $25 discount. Team discounts are also available. For a brochure, call Paul Cairney at ext. 3932.

Fulbright Deadline

August 1 is the deadline to submit applications for 2003-04 Fulbright Program grants. Awards range from two months to an academic year. The majority of the grants are for lecturing, but research awards are available. For more information, call 202-686-7877. Applications are available from the Web site www.cies.org.

Center Church Praise Dancers and the Masonboro Arts Performers. There will be no lectures or preaching. Attendees are encouraged to dress casually and bring a blanket or chair.

Holladay is director of jazz and world music studies at Oakland University in Rochester, Mich. Internationally known for his strong, no-nonsense playing style, Holladay toured the world with the Duke Ellington Orchestra, J.C. Heard Orchestra and Dizzy Gillespie's Orchestra. Other artists with whom Holladay performed or recorded include Billy Eckstine, Ella Fitzgerald and Herbie Hancock.

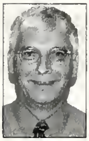
Paul Hosier Tapped as Interim Provost

Paul Hosier, associate vice chancellor for academic affairs, was named interim provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs, effective June 28. He will succeed John C. Cavanaugh who assumes the presidency of the University of West Florida July 1.



Hosier

Chancellor James R. Leutze, in announcing the appointment, expressed his confidence in Hosier's abilities.

"Dr. Hosier's knowledge and experience in budgetary matters will prove valuable to the university during the state's current financial crisis," said Leutze. "As public funding for education continues to decrease, Dr. Hosier's charge is to sustain UNCW's quality academic offerings that our students and their parents have come to expect from the South's leading public comprehensive university."

In addition to his administrative positions, Hosier is a professor of biology. He holds a bachelor's degree from the State University of New York at New Paltz, a master's degree from the University of Massachusetts and a Ph.D. from Duke University. He joined UNCW in 1972.

Hosier said he looks forward to taking on the added responsibility of his appointment.

"This will be a challenging year for UNCW in light of the state's financial situation," Hosier said. "I am fortunate to have a strong administrative team in place in the division, and I will be working with the deans of UNCW's colleges and schools and directors of the academic support areas to insure that they receive the resources necessary to deliver exceptional academic programs to our students."

Hosier will serve as interim provost as UNCW conducts a nationwide search to hire a permanent replacement. The provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs reports directly to the chancellor and oversees the academic units of the university. A national search can take up to a year to complete.

Smaller Budget Cuts Expected from Senate

Students would ultimately be the beneficiaries from a first-ever meeting between North Carolina's educational leadership and the entire state Senate, according to Mark Lanier, special assistant to the chancellor.

"Following last week's meeting, the chairmen of the Senate appropriations and finance committees and other Senate leaders agreed to protect educational funding as much as possible," said Lanier.

Prior to this "historic" meeting to discuss the impact of budget reductions on education, Lanier said K-12, community colleges and universities were facing approximately $695 million in cuts, a drop of more than 8 percent. He said the forthcoming Senate budget should reduce education spending by around 5 percent or in the neighborhood of $450 million in cuts. Universities should have greater flexibility in where

The Persuasions to Peform June 22 for Summer Fun Jam 2002

The Persuasions, dubbed the "kings of a cappella," will perform at 8 p.m. June 22 in Kenan Auditorium as part of UNCW's Summer Fun Jam 2002.

Tickets for the concert are $10 for general admission, free to UNCW faculty, staff and students with ID and are on sale at the auditorium box office. Tickets are required for admission. The Office of Campus Diversity is sponsoring Summer Fun Jam.

The Persuasions have combined Motown, doo-wop, rhythm and blues, gospel and other musical styles since 1962. In addition to singing with numerous performers such as Ray Charles, Patti Labelle, Bette Midler and Frank Zappa, these artists influenced the work of contemporary a cappella groups Boyz II Men, Take 6 and Rockapella. Featured on soundtracks for the films E.T. and Joe vs. the Volcano, the Persuasions produced the children's album On the Good Ship Lollipop in 1999 as well as CD tributes to Frank Zappa (2000) and the Beatles (2002).

Janet Ellerby Named Top Graduate Mentor

Janet Ellerby from the Department of English received the 2002 Graduate Mentor Award presented by the Graduate School and Research.

Ellerby

Neil Hadley, dean of the Graduate School, approved of her selection by the award committee.

"Dr. Ellerby has an outstanding record of directing master's theses and assisting students with their programs of study as well as career options and opportunities," said Hadley. As graduate coordinator for the Master of Arts in English degree, Ellerby's "deep caring for students serves as a role model for other faculty in the department and is a major factor in the success of the English graduate program," Hadley added.

The Graduate Mentor Award was established to recognize graduate faculty who excelled in teaching at the graduate level and who have an established record of mentoring students who complete master's programs. The latter includes not only guiding students' research activities while at UNCW but helping them become independent scholars and professionals.

Ellerby will be formally recognized during the fall faculty meeting in August where she will receive a $1,000 prize and a medallion.

Jazz Concerts Scheduled

The debut concert of the Cape Fear Jazz Orchestra is one of three concerts scheduled during UNCW's Summer Jazz Workshops June 24-29.

The orchestra, which formed this spring, will perform at 7:30 p.m. June 24 in Kenan Auditorium. Led by music professor Jerald Shynett, with assistance from Frank Bongiorno, chair of the Music Department, the orchestra perpetuates the music of jazz composers and arrangers from the Carolinas. The ensemble's debut will feature the music of John Coltrane, Dizzy Gillespie and Theolonious Monk as well as local composers Benny Hill and Shynett.

The UNCW Faculty Jazz Combo will play at 7:30 p.m. June 26 in Kenan Auditorium.

General admission is $5 per person, per concert. Tickets will be on sale at the auditorium the night of each concert.

The third concert, which is free, is set for 7:30 p.m. June 29 in Kenan Auditorium. It will feature performances by jazz workshop students.

Shakespeare Festival

The Cape Fear Shakespeare Festival will present King Lear at 8 p.m. every Friday through Sunday in June at the Greenfield Lake Amphitheater. Performances are free; donations accepted. For more information, call 392-7474.

Seahawk Club Names Assistant Director

Matt Phillips, a veteran of successful fund-raising campaigns at three universities, was named assistant director of UNCW's Student Aid Association (Seahawk Club).

Phillips, 30, joins the university after three years at East Tennessee State University.

"UNCW is an up-and-coming program with an excellent group of coaches and staffs," said Phillips. "The program has a winning tradition, and I hope to build on that."

A native of Hillsville, Va., Phillips was in charge of generating corporate revenue at ETSU. He also worked as development manager for the Virginia Tech Athletic Fund where he helped the Hokies raise $32 million. While an intern at NC State University, Phillips worked in the athletics ticket office. He earned a bachelor's degree from NC State in 1993 and completed a master's in parks, recreation and tourism management in 1995.

these reductions occur, added Lanier.

"Cuts of this magnitude will still be very painful, but would definitely be less damaging than the larger reductions initially proposed," said Lanier. "University supporters should express their appreciation to Senate leaders for their commitment to education and request similar consideration from members of the state House of Representatives."

In addition to meeting with the Senate, Lanier said university chancellors, community college presidents and school superintendents met with Gov. Mike Easley who also "affirmed his commitment to protect education from severe budget cuts."

The state's final budget is not expected until July, said Lanier.

The five-member group, which began singing on the stoops of brownstones in Brooklyn, N.Y., continues to tour around the world. The four founding members, Jerry Lawson, Joe Russell, Jimmy Hayes and Jayotis Washington, added Ray Sanders as their fifth performer in 1999. Original Persuasions member Toubo Rhode died in 1988.

Arts Alliance Meeting

The Black Arts Alliance Inc. will hold its third annual meeting at 7 p.m. June 20 at the fire station located at the intersection of Fifth and Castle Streets. The meeting will include an overview of projects implemented in the 2001-02 fiscal year and plans for 2002-03.

The agenda also includes installation of new board members and election of officers.

Staff Award of Excellence

July 1 is the deadline to submit nominations for the UNCW Staff Award of Excellence. Nomination forms are available from human resources. For more information, call ext. 3160.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Philip Furia, creative writing, served as a consultant to the U.S. Postal Service for an Irving Berlin commemorative stamp. Furia was also interviewed about Berlin as a guest on PBS's Ben Wattenberg's Think Tank, and he gave a lecture on American song lyrics at the dedication of the Scherer Library of Musical Theater at the Goodspeed Opera House in Connecticut.

Todd Berliner, English, received a speaker and specialist grant from the U.S. Department of State's Office of International Information Programs to travel to Rio de Janeiro where he advised faculty in the Communication Studies Department at Pontifificia Universidade Católica in the formulation of a Film Studies Program. In addition, he helped establish a reciprocal relationship between that film program and UNCW's. Berliner also presented the paper "Aesthetic Perversity in Hollywood Cinema: Narrative Nonsense in The Philadelphia Story and Raging Bull's Visual Chaos" at the Society for Cinema Studies conference in Denver.

Julian Keith, psychology, presented the farewell address "A Hippocampal Fugue: Neurogenesis, Neurotransmission and Amnesia" at the Canadian Centre for Behavioural Neuroscience in Alberta. Keith served as a visiting scientist at the center from June 2001 until June 2002.

Nan Graham, English, gave a presentation at the University of West Alabama Folklore Symposium. She is spending six weeks as writer-in-residence at the university where she will research and gather oral history on Livingston and Sumter County.

Ned Martin, chemistry, was featured in the N.C. Supercomputer Center's 2001 division report.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

Business Affairs Reorganization

A reorganization within the Division of Business Affairs reduces the number of senior level administrators who report to the vice chancellor from four to three.

Effective June 10, Sharon Boyd is associate vice chancellor for business and support services. She assumed the duties and responsibilities previously held by Dick Scott.

According to Tim Jordan, vice chancellor for business affairs, the reorganization is a cost-saving measure that will enhance the division's ability to deal with revenue losses resulting from the current state budget crisis.

Farewell Reception

The Division for University Advancement will host a farewell reception for Chris Delisio, Seahawk Club executive director, from 2 to 4 p.m. June 19 in Alderman Hall, Room 108H.

Delisio is leaving UNCW to take over as director of athletic development at the University of Dayton.

Inventory Closings

The print shop and copy center will close at noon June 26 for inventory. They will reopen at 7:30 a.m. July 1. Call ext. 3563 with any emergency printing needs during this period.

Copier key operators should check their copier paper and toner supplies and place replenishment orders prior to June 24.

Central stores will close June 24-28 to conduct its annual inventory. The facility will reopen July 1. Direct questions regarding emergency orders during this period to ext. 3180 or 3097.

Mark Your Calendar

UNCW's annual service awards luncheon will be held from noon to 2 p.m. Aug. 7 in Wagoner Hall.

Fiscal Year-end Accounting Reminders

Fiscal year-end accounting and travel-related paperwork is due by June 24. This notice includes all travel advances, petty cash and travel reimbursements, interdepartmental invoices and check requests that are to be paid from 2001-02 funds. Submit petty cash reimbursements to the cashier's office by noon. Other paperwork is due in accounting.

For questions regarding interdepartmental invoices, contact Candice Madden at ext. 3461. Direct questions regarding check requests to Elizabeth Johnson at ext. 3076. For questions on travel, contact Betty Mills at ext. 3149.

Deferred Charges

Offices and departments should use the information below to track May expenses being deferred to next year's fiscal budget.

Central stores charges are on delivery sheets. To get May totals, contact Mary Powell at ext. 3094. For copier charges, contact Ann Greene at ext. 3697. Postal charges are available from Karen Brunamonti at ext. 3750. For motor fleet charges, contact Pat Barker at ext. 3591. Have account number ready when making inquiries. Departments will receive charge notifications for printing services, bulk mail and forms orders processed in May via campus mail.

Shared Leave

Anna Campbell, CMS; David Crouch and David McKeown, physical plant; Tammy Grissett and Lori Smith, university police; Carrie Hoyle, purchasing; and Lori Sumpter, student affairs, need shared leave donations. Send vacation leave donations to Pam Christie in human resources.

Fiscal Year 2002-03 Travel

Travel that is occurring in fiscal year 2002-03 and that does not require payment from this year's budget can be entered as a future requisition (FR). Direct questions to Betty Mills at ext. 3149.

Postal News

Effective June 30, the United States Postal Service will institute a rate increase. For single-piece, one-ounce first-class mail, the rate will go from 34 to 37 cents. The single-piece postcard rate will rise from 21 to 23 cents.

UNCW Postal Services' new Web site, www.uncwil.edu/ba/postal_services/, contains information on how this rate increase affects all USPS domestic services.

The site also includes resources for faculty, staff and students such as general postal information and guidelines including a national zip code finder. There is a revised UNCW Zip + Four listing available in PDF version, which is suitable to download and print.

UNCW Professor Named Top Lecturer by International Organization

Vetter

Ron Vetter, chair of the Department of Computer Science, is the 2002 Association for Computing Machinery Outstanding Distinguished Lecturer of the Year.

One of several dozen top computing professionals selected by ACM as a distinguished lecturer, Vetter traveled throughout the U.S. and Mexico giving presentations at numerous colleges and universities including Ohio's Miami University, Western Kentucky University and the University of Central Florida. He lectured on using wireless networks, mobile computing and pocket computers in teaching and learning. He also spoke about emerging Web technologies and the current and future prospects for online courses. The talk about online courses, which he presented at the Instituto Tecnologico de La Laguna at Torreon in Mexico, was among his favorites.

"I spent four days there with students," said Vetter. "Some traveled 20 miles or more by bicycle for my talk; I was so impressed with their interest in learning. They clearly recognize that their futures depend upon getting a good education."

Vetter holds a bachelor's and a master's degree in computer science from North Dakota State University; his Ph.D. is from the University of Minnesota. He began his teaching career at UNCW in 1993. Following stints at Moorhead State University and North Dakota State University, Vetter rejoined UNCW in 1996.

Founded in 1947, the ACM is the world's oldest and largest educational and scientific computing society. It has more than 75,000 members worldwide. Its Distinguished Lecturer Program is one of the premier technology outreach programs in the computing industry. Lecturers are selected annually on the basis of competitive peer review and give talks to more than 100 ACM chapters and regional magnet events.

Leadership Lecture Series to Focus on Constructing Conscience

The 2002-03 Leadership Lecture Series "Constructing Conscience: A Matter of Values" will explore themes of values, integrity and self-awareness in contemporary society, said Shannon Hooker, program coordinator.

The series, sponsored by the Campus Activities and Involvement Center, will feature the following presentations:

- "Jews, Christians and Muslims: Unity and Discord Among the Children of Abraham" 7 p.m. Sept. 30

National Public Radio's Bruce Feiler is the author of five critically acclaimed books including The New York Times best seller Walking the Bible. A graduate of Yale University, the award-winning journalist has traveled to more than 60 countries immersing himself in different cultures and adventures. Feiler's slide presentation and narrative is scheduled in conjunction with the Common Reading Program.

- "Our Environmental Destiny" 7 p.m. Nov. 4

Robert F. Kennedy Jr., environmental leader, attorney, author and professor of law at Pace University, is the president of the Water Keeper Alliance. He is also the chief prosecuting attorney for fishermen on the Hudson River, senior attorney for the National Resources Defense Council and co-author of River Keepers, a book about protecting waterways. Kennedy's point of view is straightforward: "Fresh air and clean water are of greatest value to a community. A good environment is the basis of a good economy."

- "All the World's a Stage: Supporting the Transformation from Exclusion to Inclusion" 7 p.m. Feb. 10

B. D. Wong, a versatile young actor with award-winning performances that span comedy and drama, screen and stage, is best known for his portrayal of Father Ray Mukada, the compassionate and tireless Catholic priest in the controversial HBO series Oz. His lecture will focus on his development as an actor from his adolescent confusion of racial self-hatred. This presentation is in partnership with the Office of Campus Diversity.

To reserve the James Hall conference room for campus meetings or functions, contact Andrea Smith at ext. 3243.

Congressional Briefing

Psychology professors Len Lecci and Dale Cohen briefed members and staff of the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on Science and Technology June 18 about their research on how threats of an anthrax attack affected people's perception of these threats to their health. This briefing, arranged by the science directorate of the American Psychological Association, also included presentations from a sociologist at Eastern Michigan University and a political scientist from the University of Michigan.

Using an emerging research grant from the National Science Foundation, the UNCW researchers' findings indicated that those who felt helpless to avoid terrorism were the most likely to be immobilized by their fear. According to Lecci and Cohen, their goal is to identify effective yet cost-efficient ways to minimize inappropriate health responses to bio-terrorism.

No Communique July 4

Due to Independence Day, the Campus Communique will not publish July 4.

Leadership Wilmington Accepting Applications

July 31 is the deadline to enroll in Leadership Wilmington 2003, a program geared toward providing the region with a diverse supply of creative leaders.

The leadership program, sponsored by the Division for Public Service and Continuing Studies and the Greater Wilmington Chamber Foundation Inc., is designed to educate participants about community challenges and needs. The program also teaches about the dynamics of social and economic changes faced in the region.

Beginning with a two-day retreat Sept. 5 and 6, Leadership Wilmington is divided into 15 community sessions, a consensus meeting and graduation in March. Sessions, which will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Thursdays at various locations, will focus on topics such as diversity, communications, health care, law enforcement, planning for growth, education and transportation.

Candidates are sought from corporate, educational, professional, nonprofit and government sectors. Selection criteria include leadership potential, community involvement, accomplishments and recommendations. Tuition is $595 and includes expenses for the initial reception, retreat, community sessions, speakers, notebooks and graduation program. An application fee of $15 is also charged.

For more information, contact Diana Corbett, program manager, at 762-2611 ext. 213 or e-mail corbett@wilmingtonchamber.org. An informational insert is also available to download from the Web at www.uncwil.edu/news/communique/leadershipwilmington.pdf.

Research Grants Top $15 Million, 12 New 'Millionaires' Inducted

UNCW's research funding reached new heights this academic year with external grants awarded topping more than $15 million.

"Faculty and staff had another successful year," said Pam Whitlock, director of the Office of Sponsored Programs. "UNCW researchers submitted 228 proposals this year requesting more than $39 million; 208 awards were received."

As state monies for higher education continue to decline, Whitlock said external sources of funding are increasingly important for the scholarly research conducted by faculty. Such research is also a source of hands-on learning opportunities for undergraduate and graduate students, she added. The value of this year's funding was $15,780,391.

"Through the hard work and dedication of faculty researchers, the university received grants that will support community health clinics in Navassa and Bolton, study the effects of alcohol consumption on sexual aggression and improve teacher education," said Whitlock. "These are just a few examples of how research benefits our region and the state."

Other research initiatives Whitlock highlighted were a first-ever National Institutes of Health project grant to study the effects of inhaled Florida red tide brevetoxins and continued funding for the Coastal Ocean Research Monitoring Program.

She also pointed out that a third of the proposals submitted had at least one co-investigator that illustrated "a great collaborative spirit" among faculty and staff. Proposals were submitted from all the professional schools as well as a mix of disciplines within the College of Arts and Sciences.

Whitlock recapped UNCW's research success at a reception Monday to honor grant recipients. She also recognized 12 new members of OSP's Million Dollar Club: Fred Bingham and Marvin Moss, physics and physical oceanography; Perri Bomar, nursing; Mike Bradley, SBTDC; Michael Durako, Thomas Lankford, Robert Roer and Thomas Shafer, biological sciences; Andrew Hayes, specialty studies; Mike Mallin and Wade Watanabe, CMS; and Andy Shepard, NURC.

The club recognizes university researchers who received more than a million dollars cumulatively in grant funding either as a principal or co-principal investigator.

Financial Aid Kiosk Helps Surf SEAWEB

Surf
SEAWEB

Surfboard kiosk

Searching SEAWEB for financial aid information shouldn't be an intimidating task says Mark Williams, director of financial aid and veterans' services.

In fact, the addition of a surfboard-style computer kiosk in James Hall will enable counselors to show students how to "hang 10" financial aid information available to them.

"There are very few financial aid transactions that can't be completed through SEAWEB," said Williams. "Students can apply for aid, check the status of their application and even electronically sign promissory notes for student loans."

Once students learn how to use SEAWEB, they realize they can access their information from virtually anywhere, said Williams.

Since the kiosk arrived last month, an average of 27 students a day using it to access SEAWEB, Williams stated. He views it as a wonderful supplement for students to use while waiting to see a counselor.

"Students can check their account and find out about their financial aid award. They know 'what' their aid situation is; counselors will be able to tell them 'why,'" said Williams.

As the registration and financial aid process continues to rely more on electronic communication,

ANNOUNCEMENTS

New on the Web

The Division of Business Affairs completed the initial redesign of its Web site www.uncwil.edu/ba/.

According to Sharon Boyd, associate vice chancellor for business and support services, the new look is built around a more functional approach while maintaining the same "look and feel" of the university's home page.

"The three theme sections – financial and purchasing offices; facilities, police and safety; and campus and auxiliary services – are key areas that students, parents, faculty and staff can use to narrow their search for campus information," said Boyd.

New content was added for most areas within campus services including postal services, recycling, shipping and receiving. For university police, there is a quick link to crime statistics and a departmental page with officers' photos. The Web site also meets accessibility guidelines outlined by the university's Web committee in conjunction with the Office of Disability Services.

Direct suggestions for the site to Virginia Pyrtle via e-mail to pyrtlev or Boyd at boyds.

United Way Volunteers

The Cape Fear Area United Way is seeking volunteers to assist with its annual fall fund-raising drive. Volunteers will be needed 12 to 20 hours per week from August to November; training will be provided. For more information, contact Siobhan Jackman at 798-3911.

Wise House Seeking Books

The Office of Alumni Relations is seeking donation of hardback books of various sizes for display in the eight bookcases of the Grand Room in the Wise Alumni House. Faculty and staff interested in supporting this effort to enhance the house's décor should contact Pat Smith at ext. 2681.

Women's Leadership

The Women's Leadership Program in Graham/Hewlett Residence Hall is seeking female employees to participate in its monthly speaker series "Ain't Nothing but a She Thing."

Alumni to Honor Faculty; Award Nominees Sought

To recognize faculty who have made a difference in the lives of their students, the UNCW Alumni Association Past Chairs' Council has established the Distinguished Faculty Award.

The council is seeking nominations for the award that will be presented at convocation in August. The deadline for nominations, which may be submitted by UNCW faculty or staff, alumni, students or community members, is July 15.

Nominees must be/or have been a full-time faculty member with a minimum of seven years of service to Wilmington College and/or UNCW. The award may be given posthumously. The recipient will receive a $500 cash award and a medallion.

Nominators must describe ways the faculty member supported students beyond the walls of the classroom such as advisor, reference, mentor, or coach in regard to scholarship, leadership or other significant ways. They must describe examples of the individual's research and creativity, contributions to the field of study/academia, committee service, Faculty Senate or other leadership roles.

Nominators must give examples of the faculty member's time, talent and resources given back to the region and beyond. Initiatives that were created or expanded should be listed and described. Other relevant supporting documentation to accurately depict the significance of the nominee for this award can be included with the nomination.

Nomination forms can be downloaded in PDF format from the alumni association Web site, www.uncwil.edu/alumni. Letters, limited to two pages in length, must indicate how the nominee meets the criteria set forth. Send nominations to Patricia Smith, Wise Alumni House, by fax at ext. 2685 or e-mail smithpc.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Leadership Wilmington Seeking Applicants for 2003

July 31 is the deadline to enroll in Leadership Wilmington 2003, a program designed to provide the region with a diverse supply of creative leaders.

The leadership program, sponsored by the Division for Public Service and Continuing Studies and the Greater Wilmington Chamber Foundation Inc., educates participants about community challenges and needs. The program also teaches about the dynamics of social and economic changes in the region.

Candidates are sought from corporate, educational, professional, nonprofit and government sectors. Selection criteria include leadership potential, community involvement, accomplishments and recommendations. Tuition is $595 and includes expenses for the initial reception, retreat, community sessions, speakers, notebooks and graduation program. An application fee of $15 is also charged.

For more information, contact Diana Corbett, program manager, at 762-2611 ext. 213 or e-mail corbett@wilmingtonchamber.org.

it's a necessity for students to become comfortable with the process, observed Williams.

"Instead of calling in and passively listening to someone, students have the power to view and in some cases change their accounts," Williams added.

The move toward an all-electronic financial aid process is progressing, said Williams. In January 2002, instead of mailing out large award packets for students to complete, the financial aid office sent enrolled students e-mails notifying them that the information was available online. In addition, electronic communication will inform students of their financial aid eligibility or any problems with their application, such as missing or incomplete information. Williams said speeding up the communication process ultimately benefits students.

One of the few things students can't do electronically is to actually accept their financial aid award, said Williams. "They have to print out the award letter and mail it back to acknowledge acceptance of the award."

In the near future, though, that will probably change, too, Williams said.

"UNCW has partnered with SCT Corporation, the vendor for the Student Information System, to enable online acceptance of awards. We hope to have online acceptance by the end of the fall semester," said Williams.
